Metropolitan Sanitary District project

Sewage plant detrimental to environment, report says

by DOROTHY OLIVER
and MIKE ZARENBA

The proposed Metropolitan Sanitary District sewage treatment plant does not utilize the best available technology, can be environmentally detrimental to the southwest part of Des Plaines and may bring about a net environmental and economic loss to the whole city, according to a 104-page research report compiled by Clark, Dietz and Associates-Engineers Inc.

The $3,000 report, aimed at updating and strengthening the city's waste water treatment plant building codes, was authorized by the city council in April. The Champaign-Urbana engineering firm was retained to prepare a written report as a building code criteria for the construction and operation of waste water treatment plants.

For eight years the city has fought an unsuccessful battle with MSD trying to persuade them to change the site for the plant. Although aldermen are unanimous in the opinion that the plant is needed in the area they don't want it on the 103-acre site located at the northeast corner of Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway—blocks from residential neighborhoods.

THE REPORT states that the suggested ordinance appears valid. "However, no legal opinion has been secured on the authority of a home rule municipality to regulate the governmental land uses by such as MSD."

Although MSD officials see the proposed plant as being small in comparison to their largest plants, the plant will be "8 to 10 times larger than necessary to serve the needs of the city of Des Plaines. Few plants in (Illinois) are larger," it states.

"It can be safely said that the larger the plant, the larger the area it potentially will affect detrimentally and the greater is the exposure to health hazard and nuisance."

THE REPORT lists some of the scientific operating hazards and nuisances of the plant as:

- Odor, a problem common to all sewage treatment plant processes. It states that normal characteristic odors from well run plants can be detected most of the time a quarter to one-half mile downwind from the plant. When the plant malfunctions, the malodors are detectable five or more miles away. There is no way of knowing how much or how bad odors would be or whether it would disturb property value.

- Noise, in this location, will be relatively minor in comparison to the noise from planes that use O'Hare Field. The report does not anticipate a noise problem.

- Contamination of water. "We are confident that the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency will check the final plans thoroughly for such possibility."

THE REPORT details three instances where available technology was not utilized in the MSD plant design: covering the processing tanks to eliminate odor, the use of pure oxygen as an aeration process which would be more efficient and necessitate smaller tanks; and treating odorous air by bubbling it through sewage aeration tanks to control odor.

The engineers suggested that the city:

- Amend the zoning ordinance to make it applicable to all uses whether governmental or privately owned.
- Make a governmental use a special use in any zoning district.
- Make the performance standards applicable only to special zoning uses.

- Upgrade the zoning performance standards to utilize the latest available recognized performance measurement methods.

- Amend performance standards to make them achievable rather than idealized.

- Recognize those conditions, such as airplane noises which are beyond the power of city government to control, in amending noise and odor standards by having several levels of performance.

Eighth Ward Alderman Richard Ward and Alan Abrams will meet with the U. S. EPA July 31 in Chicago to show a slide presentation comparing various water treatment facilities. Abrams told the Herald yesterday they will also use the report.

THE EPA MUST approve plans for the MSD project before federal matching funds are granted.

"The main thrust of the presentation will be that the proposed project will require additional health, safety and the plant would have to be dramatically smaller," said Abrams. "The present specifications are wrong from an engineering standpoint. It should not be built of that magnitude."

Abrams said the EPA president "really can't see sanctioning the present project unless substantial revision of the design are made."

"We will very definitely use the (engineer's) report in our presentation," he said. "The report is a modern analysis of similar problems concerned with health considerations, giving some of the history of sewage treatment problems."

The brick flies—the window disintegrates with a crash. Before the unsuspecting victim realizes what has happened, the young vandals have fled into the night. Cost of the replacing the window, about $150.

A resident steps outside his house to leave for work one morning. His car has been garish with orange spray paint and the tires punctured. Cost of repairing the tires and repainting the car—about $200.

More than 20 car tires are hit during a vandal rampage in the 1100 block of Prairie Street. Windows in homes and stores in the neighborhood are shot out with BBs—total cost of the spree, more than $3,500.

Last week alone, 10 incidents of damage to property were reported to Des Plaines police, not to mention five additional reports of damage done to vehicles.

POLICE REPORTS show that vandalism hit Des Plaines and other communities in 1973 with all the impact of the 17-year locust.

Arlington Heights statistics show 559 incidents of vandalism have been reported this year, up 25 per cent from 464 in a six-month period last year.

Statistics also show 413 reported cases of vandalism in Mount Prospect in 1973.

Locally, incidents of vandalism have skyrocketed 68.6 per cent over 1972 half-year levels. More than 550 cases have been reported to police this year as opposed to only 318 for the first six months of 1972. More than 700 cases of vandalism were reported locally for all of 1972.

POLICE STATISTICS show that the $39,644 in property damage for the first six months of this year have more than doubled the $17,980 figure reported for a similar period last year. In addition, the current damage total almost equals the reported $44,598 in property loss due to vandalism for all of last year.

According to Lt. Mike Clark of Des Plaines police, there is actually more there than meets the eye.

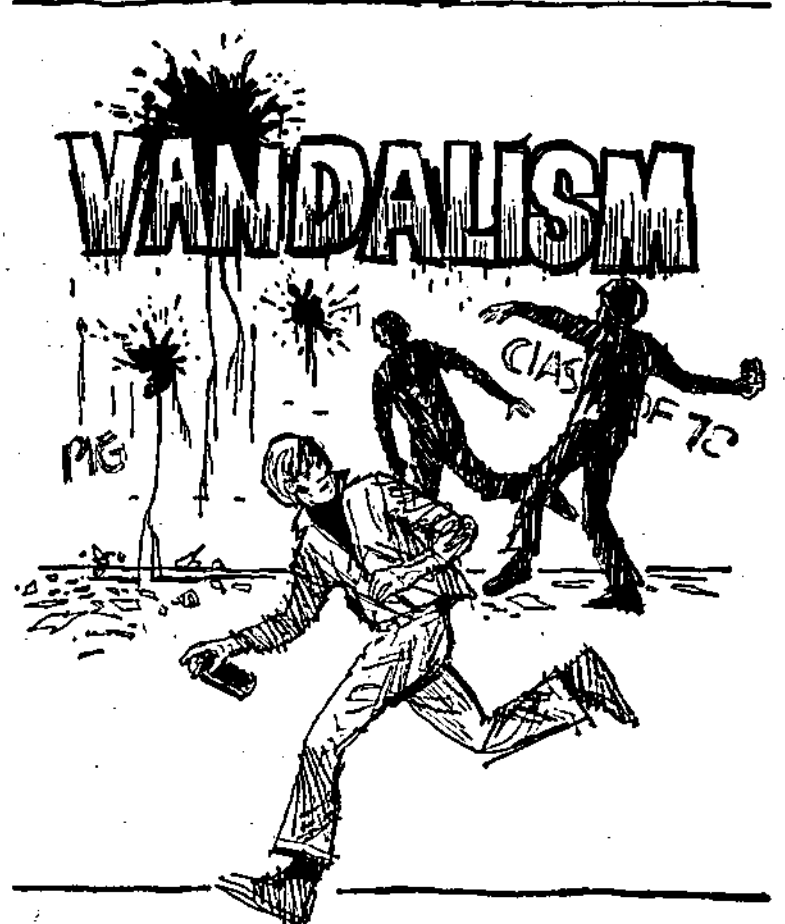

"Vandalism is actually a very under-reported crime," he said. "Sometimes slight damage such as a broken light won't even be reported to us. And when vandalism is reported, officers can only make 'guesstimates' as to what the total damage really is."

But there are still the often-asked rhetorical questions—Who does these things?—Who becomes a vandal. Why do they delight in wanton destruction of property and possessions? Or are we just enduring the throes of a long, hot summer?

Police statistics show that all but three of the 88 persons arrested for vandalism in Des Plaines this year are 21 years old or younger. Only eight of these arrested were female.

AS TO THE whys and wherefores of vandalism, however, authorities are in general agreement: the problem is a difficult one to assess.

According to Eldon Burk, as-

Vandalism

sistant of students at Maine West High School, a youth may resort to vandalism as a means of gaining recognition among friends.

"Most vandals are not having much success in school or anywhere else. They don't get any positive input in their lives from home or in school so they destroy property to show someone they are something more than a complete failure."

A vandalism-prone adolescent, said Burk, thrives on status in his peer group because he is unable to be recognized any other way.

YOUTHS WHO participate in sports, church groups and social organizations, are successful academically or even have part-time jobs usually do not resort to vandalism because as Burk puts it, "They have something positive to hold on to—a way of gaining recognition through constructive means and a way of feeling good about themselves as individuals."

Sometimes, said Burk, a young person will smash a window or slit a tire and guilt feelings will prevent him from doing it again.

Ironically, Burk feels vandals who are caught in their misdeeds are lucky.

"A kid who is made to pay the price and make restitution for what he did can actually end up feeling good about himself by paying his victim back and that's positive input."

DET. BILL TARVER of the Des Plaines police department's youth division also feels that youngsters who vandalize are actually seeking recognition.

"It seems that a lot of kids destroy property in hopes they will get caught so their parents will be forced to come down to the station and pay some attention to them. It's like they're trying to let someone know they exist," he said.

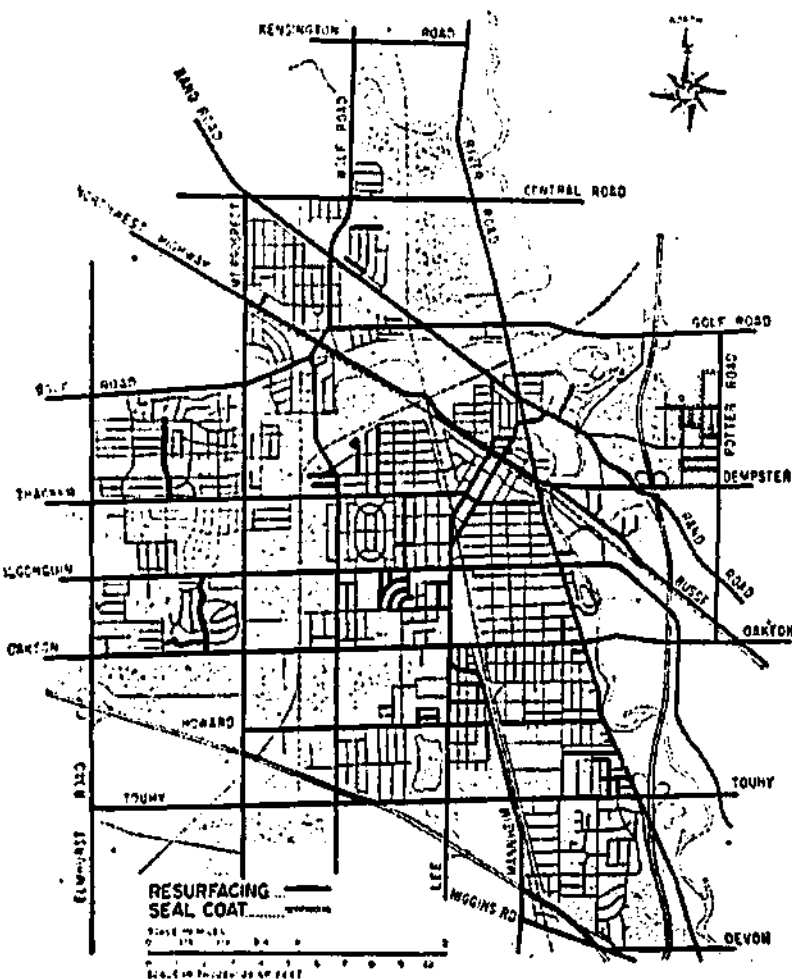

"And of the ones who are caught, 99 per cent of them don't know why they did what they did when we ask them," he said.

Tarver also feels it is important for a youth to make restitution for vandalism.

He mentioned the case of three youths caught damaging a local building last year. "The damage was about $300 and we told them they would have to make up for it. One of them began cutting lawns and doing odd jobs while the parents of the other two paid for their share."

Gas:

By United Press International
Gasoline stations across the nation are staying open a little longer and are relaxing sales quotas for the third week in a row, according to the American Automobile Association (AAA).

Inventories of gasoline and heating oil "are in pretty fair shape" and "gradually creeping up" due to a slowing of demand, Dr. James S. Cross of the National Petroleum Council said.

But the AAA said there is still a shortage, and the petroleum council, an oil industry group which advises the interior secretary, urged the government Tuesday to establish an emergency plan including fuel rationing in case foreign petroleum supplies are suddenly cut off.

ALTHOUGH THE gasoline crisis has diminished in Chicago and most other areas, Colorado service stations still face "the worst shortage in the nation," the AAA reported.

In Monument, Colo., Morgan Porter strapped on a pistol and headed for work yesterday. Porter pumps gas.

The pistol is for motorists who won't take "no" for an answer, he said.

Porter is selling only about 2,000 gallons of gasoline daily to vacationers who pull into his service station here in southern Colorado. He says his first obligation is to regular customers.

"They're the ones that sustain me through the long winter months," he said. "Many of them commute from Monument to jobs in Colorado Springs and Denver. They must have gas."

Porter has issued cards to his regular customers. They can get gasoline while tourists are turned away or forced to wait in long lines of automobiles.

Sometimes, Porter said, the tourists don't sit.

One driver "jerked his door open and started toward me. I just turned so that he could see my gun and he backed off."

PORTER'S SERVICE station is critically short of gasoline as are most others in eastern Colorado. The problem is so acute that gas stations are closing week-ends and early during the week after selling daily rations of fuel.

Porter carried the pistol only at night to discourage holdups before the shortage. Now he wears it around his waist whenever he works at his Chevron service station.

The AAA's weekly report said 48 per cent of the stations surveyed nationally are operating normal hours without limiting sales, compared to 47 per cent the previous week — and 7.5 per cent are limiting sales, compared with 9 per cent the week before.

DENVER is still the hardest hit area. The AAA said 97 to 98 per cent of the city's stations were closed during the weekend, and 66 per cent of them are closing by noon on weekdays.

The energy shortage, while it may be easing slightly, is the result of years of using fuel carelessly, according to Standard Oil of Indiana Chairman John E. Swearingen.

"We have been on a long binge, during which we have taken unlimited, low-cost energy for granted, and we have been consuming it at a rate which has no parallel in history," he told the National Press Club.

Food:

by United Press International
President Nixon's Phase IV economic plan is making beef a better bargain — so now beef is getting scarce.

Under Phase IV, beef is the only food item whose prices are still frozen. As the price for other items goes up, beef becomes, comparatively, a better bargain.

But it's because it's a bargain that's causing the shortage: The price is low enough to cause producers to hold beef off the market — waiting for higher prices.

The freeze on beef prices ends Sept. 12. "There will be a scarcity of red beef and veal," said Lloyd Fitch, meat buyer for United Food Centers in Houston. "It is costing the packers 62 cents a pound to process it and deliver it to the stores. But their ceiling is at 74 cents."

THE MILITARY is running so short on beef that it has asked for exemption from price controls and may be accumulating a demand that will worsen the "bulge" when the beef price ceiling is lifted, the Los Angeles Times reported today.

The Times quoted meat packing industry sources as saying the military is 8.5 million pounds short of its normal beef supply.

Meat packers have been refusing to offer beef to the military because of the price squeeze, the newspaper said.

Pork and steak supplies were reported depleted Tuesday at a SENTRY store in Greendale, a Milwaukee suburb. The meat manager there said there had been no deliveries from packing houses since Friday.

Luigi Stacchini, who runs a New York meat market, said Tuesday his wholesaler will close down by Thursday.

IN WASHINGTON, Donald S. Perkins, the head of Jewel Companies, a major grocery chain based in Chicago, predicted many supermarkets will run short of beef next week. Perkins blamed it on the confusion of Phase IV.

Perkins' criticism of Phase IV carries special weight because he heads the Cost of Living Council's food advisory committee, a panel of industry, labor and consumer representatives that recommends ways to keep grocery prices within the administration's anti-inflation guidelines.

Food prices generally leveled off Tuesday after some big jumps, but there were some exceptions.

Maine potato futures on the New York mercantile exchange hit $9.54 a hundredweight for the May contract, the highest price in 42 years. This could

Quarter-pounder? Almost

One of America's most enduring business institutions and a legend in the field of food franchising is in trouble in the little town of Mineola, N.Y., and you have to wonder where it's all going to end.

It started when James E. Pickens, the Consumer Affairs Commissioner for Nassau County, N.Y., announced that his inspectors had checked more than 150 McDonald hamburger "Quarter Pounders" and found them wanting.

Pickens reports that the hamburgers he tested averaged 3-7/8 ounces and some were actually one-quarter ounce underweight.

Pickens launched his assault on the mean higher potato prices in the future.

THE OPERATORS of 26 tuna boats in San Diego, Calif., said they would remain in port until the price of tuna goes up.

A half gallon of milk went up 11 cents in Columbus, Ohio; a dozen eggs went up 9 cents in New York, and a loaf of bread was up 5 cents in Atlanta.

"It seems every time I go into the store, the prices go up," said Mrs. Charles Clermont, 68, who was shopping in New York. "Sometimes a few pennies, sometimes a dime. But my check stays the same. It just costs more and more to eat the same thing."

One young New York shopper, Arlene Wagner, said she solved the problem of rising food costs by not shopping often and by "borrowing food from my mother's freezer."

hamburger institution by saying "Let them give an honest four ounces or else call their hamburgers the 'not-quite-quarter-pounder'..."

"A quarter-ounce may not seem like much," Pickens continued, "but multiply it by the millions of hamburgers McDonalds sells and it amounts to plenty."

A spokesman for the Chicago-based McDonald chain said the hamburgers lose weight when they are cooked. Pickens says they were weighed before cooking and, anyway, the customer should be told the weight of the finished hamburger in advertising.

If convicted of the Great Mineola Hamburger charge, the McDonald company could be fined a maximum of $40,000 for false advertising.

What'd you expect? Family food bill up

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Agriculture Department's "market basket" — which shows how much it would cost to feed a typical family for a year — went up $24 to a record $1,517 in June.

This was $214 — or $4.14 a week higher than June, 1972.

The "market basket" calculation covers an assortment of domestically-produced foods needed to feed a hypothetical family of 3.2 persons.

The Agriculture Department's report, released Tuesday, said that between May and June this year the "market basket" price paid to farmers went up $37, but middlemen absorbed $13 of that increase by cutting their profit margins, leaving only the $24 increase paid by consumers.

The price figures for June were collected during the early part of June, when price ceilings were in effect for meat but had not yet taken effect on other foods.

The Agriculture Department also released Tuesday a separate calculation of beef and pork prices collected all through June. It showed the average retail price of choice grade beef slipped from a record $1.36 a pound in May to $1.35 and a half. Retail pork prices rose in June 1.7 per cent to a new record of slightly over $1.04 a pound.

It's showdown day on tapes

Today is showdown day on the White House tapes.

President Nixon has until 9 a.m. to comply with subpoenas issued Monday by the Senate Watergate committee and special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox demanding access to tape recordings and other White House documents pertinent to the investigation.

A hearing is scheduled for that hour before U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, and predictions are that the president's attorneys will appear with a motion to quash the subpoenas.

The attorneys will argue Mr. Nixon's contention that the doctrine of separation of powers prevents him from turning over presidential documents to a Congressional committee.

That will officially set in motion the classic constitutional battle signaled by the President Monday when he formally refused the Watergate committee's request for the tapes and documents.

Committee chairman Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C., said yesterday the committee would very quickly seek a court order to get release of the tapes, assuming they will not be forthcoming this morning.

Ervin said he hoped the White House would move to quash the subpoenas, setting the stage for a judicial showdown in a reasonably fast and orderly process.

If there is no such motion, said Ervin, the committee would sue for a declaratory judgment — an order by the federal court requiring the president to comply with the subpoenas.

And, said Ervin, if the president "has any respect for law and order," he should comply with any court order.

Ervin discounted a third option open to him: to cite the President for contempt, an action that would have to be voted by the committee and upheld by the full senate.

The issue almost certainly will head to the U.S. Supreme Court for resolution after Judge Sirica rules on arguments from both sides.

Washington observers speculated yesterday that could happen reasonably quickly, with the case possibly reaching the high court in three weeks and the entire matter being settled in 60 days. That's based on past instances where the high court — even in recess as it is now — has moved swiftly in dealing with momentous constitutional issues.

If the Supreme Court should rule against the President, he will obey. That, at least, was the opinion yesterday of Senate Majority Leader Hugh Scott and deputy White House press secretary Gerald Warren.

In other Watergate developments: —Sen. Robert Dole, R-Kan., urged Nixon to sit down with those who have been loyal to him to discuss frankly the problems afflicting the administration and the Republican party.

—The latest Harris poll showed 51 per cent of the persons questioned thought the President wrong in refusing to testify before the Watergate committee, and 60 per cent thought he was wrong to not turn over the tapes.

—The House Appropriations Committee wiped out a $1.5 million special "special projects" fund traditionally given Presidents because the White House refused to say whether any of the money went to the Watergate burglars.

Ehrlichman defends contact with Pentagon papers judge

WASHINGTON (UPI) — John D. Ehrlichman testified Wednesday on President Nixon's orders he sounded out the judge in the Pentagon Papers case about taking over the FBI without considering that the offer might influence the judge's behavior in the trial.

But, Ehrlichman said, when he met with U.S. District Judge Matthew Byrne Jr. at San Clemente, Calif., last April he did not mention the burglary of the Los Angeles office of defendant Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist, Dr. Lewis Fielding, on grounds discussing it "would have been improperly squared."

Byrne dismissed the case against Ellsberg, charged with stealing the Pentagon Papers, May 5 the day after learning that the government had withheld from the defense the fact that two White House agents, E. Howard Hunt and G. Gordon Liddy, had raided Dr. Fielding's office.

Ehrlichman insisted he saw "no impropriety" in discussing the FBI post with Byrne — even though he conceded that the White House was intensely interested in the outcome of the case.

Earlier, he said the break-in at the psychiatrist's office was justified under the President's constitutional obligation to protect the nation from foreign subversion.

The former presidential adviser also testified that John W. Dean III had led before that panel in saying Nixon had promised freedom in the form of executive clemency to the seven Watergate wiretappers just a few days before they went on trial last January.

Clam and self-assured in his second day before the Senate Watergate Committee, Ehrlichman said that to the contrary, Nixon had given strict orders as far back as last July that there should be no discussion of clemency for the men convicted in the June 17, 1972, raid on Democratic offices at the Watergate.

On another matter, Ehrlichman denied — as Dean has testified — that he had ordered the destruction of documents removed from the White House safe of Hunt soon after Hunt's arrest in connection with the Watergate break-in.

Dean had testified that Ehrlichman instructed him to "deep six" the documents — throw them over the side of a bridge into the Potomac River.

Ehrlichman will return for a third day of testimony today, with live coverage of the hearing beginning at 9 a.m. on Channel 7.

'26 Julio' — 20 years ago, it began

On a hill overlooking Santiago, Cuba, looms a dramatic new matellic sculpture more than 82 feet high, outlined at night by powerful floodlights against the backdrop of the Sierra Maestra mountains.

It is the figure of Premier Fidel Castro, shown in silhouette, and it was installed as part of today's celebration of the 20th anniversary of Castro's revolutionary movement.

"The image shows Fidel wearing combat uniform, knapsack and rifle on his back," a broadcast from Cuba said. "Because of its great height and due to the elevation of the site, it is easily seen from various points in Santiago, even from ships entering and leaving the harbor."

Castro will be in Santiago today to address a mass rally gathered in commemoration of the attack he led against the Moncada army garrison on this day in 1953. The attack was repulsed, but in that defeat was born what came to be known as the "26 Julio" movement — which six years later carried Castro to a position of power he has never relinquished.

Presumably, Castro will enjoy the view of his silhouette as he savors thoughts of his present prominence, two decades after that inauspicious beginning.

The raising of a Castro image is an unusual development in Cuba. Despite his dominant position as undisputed leader of the government and Communist Party, and despite the verbal adulation he encourages or permits, Castro has vetoed the kind of monument-building associated with the "cult of personality." He once had a bust of himself removed after it was put up by enthusiastic

Last November, the Central Committee of Cuba's Communist Party announced the formation of the National Organizing Committee for the Commemoration of the 20th Anniversary of the Attack on the Moncada Garrison. Castro's brother, Raul, was named head of the committee.

All the year's activities have been planned around the anniversary, with sugar cane cutters and other workers urged to fulfill production goals in honor of the occasion.

TWENTY YEARS ago, Castro was a young lawyer and minor politician plotting to overthrow Dictator Fulgencio Batista, who had seized power in a coup d'etat.

The uprising was to begin with an assault on the army barracks at Santiago named after Guillermon Moncada, a 19th Century guerrilla fighter in Cuba's long struggle against Spanish rule.

The attack was a dismal failure. The rebels not killed trying to storm the garrison were rounded up afterwards. Many were executed after torture.

Castro and a few others survived to stand trial. It was his summation of his own defense, later rewritten and published as a tract titled "History Will Absolve Me," that brought Castro a national following among opponents of Batista.

Released from jail in 1955 on amnesty granted by Batista, Castro fled to Mexico to prepare the rebel landing of December, 1956. It was another failure, but it led through the guerrilla campaign of the Sierra Maestra to victory on Jan. 1, 1959.

The Cuban government now honors Guillermon Moncada along with other rebel fighters of the last century. But the Moncada garrison no longer exists. In a symbolic and well-publicized act, it was razed and a school built on the site.

Connally resigns White House post

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Nixon announced Wednesday that John B. Connally is quitting the part-time post he took May 16 as a special White House adviser.

Nixon said Connally, secretary of the treasury during the President's first term, planned to leave soon with his wife for a trip around the world which Connally postponed when he agreed to come to the White House shortly after the resignation of some top aides because of Watergate disclosures.

The White House said Connally, a former Democratic governor of Texas, would rejoin his Houston law firm on a full-time basis when he returns from his travels.

Connally switched his political affiliation from Democratic to Republican when the scandal erupted, apparently at Nixon's request, in a show of support for the President at a time of crisis. He is considered a potential candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in 1976 and appears to have Nixon's political support.

Connally served without compensation, and was forced to sever all of his connections with corporations having dealings with the federal government.

Connally quickly became frustrated in his role as a presidential adviser. Although he was consulted on the new Phase IV economic controls and took an active part in shaping the program, associates indicated that he was not being consulted by Nixon on other high level White House problems to the extent that he would have liked.

Connally had recommended that Nixon "clear house" and rid his administration of the staffers linked to top aides H. R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman who resigned April 30 after they were implicated in the Watergate scandal. Nixon did not take his advice.

There have been reports that like Connally, former Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird, now a White House counselor, was in a mood to quit the White House staff because he is not a member of Nixon's inner circle.

Russia's in the lead

The 'ship gap' widens

The Russian navy has opened up a big lead over the United States in the number of submarines and cruisers, and is closing in on the long American supremacy in aircraft carrier strength.

So says the new edition of Jane's Fighting Ships, just released in England. The 1973-74 edition of the authoritative guide to all warships in the world also said China is rapidly increasing the size of its submarine fleet.

"There is every likelihood that the next few years will see the Chinese navy spreading its influence abroad," Jane's said in the edition released Wednesday.

The two major naval powers, however, remain the United States and the Soviet Union.

The Soviets have a 3-to-1 advantage in submarines and a 10-to-1 advantage in cruisers. The two navies are even in the number of battle ships and destroyers in active service, each with 225. The United States has a clear advantage in aircraft carriers with 15 in active service, two under construction and six in reserve.

Jane's said, however, that it has confirmed that the Soviet Union is nearing completion at the Black Sea port of Nikolayev its first aircraft carrier of the 45,000-ton Kiev class. A sister ship also is under construction, Jane's said.

"They mark an impressive and logical advance by the Soviet navy," Jane's said, adding that it is "not unlikely" that the Soviet Union will build a total of six carriers of this type.

Of the Chinese navy, Jane's said it now has 44 submarines and some of them possibly are nuclear powered. The Chinese navy also has eight destroyers, nine battle ships, 11 escorts, 17 fast missile boats, 20 submarine chasers, 315 fast gunboats, 200 fast torpedo boats and several hundred other smaller craft.

• It's happening in Italy, too. New premier Mariano Rumor — as his first major move — imposed a sweeping freeze on wages, rents and prices and announced several steps to cut government spending. It appears to be a promise kept, as Rumor vowed a war on inflation when he took over a coalition government 18 days ago.

• Bad news for Rembrandt and his fans. Two of his paintings — "Joseph in White" and "Daniel in the Lion's Den" — were among three stolen from the Glicenstein museum in Safad, Israel. Value: more than $1 million.

Reporting footsteps in the night and mischief with paintings, Holton confirmed what's been reported several times since the 1890's: that the shade of a young and beautiful woman dwells within.

Uprights of magnetometer check passengers

Boeing tests on avionics guidance system 'successful'

SEATTLE, Wash (UPI) — An avionics guidance system that will bring a new degree of precision to long-range navigation has been tested in flight successfully by Boeing Aerospace Co.

The system reads the terrain beneath a missile or aircraft and automatically checks its conclusions against a stored memory, which tells the craft precisely where it is supposed to be. The system then corrects the course as necessary.

Employing a technique called terrain correlation, the system was tested on two 600-mile flights originating in Seattle. It guided a Cessna Twin aircraft precisely to its designated location, Rocky Beach Dam on the Columbia River near Wenatchee, Wash.

Although the tests were flown by piloted planes, the system is designed primarily for use on missiles such as the subsonic cruise armed decoy (SCAD) and pilotless reconnaissance aircraft.

PROGRAM MANAGER Donald E. LeBlond of Boeing's Research and Engineering Division explained that terrain correlation supplements the flight vehicle's inertial navigation system.

The navigation system, using airplane speed and direction to provide guidance, can automatically guide an aircraft from city to city, but it lacks the pinpoint precision often required for manned and unmanned special missions.

A computer aboard the flight vehicle stores terrain profiles of pre-selected areas, each several miles in length and breadth.

When the missile or aircraft arrives over one of these areas by inertial navigation, the stored information is automatically checked against the terrain measurements made by the craft's radar altimeter at this point.

Hijackings

Tough security measures established by airlines have virtually stopped them

by DIANE STEFANOS

Hijacking used to be a common occurrence, but it isn't anymore — at least on domestic flights in the United States.

Not one hijacking has occurred in the United States since the first of this year when domestic airlines adopted security systems to meet two recent Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) regulations.

On Jan. 5 the FAA required that all carry-on baggage brought by passengers on domestic flights be visually inspected in some manner. On Feb. 5 the FAA required that a law enforcement officer be present at boarding areas of all domestic flights to insure and guard over the search of carry-on luggage and customers.

"This means of security which is being implemented now is the most effective we've had. In fact, I would say it is absolutely effective, since we have had no hijackings since the beginning of the year," said Neil Callahan of the FAA regional office.

ALTHOUGH NUMEROUS efforts had been made in past years, such as the sky marshals and the behavioral observance programs, they all proved to be not entirely successful.

Most major airlines at O'Hare are now utilizing magnetometers to check passengers and anyone entering boarding gate areas for weapons.

A magnetometer is an egg-shaped metal-detecting device through which people walk. In only seconds, a buzzer is sounded if the person passing through the detector has any large amount of concentrated metal on him.

After the buzzer is sounded, the person is asked to remove any large pieces of jewelry or metal from his pockets and is again cleared through the magnetometer.

CARRY-ON LUGGAGE, purses and other items carried by persons entering boarding gate areas are either searched by hand or passed through an X-ray machine. The machine visually detects any weapons that may be concealed in the luggage and exposes them on an X-ray machine screen.

If a person is found to be carrying an illegal weapon that is not licensed, he is arrested, and the weapon is confiscated by Chicago police officers or FAA agents who are always present at the security check points of any airline.

"People know better than to try to bring weapons through these security systems anymore. They're just too effective. There's no way we can miss any weapons or explosives carried on a person passing through one of these systems or a piece of luggage carried on through an X-ray machine or searched by hand," said Steve Steers, passenger services manager at O'Hare for United Air Lines.

Although Chicago police officers working with most major domestic airlines at O'Hare have apprehended persons carrying illegal arms through security systems, no serious instances have occurred since January.

MOST SECURITY systems, using magnetometers or the X-ray machine for luggage, have become permanent fixtures in lobbies and entranceways to boarding areas of major domestic airlines.

Steers explained, "The safety of any airline's passengers is the most important thing. 'We've been able to control hijackings effectively this way and we're going to keep it that way.' Anyone, whether they are a ticketed passenger or not, passing into our boarding and gate area, must be screened through this security system, employees included."

The security check point is set in a logical progression for the 21,000 people the security system will screen in a peak 24-hour period. Screening 15 persons a minute, using both the magnetometer and X-ray machine, most airlines can quickly and effectively accommodate their bulk passenger loads, Steers said.

SIMILAR SECURITY systems are used in all major airports in the United States. The airlines servicing smaller airports and cities provide a security check in a less mechanized way. Hand checks are run on all carry-on luggage.

"I would bet that our security systems set up here at O'Hare are the newest, the largest and the fastest," said Steers.

"We've taken away switchblades, fishing knives and anything that is four inches long or more. Those weapons that are licensed we box and give to the pilot of the plane who decides to either place it in his cockpit during the flight or send it through with the rest of the baggage," said a security guard at one of the terminals.

"Of course we're very pleased with the way this system has served so effectively," Callahan said. "The FAA officials at the airport monitor the systems to make sure they are working efficiently. Our prime responsibility is to insure air safety and with the continued work of the airlines, we will continue to do this," he said.

Rd. maintenance program begins on city streets

The 1973 Street Maintenance Program is under way in Des Plaines. Arrow Road Construction Co., Mount Prospect was awarded the $152,000 to repair curbs and gutters and resurface or seal coat 57 streets.

Seal coating, which will be done on mostly First Ward streets, began yesterday. Seal coating is done on unimproved streets — usually gravel streets covered with tar, according to Ellis Peri, assistant city engineer. The contractor will seal the cracks, coat the street with a liquid containing stone chips and then roll the street.

About an inch of asphalt will be added to resurface streets. "We try to give the street ridability as well as structural strength," said Peri.

Money for the maintenance program comes from motor fuel tax funds, according to Peri. The work should be completed by Oct. 1.

CURB AND GUTTER work begins today. Resurfacing will follow the curb and gutter repairs.

The following streets will be resurfaced: Prairie Avenue from the dead end to Wolf Road; Greenview Avenue from Prairie to Wolf; Rose from Fifth to the cul-de-sac; Sixth Avenue from Prairie to Greenview; Orchard Court; Fourth Avenue from Thacker Street to North Avenue; Webster Lane from Algonquin Road to Thacker; Earl Avenue from Forest to Algonquin; Third Avenue from Wayne to Algonquin; Wayne from Earl to Webster; Dennis Place from Forest to Webster; Carol Lane from Forest to the dead end; Webster Lane from Carol to Algonquin; Van Buren from Lee to Margaret; Jeanette from Forest to Van Buren; Forest from Lee Street to Margaret and from Margaret to Carol; Koehler Drive from Howard to Irwin; Magnolia from Touhy Avenue to Jarvis; Hickory from Touhy to Chase; Chase from Scott to River Road; Jarvis from Magnolia to Cedar.

Fargo from Maple to Cedar and from Cedar to River Road; Bennett Place from Locust to River; Prospect Avenue from Lee to Mannheim Road; Everett from Spruce to Mannheim; Pine Street from Prospect to Everett; Chestnut from Fargo to Howard; Dover Drive from Marshall to Pennsylvania; Village Court from Northwest Highway to Drake; Walkild Drive from Fifth to where it ends; Polynesian Drive from Fourth to where it ends; Graceland Avenue from Willow to Rand Road; Lyman from Dempster Street to Prairie.

CAMPBELL FROM River to its east end; Maple from Oakton to Wicke; Walnut Avenue from Third to Webster and from Webster to Second; Pennsylvania from Oakton to Algonquin; Marshall Drive from Millers Road to Thacker and from Millers to Dulles; and Stockton from Koehler to Shepherd.

Seal coating will be done on Hawthorne Lane from Rand to Big Bend Drive; Church Street from Bellaire to Potter; Good Avenue from Ballard to Church; and from Church to University; Edward Court from Rita Road to Church; Rita from Lyman to Good; Suffield Street from Good to Potter; Ironwood Drive from Suffield to the end of the street.

Lyman from Prairie to Seminary; Lyman from Ballard to 490 N. Church; University from Good to Potter; Seminary from Lyman to Potter; Prairie from Lyman to Potter and Woodland from River to the Des Plaines River.

Vandalism

It's happening more and more in the Northwest suburbs...

the value of another person's property," he said. "The other two learned nothing."

Tarver said he uses one of several methods in dealing with apprehended vandals. He may put the youth under station supervision whereby Tarver would keep in touch with parents and hold periodic conferences with the youth. "It's important that they have someone to talk to."

He may also encourage parents to impose curfews on their youngster for a period of time. He may refer the youth to a counseling agency at school or to an organization such as Campus Life in Arlington Heights.

According to Bruce Dart, director of Campus Life youth guidance, youngsters referred to campus life participate in a summer camp program where they engage in sports and club activities and participate in "rap" sessions where adolescent attitudes and values are discussed.

"We also try to get a verbal commitment from them to join in a year-round club session because it's important they have a sense of belonging to a group and that they know somebody cares," Dart said.

TARVER SAID it is hard to determine how he would deal with a particular vandalism case. "Sometimes a station conference with parents is enough, other times we get repeaters and they have to be sent to court, it all depends on the individual youth."

The individual and his behavior is a specialty to Dr. Robert Willford, executive director of the Forest Hospital Postgraduate Center in Des Plaines.

He sees some vandalism-prone youths acting out in what he calls a "destructive life script."

"IF PARENTS give their kids objects rather than the love and attention they need, the destructive life script can be learned at a very early age," he said. As time goes by, the youngster begins to resent the objects given to him by his parents to pacify him when he seeks love, he continued.

"He hates the object standing between him and his parents which is a factor in learning disrespect for property because he wants to destroy the 'thing,'" Willford said.

Destructive life scripts, according to Willford, can also be influenced by the way an adolescent views himself. "If a kid thinks he's not OK but others are, he may resort to vandalism and let himself be seen by others, destroying himself in the process."

A youth may also vandalize, said Willford "because he thinks he's not OK but neither is anyone else and just may want to destroy everything."

"This kid is different from the one who focuses his vandalism on a certain person or thing as a form of displaced anger."

"Everyone has a life script," he said. "It's just a matter of whether it's destructive or non-destructive."

DESTRUCTIVE TENDENCIES can be channeled into useful purposes, according to Willford. "Kids who are vandals may turn out to be excellent highway workers. In tearing something down to make room for the highway, he can vandalize all he wants and it's for a useful purpose."

One solution strategy to the problem, said Willford, would be to find out what kind of payoff or benefit a kid receives from vandalism and help him learn how he can get the same thing from a different type of behavior.

"If a youth were able to gain recognition from another form of behavior, chances are he wouldn't need to vandalize."

"Everyone a child meets contributes to his values in one way or another but it seems no one wants to accept responsibility for the transmission of those values," Willford said.

He calls society's viewpoint toward the vandal "myopic" adding "too few people recognize the complexity of the problem. There's too much of a tendency to eliminate the symptoms and not deal with the cause."

"It will probably take an epidemic to motivate people to understand."

Galena: comeback for a historic town

by JOE SWICKARD

GALENA, ILL. — Tucked in the extreme northwest corner of the state, this small community owes its history and attraction to it being by-passed by the forces of nature and history.

When the last glaciers planned North America, Jo Daviess County was left untouched. While Illinois was being plowed into the prairie state, the area surrounding Galena was left with nobtop hills, bluffs and cliffs rich in lead sulphide (galena).

White settlers came to mine the lead. A boom town with a difference grew along the hill sides and banks of the Fever River. This was not a shanty mining town typical to the frontier. Substantial brick and stone homes in classical styling were built to attest to Galena's prosper-perity and importance as the lead capital of the mid-19th century world.

The mines played out and the hills that nurtured Galena now cut it off from change.

THE DE SOTO House Hotel, built in 1855, is representative of the changes in the town since its boom days. Once called the "largest and grandest hotel in the West," its long neglected grandeur is making a comeback through the sweat and imagination of Judy and Jim Clayton.

The Claytons, formerly of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect, accepted the challenge of restoring the hotel and made the task something personal.

Two years ago, they tired of the congestion of the urban sprawl and the resulting conflicts with the crowds.

"It seemed there was always some one else wanting to do the same thing you were," said Jim, a former advertising salesman. "I would travel to New York frequently and if you wanted a cab or something like that it seemed you had to fight somebody for it. Chicago wasn't that bad, but since we've come here the contrast between the two lives stands right out."

Judy said the first longings came about after visiting a restored hotel in Colorado. "Jim saw an ad for this hotel in the Wall Street Journal. No, we'd never seen it. Oh, I had been here once before as a child but it wasn't really within my memory. Jim had never been here. But, we thought it was the time to move."

THE CLAYTONS packed up their three children and headed for an entirely new life. Not only were they lacking in experience of hotel, restaurant and bar management, they faced a restoration task of the first magnitude.

Previous owners of the hotel had let the furnishings and decorations deteriorate. A fine example of 19th century embossed metal ceiling was covered with layers of house paint. Chandeliers were removed and replaced with fluorescent tubes.

The Claytons made up for the lack of experience with enthusiasm and energy. The ceiling once again represents the past wealth of the hotel. Jim and Judy found period fixtures where they could. The lobby now beckons visitors to stay with history.

"The wallpaper is hand blocked right here in Galena. The pattern is authentic. I couldn't find anyone who would hang it, so I had to do it myself. The longest drop is 22 feet," said Jim.

Gen. Grant used the De Soto House as headquarters for his 1868 presidential campaign. The rooms used by the General and his cronies have been long since divided into smaller units. However, some of the furnishings remain.

"He had some rooms here where he could sleep it off after a night of conferring with aides," Jim said.

LINCOLN once spoke from the hotel balcony. The balcony and the two original top floors of the hotel have been removed.

"As things around here declined, the hotel was changed. The roof was raised and the top stories were taken down. The balcony is long gone. We heard once it was on a farm near Freeport, but we couldn't find it," he said.

The Claytons also suspect the hotel may have been 37 feet longer. Early maps of the city show the hotel extending into space presently occupied by two stores. The dimensions of rooms and supporting pillar placement give credence to the theory.

The Claytons have opened a restaurant and bar in two rooms off the lobby. The fare is good and reasonably priced. Homemade soups are an unexpected treat on the menu. The bar features a local beer of more than mean qualities.

GALENA is made for a walking tour and the hotel's central locale lends itself to starting and terminal point. A stroll up Main Street is a tour of antique shops and fine examples of period architecture. The sale of antiques and "collec-

Galena only 150 miles

Galena is about 150 miles from the Northwest suburbs by way of I-90 and U.S. Rte. 20 west.

Although there are three Rte. 20 exits, one should leave the tollroad at the first exit, near Union, Ill. The drive through Ridott, Stockton and Elizabeth prepares one for Galena. The passage is through a territory of round stone silos and small cemeteries outside such settlements as Coral and Garden Prairie.

The road winds among the hills and then descends toward Galena. It crosses Small Fox Creek and heads toward the Fever River, renamed to the Galena River almost 150 years ago to improve the town's image.

The road drops into Galena, past the signs for the post war home of President Grant. Cross the bridge and turn right onto Main Street. Go through the high earthen levee and massive steel flood gates and you are there.

Main Street is called the "Wall." It weaves a miniature canyon of brick stores flush to each other and the bluffs behind them. Faded and peeling wall advertisements hawk Bull Durham tobacco by the pouch and long forgotten cigars.

You are in Galena, a living monument to the instant wealth torn from the earth 100 years ago.

RESTORATION of the older homes and buildings is the character of the River Style of architecture, common throughout the town. Care is taken to preserve tibles" is a major commercial activity of the town.

Long, steep stairs lead to the residential streets to the west of Main Street. Prospect and High streets give a sweeping view of the town and the surrounding wooded hills. The old homes give the visitor a capsule economic history of the town. Some houses and buildings, such as the Feehan Hall, show the prolonged economic depression of the area. Other homes and structures reflect extreme care shown by owners in maintaining or restoring their ornate beauty.

The terrain influenced the design of the buildings. The steep bluffs forced buildings to have their front and rear entrances several stories apart. Gangways lead to the top floor in the rear, while the lower stories exit onto stairways leading to ravines. The ravines lead to alleys which come out at street level in the front.

RESTORATION is extensive throughout the town. Any work in the older sections must comply with a historic preservation ordinance.

Showplace and curio that it is, Galena is still very much a living town. "We have an awareness of history here. You don't have to drive 1,000 miles to find it. It's similar to Williamsburg but more real because people actually live here," Jim said.

The population reached a peak of 15,000 about 1850. It declined to 3,900 in 1970, but the Claytons believe it is starting to climb again. They point to a growing colony of artists and craftsmen as proof of the new spirit.

Galena is a showcase, but it is still a living small town. The circus came to town last weekend. The citizens turned out to watch the show from the elephant hoisting the big top to final striking of the canvas.

Galena is milieu: a total setting and environment. People still turn out to see a four-ton, blood sweating hippo. They work and care for the town as a living being, not just a collection of structures.

It's a town where two people, a handyman and boy who lied about his age, will go with the circus when it leaves town.

THE DeSOTO HOUSE lobby was restored by the Claytons. The wallpaper, hand blocked in Galena, was hung by Jim Clayton, with no previous experience. The formal stairs will soon receive a red-carpet treatment.

Oil fever in East Africa

by RAY WILKINSON

NAIROBI (UPI) — Oil fever has struck East Africa.

With the world energy crisis becoming ever more acute, Western oil companies are taking another look at countries clustered around the Horn of Africa on the Indian Ocean.

Kenya recently signed its eighth oil exploration agreement, the latest with the Canadian company Wainoco Inc. Natural Resources Minister William Odongo Omamo remarked: "The search for oil and gas in the area is heating up."

Neighboring Ethiopia signed similar agreements earlier this year with two American companies — Louisiana Land and Exploration of New Orleans and Whitestone International of Texas.

The Sudan News Agency reported natural gas had been found in that country's Eastern Territory bordering on the Red Sea and added "there are high hopes" for the discovery of oil.

This sudden potential bonanza, however, has sparked a major political row in the area, according to some diplomatic reports.

SOMALIA RECENTLY revived old claims to Ethiopia's Ogaden region, and these reports suggest that it was partly because natural gas had been discovered there.

The giant Anglo-Dutch conglomerate Shell-BP has spent $30 million prospecting for oil in Kenya since 1954 but found nothing.

Other companies are willing to take a

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Jean (Donald) Anderson of Rolling Meadows; three grandchildren, and a sister, Mrs. Frances Letto of Winfield, Ill. She was preceded in death by her husband, Eugene L.

Joseph Schultz Sr.

Joseph R. Schultz Sr., 70, of 133 N. Warrington Rd., Des Plaines, was pronounced dead on arrival yesterday morning in Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines. He was born April 17, 1903, in Chicago.

Visitation is today from 3 to 9 p.m. in Oehler Funeral Home, Lee and Perry streets, Des Plaines, where funeral services will be held at 1 p.m. tomorrow. Interment will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

Surviving are his widow, Edna M.; a son, Joseph R. Jr. and daughter-in-law, Doris Schultz of Rolling Meadows; three grandchildren; brother, Philip Schultz of Port Charlotte, Fla., and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Beulich of Chicago, and Mrs. Helen Mueller of Arlington Heights.

Mr. Schultz was a retired maintenance engineer for Searle (Pharmaceutical) Co.

second look because of the runaway world demand for petroleum and the unpredictability of such traditional suppliers as Libya under Col. Moammar Khadafi.

In addition to Wainoco, other companies prospecting in Kenya's arid northeastern and coast provinces are:

Superior Oil Ltd. of Calgary, Canada; Louisiana Land; Whitestone; Total Oil Exploration, a subsidiary of Compagnie Francaise des Petroles; Chevron Oil Company of Kenya, a subsidiary of Standard Oil of California; Adobe International U.S., which is in partnership with Burmah Oil of Britain; and Cities Service of New York.

"The companies are encouraged by the prospectiveness of the area," Daniel G. McCook, president of Whitestone said, "but little is known at this stage of actual geological conditions and a substantial investment in technical effort will be required to learn if the area contains any commercial oil deposits."

Our Interest Is For You

Now—a new law to help YOU stamp out noise pollution

by ANNE SLAVICEK

If your neighbor insists on running his lawnmower without a muffler and the industrial plant down the street rattles the dishes off your shelves, you can do more than bury your head under a pillow and pray for quiet.

There's a new law in Cook County which sets limits on how noisy anything can be.

The Cook County Department of Environmental Control — enforcer of the new law — is focusing its crackdown on noisy industrial plants.

Citizens who want to join the battle against noise pollution can file complaints with the department, according to Robert Soudan who is in charge of enforcing the new county law.

Since enforcement of the new ordinance got underway this spring the county has gone to court on about eight noise cases and won every case, Soudan said. But a much larger number of noise complaints has been settled voluntarily without court action, he said.

ONE WEST suburban firm ended up thanking the county for enforcing its noise ordinance because overly noisy air pollution control equipment on a plant roof would have needed costly repairs if a noise investigation hadn't revealed a bearing that was burning out, Soudan said.

Owners of an Arlington Heights industrial plant even called Soudan and asked to have the plant checked to see if it met the new ordinance, he said, although he admitted he was mystified as to how the firm even knew about the new county noise law.

Although most of the enforcement of the new ordinance this summer has been against industrial plants, Soudan said, the county is currently involved in a lawsuit against an auto race track in the western suburbs.

Soudan was unable to give an example of a specific case in the Northwest suburbs so far this year. "Noise pollution up there is relatively light compared to some areas of the county. There have been very few complaints from the Northwest suburban area to date," Soudan said.

The county ordinance excludes noise from airplanes landing and taking off at O'Hare Field and smaller airports, he notes, which is one area of noise pollution which has met vocal opposition from Northwest suburban residents. Federal Environmental Protection Agency and Federal Aviation Administration regulations on airplane noise preempt any county jurisdiction, he explains.

OTHER AREAS OF enforcement of the new county law have included tickets issued to operators of gravel pits for violations of vibration provisions of the new county ordinance, he said.

Besides responding to citizen complaints about noise, the environmental control department also has nine squad cars patrolling suburban Cook County to find noise and air pollution, Soudan said. Approximately half the tickets issued result from violations discovered by an inspector on patrol, he said.

On an average day three or four inspectors in squad cars are patrolling the area of Cook County north of Devon Avenue from Lake Michigan east to Elgin, he said, admitting that inspectors are instructed to concentrate efforts on areas with the highest pollution levels including industrial areas and densely populated residential neighborhoods.

Four of nine squad cars used by the 15 county inspectors are radio equipped so they can be dispatched to an area on a complaint. The cars are also equipped with portable precision sound level meters to check violations of the noise law.

Additional equipment is on order. Soudan explains one advantage the county has over villages trying to fight noise pollution in court is that the county's equipment has been accepted as standard by county courts. Cases brought under the new ordinance are heard in a civic center courtroom during a special court call set up just for pollution cases.

EVEN THOUGH the county has been concentrating on heavy industry, Soudan sees the department expanding into areas such as noise pollution from cars and trucks, unnecessary sounding of car horns, and noisy snowmobiles, dune buggies and minibikes. The enforcement will more often be against manufacturers than users of vehicles, lawn mowers, motor boats and farm machinery, however, Soudan said.

The county noise ordinance also bans scavenger services from collecting refuse in residential areas before 7 a.m. or after 6 p.m., but Soudan said there have been no complaints yet about scavenger services violating the ordinance.

Other sections of the law also put restrictions on noise levels by the time of day and by the proximity to residential neighborhoods.

For unique situations which annoy citizens the ordinance also has a section prohibiting any distinct and loudly audible noise caused by crying, shouting or calling, or from any "whistle, rattle, bell, gong, clapper, hammer drum, horn, hand-organ, mechanically operated piano, musical instruments, radio, phonograph, sound amplifying equipment or similar electronic devices."

Soudan points out that the county has no intention of using the law to stop holiday parades or public performances. "There are some situations in which noise is an intrinsic part of the event," he said.

SOUDAN SAYS he expects few problems in enforcing the new law. The county departments successes in enforcing the county air pollution law have resulted in Cook County "having just about the cleanest air of any industrial county in the U.S.," he said, predicting that within 10 years manufacturing changes will have virtually eliminated the problem of noise pollution as well.

"We're phasing ourselves out of business," Soudan says with a smile. But he says on the horizon are other areas of pollution control enforcement to tackle including problems with solid waste disposal.

In the meantime, however, Soudan and his inspectors are looking for noise pollution sources on their own and not waiting for complaints from municipalities and individual citizens. He said he hoped most residents aren't like one woman who lived for five years with her home vibrating because of improperly mounted motors in a dry cleaning plant down the street. "She said she never called the company to complain because 'it was such a large company I didn't want to say anything,'" Soudan recounted.

Here's how to silence 'em

If loud noises are assailing your eardrums, the Cook County Department of Environmental Control wants to hear about it.

Complaints about sources of noise pollution can be made by telephoning the department at 443-7655.

Robert Soudan of the department promises that a county inspector will be sent out to investigate the complaint the same day in most cases. Inspectors will also investigate noise pollution complaints that occur on weekends or at night, Soudan said.

For citizens who "don't want to get involved" the department will accept complaints anonymously instead of listing the name of the person who complained.

Information necessary for the department to follow up on your complaint includes the name of the person or company causing the noise, the address, the town, the time of day when the noise or vibration is worst and a description of what the noise sounds like.

Citizens who want additional information on the noise ordinance can request a copy of the department's brochure, "Let's Cool the Noise."

Caution needed in pipeline OK

It is distressing to witness the speed with which Congress is trying to clear the way for the proposed Alaska oil pipeline.

Especially distressing was the timing of the most recent major move on behalf of the pipeline: the Senate passage of legislation clearing the way for the huge 789-mile conduit.

By unfortunate coincidence, that action came the same day the Federal Trade Commission gave substance to a cry that's been growing during the current "energy crisis": that Big Oil, with the help of the government, has been running things its own way, with all the little guys in the country taking it on the chin as a result.

The FTC said the eight largest American oil companies have for a quarter of a century been engaged in a pattern of anti-competitive refining and marketing practices. The FTC, after two years of research on the oil situation, concluded this kind of monopolistic practice has produced fat profits for the oil companies, higher prices for the motorist, a crippling blow to the independent stations and — at least in part — the current gasoline shortage.

All of that is what Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., has been saying — sometimes as the lone prominent voice — and with the added suggestion that the Justice Department has been ignoring the whole situation.

Nevertheless, the Senate — with haste and with Vice Pres. Spiro Agnew casting the deciding vote in a tie situation — moved ahead with legislation that would override lawsuits and federal court barriers that have halted the pipeline until environmental questions are settled. The House Interior Committee is now completing action on the same bill, with full House accord expected shortly.

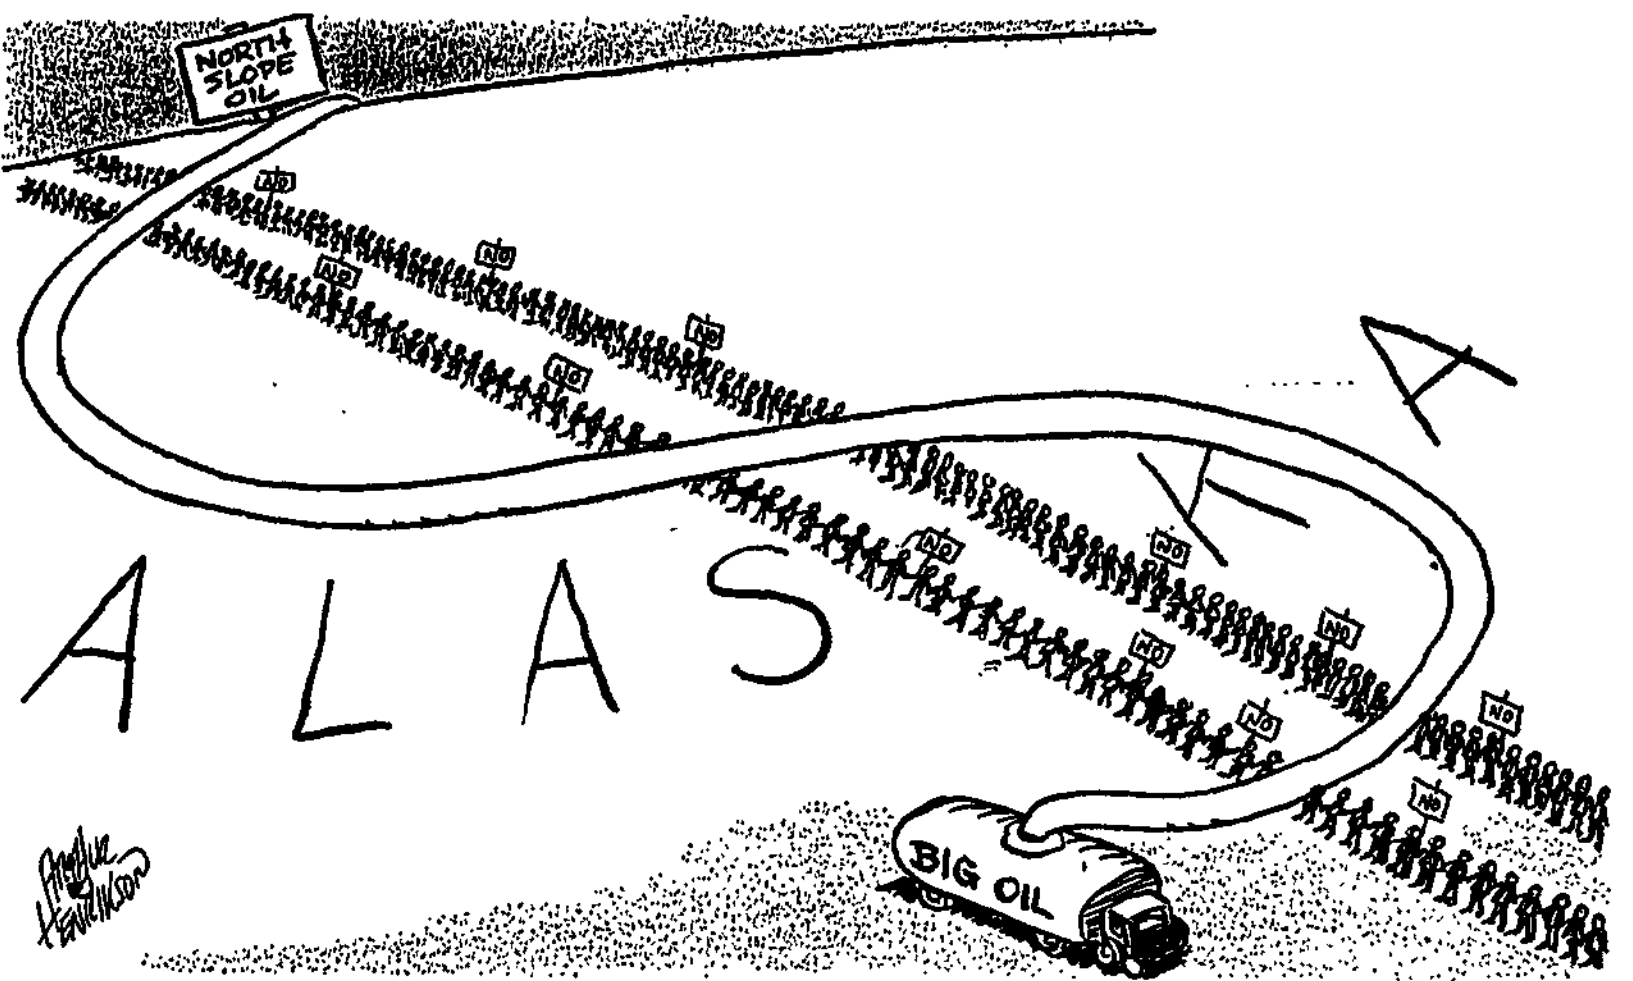

The Congressional maneuver is remarkable in that it does seek to countermand court action — a situation that obviously may invite more lawsuits.

The central issue is that Congress is moving too fast to grant another concession to the oil industry at a time when enormous questions — underscored by the FTC — remain unanswered.

The public has a right to know with certainty to what extent the oil industry may have rigged the current fuel shortage, to what extent that's been designed to further drive prices up and competition out, and — by pressure of a shortage — what ends the oil companies would hope to reap as a result.

The FTC's report is a welcome one, but the only warning cry from within government. We ought to expect more from the Nixon administration and Congress before Big Oil gets even more its own way at the expense of us all.

Questioning the leader's 'truth'

Sam J. Ervin

Democratic nations care but little for what has been, but they are haunted by visions of what will be; in this direction their unbounded imagination grows and dilates beyond all measure.

—Alexis de Toqueville, 1840.

For the better part of what has become the first year since that ugly word became part of our vocabulary, too few of us cared what might have been.

But today it is all but impossible for all but the most dedicated of Nixon loyalists not to be haunted by visions of what will be.

The unbounded imagination, growing and dilating beyond all measure, has neither bounds, nor direction.

Will we, finally and for the second time in the history of the nation, be led by an inflexible President to an impeachment proceeding?

Six months ago that was all but unthinkable.

WILL WE ACCEDE to a principle that an elected President is accountable in his political activities neither to the Congress, the courts, or the people?

It is impossible to imagine that position as the view of the founding fathers of what would be in this Republic.

Yet these seem to be the alternatives which are looming before us.

By his intransigence in refusing to assist the Congress in discovering the truth about Watergate, President Nixon seems to have taken the position that the Truth shall be what the President declares it to be, and the Congress shall not dispute it.

The only logical sequitur to that is that neither shall the President's Truth be examined in the nation's courts.

That is the position that Richard Milhous Nixon has assumed. And in the awesome office which he holds, it begins to become apparent that the only thing which might shake him from it is an outraged — not just resentful, but outraged — public and Congress.

THERE WAS in the eloquent response of Sen. Sam Irvin to the President's refusal to deliver "the tapes" the first glimmering of a loss of patience. And it is easy to get the distinct impression that when that "old country lawyer" finally loses patience, there might be hell to pay.

It is equally difficult to doubt his sincerity when he said, "I love my country. I venerate the office of the President, and I have the best wishes for the success of the present incumbent of that office..."

So, I believe, do we all. But success for a leader can only be achieved if those who follow have faith in him — or if, through strict regimentation, they do not question the Leader's Truth.

THE PEOPLE, the Congress and the courts have waited one year and 39 days to hear the Truth about burglaries, wiretapping, perjury and payoffs in the White House.

The truth, we are told, is locked in a vault in the White House, and only the President can unlock that vault.

If he does not, the country will remain haunted by visions of what has been, and what will be.

Everybody's sucker

by PAUL R. ALLERUP

Did you ever get the feeling you've suddenly landed on "a list"?

Discretion forbears use of the term "sucker list."

Such a feeling grips me.

My mail has taken a most surprising turn in recent days. Surprising because whatever list I've landed on, someone seems to think I'm either loaded or soft in the head.

IT STARTED with an "invitation" to inspect a private two-jet airplane, just the thing for the busy executive who can't be bothered riding the airlines.

That could happen to anyone, one supposes. But then arrived still another invitation, this one to join "a select new community" in Florida where a home was waiting for me for as little as $94,500, or up to $195,000 if I needed a bit more room.

In a matter of days I was offered other homes in various places around the country, all of them seemingly in the $90,000-$200,000 category. One letter also spoke of a little chalet in Switzerland that could be mine for "about" $250,000.

MY MOST distinguished mailed invitation — these things all seemed to be "invitations" — came from His Grace, The Duke of Leinster, in Sussex, England. He wanted to sell me title to 25 square feet in Anderita Park in Sussex, where Julius Caesar fought and William the Conqueror landed, for $675. Just think, wrote His Grace: "Julius Caesar. William the Conqueror. And You."

Then there have been the letters from brokers starting, "If you have $50,000 or more to invest..."

I wonder who got how much for selling my name to these entrepreneurs? He's the smart one! (UPI)

Letters to the fence post

Expose of Wheeling corruption no surprise

Candidates and supporters of the Wheeling Independent Party are gratified to see the recent Herald articles which support the disclosures made by WHIP throughout the past year. While presenting a positive platform, WHIP also aimed its campaign efforts toward alerting the people to the political corruption eating away at the village. We worked through personal contact, printed literature, and the press. Many of the questions raised during the campaign, and pointedly left unanswered by the administration and TOP candidates, are now being asked by the F.B.I., the Internal Revenue Service, and the U.S. Attorney's Office.

Trustee Hein has asked that accusations and aspersions concerning village officials stop. It is interesting to note that Mr. Hein does not speak of innocence, but only that there is "no proof of guilt." Ordinary citizens may lack the time and resources to prove what they know to be true. We trust that the governmental agencies and the newspapers, with the support of the people, can provide us with the proven facts of Wheeling politics.

ALTHOUGH MR. Hein complains of innuendo and aspersions, what is being heard are not sly insinuations, as he suggests, but hard questions based on fact.

WHIP wanted to put an end to conflict of interest and special interest zoning. Now the U.S. Attorney's Office is "seeking to establish evidence of extortion by public officials of moneys from citizens." (payoffs by developers for desired zoning, June, 1973). Former zoning board Chairman Douglas Cargill's involvement and financial gain in the Strong Street zoning is a fact proven in court.

Open letter to Mayor Behrel: The July 18 Herald brought the sad news that Superblock was approved by the city council. Sadder still was your remark that "You can tell the amateurs from the professionals" in the council. I assume you mean that the professionals are the ones who voted with you for it, and the amateurs are the ones who voted to first iron out some of the accompanying difficulties before passing it.

Mr. Mayor, you are now in your fifth term. What was your experience before being elected? Were you ever an amateur?

Prior to the April 17 elections, WHIP circulated literature asking, "WHO AND WHY? Thousands of dollars have been spent by our opponents in a desperate attempt to stay in power. WHO put up this fat warchest? How do they expect to get this money back?" Now, in mid-July, The Herald is still trying to obtain a report on the campaign finances of TOP, a report the campaign manager, and former trustee, Michael Valenza, stated would be available by the beginning of

May. The thousands of dollars spent by TOP are a fact. WHIP repeatedly cried out against the influence on the administration of outsider, James Stavros. Now, Herald reporters "investigating suspected political corruption" in Wheeling, state that Mr. Stavros remains "the most powerful force in Wheeling politics, government, and business." (June 29, 1973) Mr. Stavros' election day activity in Wheeling is a fact.

telligence of the average voter by suggesting these were loaded questions, as if they would never have occurred to us had we not seen them in writing. I would say anyone NOT canvassed by its alderman should think twice before casting a vote for him next election because he is voting for himself, not for the people he purports to represent!!

It will be interesting and expensive to see what happens when Superblock and its accompanying congestion become realities. We may have the biggest White Elephant of all time.

Politicians are 'ignoring' people

In my 25 years of living in Palatine, I have never written a letter to the newspaper. But I feel what is happening in our village cannot go unanswered.

I voted Republican in the village election because I thought the candidates meant what they said about improving Palatine. However, I find I have been deceived along with many others and like most politicians they are ignoring the people and using their office for political purposes.

Since being elected to office they have done little that I agree with and now this latest act of making Police Chief Robert Centner resign is the most shameful of all. Mr. Centner has been a concerned dedicated police chief who has built a fine department in the last 11 years. I have heard nothing but praise for our police department which is a credit to his ability. Why are these men who promised to bring government closer to the people ignoring the requests and petitions for a public hearing so that Mr. Centner can vindicate himself from charges that have been made? If they are so sure of their position, why have they denied his request for a public hearing? Mr. Centner's career, reputation and family are being scarred by their actions. Their reasons for denial at the July 2 village board meeting showed more concern for their own position than his.

Again, in view of their actions I regret having voted Republican. Watergate is bad enough but that's in Washington. What is happening now is in my home, and I object to it.

Carnival suggestions appreciated

I read with interest Mr. and Mrs. David Brossetts' letter concerning the trash situation at the Jaycee Carnival and the Lions Club 4th of July celebration.

Speaking for the Elk Grove Jaycees, we felt the Brossetts have made a very valid point which will definitely be considered when planning for next year's carnival begins. It appears two changes could have easily resolved the problem this year. First, more cans for trash should have been available on the grounds and, second, those cans that were there should have been emptied more often than they were.

I did want to clarify one point raised by the Brossetts. The village will not issue a permit for any function of this type unless one of the conditions is that all clean-up is to be handled by the organization sponsoring the event. In the case of our carnival, the grounds were picked up each night by the Jaycees. At the end of the event, the Jaycees thoroughly cleaned up the grounds including the use of power vacuums to pick up the smaller items of debris.

On behalf of the Jaycees, I can say we appreciate the Brossetts' suggestions for the improvement of our carnival as well as their attendance at this year's event. We look forward to their participation in next year's Jaycee Carnival.

Business Today

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK — A chain of donut shops is grabbing off some of the better locations given up by gasoline stations forced out of business by the fuel shortage.

And the prestigious Bankers Trust Co. in New York has put three minibranches in tiny shops abandoned by the Ebinger bakery chain in Brooklyn.

All of which seems to be proof of that old saw: one business's grief is usually another's good fortune.

RICHARD A. NIGLIO, former all-Ivy League halfback at Yale who heads the Mister Donut division of International Multifoods Corp., saw the opportunity to get choice locations for franchisees when the fuel shortage closed gas stations.

"We obtained a dozen of these locations and probably will get some more," he said.

"It's relatively easy to remodel a gas station in a good location into a donut shop. It's the right size, has the proper parking facilities and isn't too fancy, not too much to rip out," Niglio said. "In most cases, the landowner is left holding the bag when a station closes. The station operator usually is a mechanic who doesn't have too much trouble finding a job in a garage. We can make the landowner an attractive deal and find a franchisee to operate the donut shop."

SWITCHING THE three tiny Brooklyn shops from selling bread and cake to cashing checks and making loans has a more subtle and varied rationale.

President Alfred Brittain III of Bankers Trust said the bank has discovered that people increasingly want to bank close to home. It's necessary to provide these services even in neighborhoods that won't support a full-sized metropolitan branch with 14 or more employees.

Fairly complete services are given in the minibranches. Use of identification cards with the depositor's photograph laminated in them makes this possible. Even personal loans can be arranged in the minibranches.

Mister Donut's Niglio, who took over as head of the company from founder Harry Winokur, came to International Multifoods from Kentucky Fried Chicken Corp. His aim is to build Mister Donut from its present 400 shops to 1,500.

NIGLIO'S FIRST step toward expansion was to slash Mister Donut's basic initial franchise fee from $15,000 to $2,500 for existing franchise holders who want to open additional shops and to $3,500 for a person opening his first Mister Donut shop. "This means I'm going out for the pro who wants to own several franchises rather than the Pop 'n Mom operation envisioned when franchising was young," he said.

It also means that, unlike many other franchising outfits, Mister Donut is not yet seriously interested in buying back successful franchised units.

International Multifoods has around $200 million a year in sales. It handles a variety of packaged foods.

Banker to consumers: let your conscience guide you

by LEA TONKIN

An individual consumer is still the best judge of his own finances, despite the clamoring of professional finance experts for modifications in the family budget. That's the candid opinion of economist Beryl Sprinkel, of the Harris Bank and Trust Co. in Chicago.

"The inflation problem is not runaway, but it's serious," he says. "Each individual should conduct his business accordingly as he thinks best, whether to buy now or to wait until (lending rates are lower.)"

"Not everyone is an economist," he adds. "But everyone is concerned that the income should be high and costs low."

RIGHT NOW, many consumers surveys indicate a less-than-optimistic outlook for the economy. But consumers continue to borrow money at a rapid pace, a suggestion that this pessimism is minimal, Sprinkel says.

Consumers should bone up on a few of the reasons behind rising prices and lower production of food items and other regular purchases, he says.

"We do know the history of food prices, that they go up and they go down according to demand and production," he adds. The government's push to get more land into food production this year, combined with an administration policy of a balanced budget and restricted money supply could lead to hope that food prices will start to come down in mid-1974, he predicts.

He sees a significant move by labor and business officials away from the economic controls camp. "But I don't think this is understood by the consumer," Sprinkel said. "Many consumers indicate they want more controls." The wage and price restrictions imposed in other nations over a period of years offers evidence of the unhappy long-range results: the rate of inflation becomes more serious.

IMPOSED RULES lower incentive to beef up production and investments. This in turn brings fewer goods to the marketplace and causes the upward price spiral, he says.

We might as well accept the fact that we're stuck with inflation problems for a while, he adds. "I am not optimistic about Phase IV having an impact on inflation. . . . It's unfortunate but true that once inflation gets rolling, it takes many months of fundamentals to get the inflation rate down. We're going to be stuck with a 6-7 per cent inflation rate for the balance of this year."

Sprinkel predicts an easing in inflation down to the 3-4 per cent range by the end of this year, but "that's still a lot of inflation," he says. The flexibility of food prices during Phase IV is one means of eventually keeping inflation in line, he says.

Several conditions which occurred in the past year, boosting the rate of inflation, are not likely to recur in the coming year, he adds. These include poor weather conditions, devaluation of the dollar and its effect and the disruption caused by the grain sales to Russia.

Time Industries, Inc.

Record second quarter and six months sales and earnings were announced today by Time Industries, Inc., Chicago-based packaging manufacturer. Earnings for the quarter ended June 30, 1973, were $201,000 or 19 cents a share, up 75 per cent from the $115,000 or 12 cents a share in the second quarter last year. Sales were $6,663,000, a gain of 31 per cent from the $5,084,000 of a year ago. The second quarter results brought six-months earnings to an all-time high of $430,000 or 41 cents a share, an increase of 31 per cent over year ago earnings of $329,000 or 34 cents a share. Sales in the period reached $13,469,000, a 38 per cent gain over the first half of 1972.

All figures have been re-stated to reflect divestitures completed in 1972.

Alberto-Culver Co.

The Alberto-Culver Co. reported nine months sales of $139,375,000, an increase of 6.6 per cent over the figure of $130,736,000 for the corresponding period ended June 30, 1972. Earnings for the fiscal year to date were $3,773,000 against a $3,753,000 total for the first three quarters of 1972. The company's fiscal year ends Sept. 30.

Third quarter sales were $45,783,000, or 4.4 per cent below the same period in 1972. Per share earnings were 26 cents compared with 33 cents in 1972. Dollar figures were $1,232,000 as against $1,559,000 earnings in the 1972 third quarter, down 21.0 per cent.

The board voted the regular quarterly dividend of 8 1/2 cents per share payable Aug. 20 to stockholders of record Aug. 8.

Taxpayers should guard against overwithholding

Millions of taxpayers are receiving an estimated $22 billion of overwithheld income taxes in refunds. Who would dream of advising those lucky beneficiaries to make sure it doesn't happen again? The Illinois Society of Certified Public Accountants, strange as it may seem.

Earl C. Brown, chairman of the taxation committee, says the withholding rates that caused so many taxpayers to be overwithheld in 1972 still apply and that unless preventive steps are taken affected taxpayers will have another windfall next spring.

What's wrong with that? Well, Brown says, the refund isn't really a windfall. The money is the taxpayer's own which could have been banked or invested to earn interest or dividends for 15 months or more.

gestion, apparently, for estimates of the refunds on 1972 incomes range as high as $22 billion dollars. With a booming economy in 1973, the CPAs predict, the amount to be refunded next year could go even higher, with an even greater inflationary effect when these billions of dollars are dumped in a short period into the economy.

So it makes sense for both the taxpayer and the government, Brown says, to claim that extra exemption for withholding purposes. He cautions, however, that this does not mean you automatically get an extra exemption when you make out your income tax next spring. For that, the rules are unchanged.

UNDER THE LAW employees are required to withhold from wage and salary checks an amount calculated to approximate the income tax due on the taxpayer's earnings — a pay as you go principle. This works well for most people.

But the withholding rate causes overwithholding chiefly for persons who are single or, if married, are the only wage earners in their families, and who have sizable itemized deductions.

The Treasury Department has repeatedly urged such taxpayers to correct the overwithholding by filing with their employers an Employee's Withholding Allowance Certificate, which in effect lets them claim more exemptions than they have.

The reverse side of the certificate carries a guide to how many withholding allowances to take, based on expected salary and deductions.

Not enough taxpayers have been following the Treasury Department's sug-

Breeder reactor on its way

Agreements were signed yesterday for development of the nation's first large-scale "breeder" nuclear power plant that could lower the cost of producing electricity and help conserve oil, natural gas and coal supplies.

Signing of the contracts in Chicago marked a pioneering effort among the government, private and public sectors of industry to find a partial solution to the energy and environmental crises.

The three major partners in construction of the $700 million Liquid Metal Fast Breeder Reactor Demonstration Plant, slated for Oak Ridge, Tenn., are the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC), Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago, and the Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA).

More than 300 public, private, municipal and cooperative electric systems across the country are also involved in the project. The Project Management Corp. (PMC), a non-profit corporation, was created to provide coordination for design, construction and operation of the plant. The TVA will buy the electricity and later own the plant.

If the "BREEDER" plant, which has been under study for the past 20 years, is successful it could solve two pressing problems: an increasing appetite for electricity and damage to the environment.

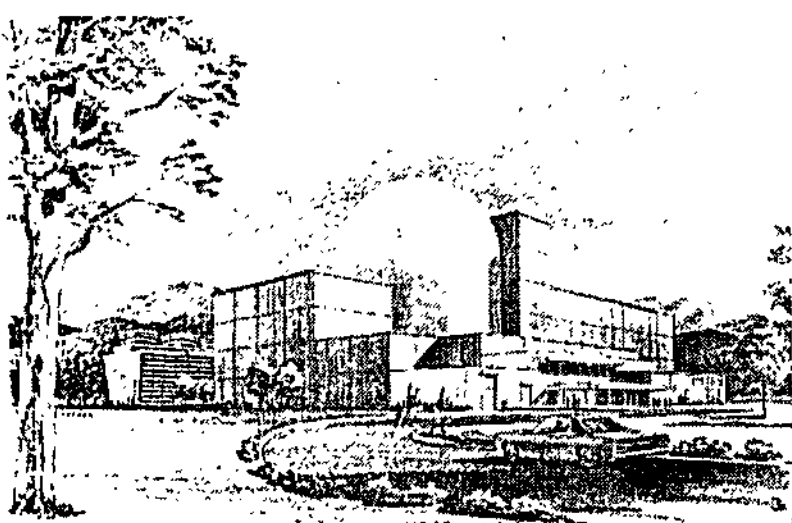

Breeder power plants have the ability to turn out electricity and at the same time produce more nuclear fuel. Instead of using fossil fuels for materials as most electricity-producing plants use today, the breeder reactor uses uranium which is now in abundant supply in the United States.

And since the breeder reactor is a closed system, there is no discharge of water to harm the environment.

"This is the most important new source of energy for which technology is at the point where we can begin to supply it," said Thomas G. Ayers, chairman of the Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago, one of the signers of the agreement.

"URANIUM TODAY is just a throw-away product. I think by the year 2000 we will be building a number of these plants across the country. The breeder offers the best chance to have an environmentally acceptable low cost way of making power."

The Oak Ridge plant is scheduled to be completed by 1980. Also in the plan is a five-year period to study the plant with hopes the breeder can be available for use on utility systems by the late 1980s. During the five years of operation, the partners hope to demonstrate the value and environmental desirability of the breeder reactor and confirm its value for conserving natural resources.

The cost of the project will be shared by government and industry. Electric systems across the country have pledged some $244 million while Commonwealth Edison Co. and the TVA have supplied $2 million each. The AEC will bear the rest of the cost.

THE FORMAL agreements are only a preliminary step in the process of setting the power project into motion. There will still be eight to 12 months of work on an environmental impact statement before actual construction can begin along the Clinch River in Oak Ridge.

Ayers said he didn't think protest by environmental groups would tie up development of the plant. "It is a possibility," he said, "but we hope we will make our case sufficiently before the public, and the courts if we have to, so the project won't be delayed."

Dixy Lee Ray, AEC chairman and also a signer of the agreements, said the most important aspect of the agreement is that it is cooperative.

"This is a cooperative program where the government has joined with public corporations and private business for the good of the public," she said. "There are already breeder plants abroad in the USSR and in England. We have moved slowly because we've tried to involve the public and private sectors. This way they will be informed."

Asked about the safety of the plant,

Miss Ray answered there is always room for improvement.

"There is no such thing as a 100 per cent safe safety valve," she said. "There's always a safety question and we will continue our research on safety as the plant is being built."

Computer didn't
buy his honesty

DALLAS (UPI)—Roger Allen tried for four months to stop a government computer from sending him veterans' benefit checks.

He wrote a four-page letter at one point, explaining he was being paid too much and asking how he could return the excess funds.

All Allen got was more benefit checks. Then he started getting threatening letters to pay the money back, but none of the letters said how much.

Allen went to the Veterans Administration a number of times, trying to get it straightened out.

Finally the U. S. Attorney's office got a letter requesting that Allen be prosecuted for fraud.

Allen got the news fast — he is an assistant U.S. attorney. At that point, the matter was out of the computer's hands and was quickly cleared up.

6 W. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect	253-8700
Industrial/Investments, 290 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Village	439-1101

Gladstone, Realtors, one of the fastest growing real estate firms in the northwest and western suburbs, started out in 1954 in a tiny, one-room office that clients used to refer to as "doll-house."

Through the efforts of its founders, partners John L. Markay and Vincent J. Bolger, the firm has expanded to seven offices, three of them opened in the last 18 months. In the past year, Gladstone doubled the capacity of three of the seven offices to accommodate more salespeople.

Gladstone's staff now includes more than 75 trained salespersons. Many of them are graduates of Gladstone's own school, which is so thorough a record-breaking 90 percent of the students pass the state qualifying exams for the real estate salesman's license.

The five-phase training program for licensed salesmen or beginners is open to anyone over the age of 21. Subjects in Phase I and Phase II include competitive market analyses, all types of mortgage financing including FHA and VA, real estate contracts and associated legal documents, guaranteed sales plan, broker ethics, homeowner's insurance, building construction, ad writing, and coordinating the closing details. Subsequently, comprehensive sales training is given in Phases III to V.

Not every real estate man or woman is a Realtor. The Gladstone firm has won the right to this designation through its membership in the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, the Illinois Association of Real Estate Boards and the National Association of Realtors. Every member of the Gladstone staff subscribes to the Realtors' strict Code of Ethics, a guarantee of fair and square dealing. An additional advantage to the buyer or seller is that the Realtors' organizations keep members abreast of the latest trends and techniques from the local to the national level.

What does this mean to an individual about to buy or sell a home? When you sell, a Realtor is able to estimate for you knowledgeably what your real estate is likely to bring, and is able to market it for you as quickly as conditions warrant. When you buy, a Realtor is able to find property for you which suits your needs and pocketbook.

Through its affiliation with the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors Computer Multiple Listing Service, M.A.P. Service, The Co-op Multiple Listing Service, Inc., The Glen Ellyn - Wheaton Regional Multiple Listing Service, and the West Suburban Board Multiple Listing Service, Gladstone has access to thousands of buyers looking for a home (perhaps the very one you wish to sell) and to the thousands of homes available for sale in the area (including most likely the home of your dreams).

For transferrees, Gladstone offers a special service through its membership in RELO/Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's leading real estate referral organization. Under the referral plan, a member of the community from which the family is moving sends the destination member a resume of the family's housing needs. The destination member narrows the family's search to homes in their preferred type of community, their requirements and their financial bracket. The pre-selected homes save days and weeks of househunting for the transferred family.

Gladstone ranks as one of the top 20 among RELO's 650 members, most of them in the United States with the rest in Canada, Europe, Mexico and the Caribbean Islands.

Another service is Gladstone's Guaranteed Sales Plan. Here's how the agreement works: If Gladstone does not find a purchaser for a home within 90 days, the firm purchases the property at market value so the client has cash in hand to proceed with his own plans. In this way, a buyer may purchase another home even before his own is sold, and he's protected from being liable for two mortgages at once.

Gladstone's service also includes an Insurance Division and an Industrial/Investment Division.

Based in Elk Grove Village, the Industrial Division is responsible for sales and leasing of new and existing industrial buildings as well as vacant land for industrial and commercial use. Gladstone maintains an inventory of buildings of all sizes in different areas to accommodate clients with immediate needs. For those clients with more time, Gladstone can assist with site selection, design and construction. Thorough, up-to-date knowledge coupled with Gladstone's computerized investment analysis enables the investor-client to determine in advance financial success with particular properties and in some cases an entire project.

Under the management of Max Berg, who was a contractor for commercial and industrial properties for 15 years before joining Gladstone five years ago, the Industrial Division staff was recently doubled.

Anthony Pagone, also in the Elk Grove Village office, is in charge of property management. This division concentrates on management of multi-tenant industrial buildings, office buildings, apartment buildings, apartment condominiums and shopping centers.

Partner John L. Markay, a graduate of DePaul University School of Business, makes his headquarters in the Elk Grove Village office. Partner Vincent J. Bolger, who has a bachelor's degree from DePaul and a juris doctor degree from DePaul's School of Law, is headquartered in Franklin Park. General manager Robert A. Poltzer, also in Elk Grove Village, was owner-director of a technical training school from 1960 to 1969. He currently teaches and trains new associates in the use of the computer for the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

In the northwest offices, the managers are Stuart Edinoff, Des Plaines; John Touhy, Mount Prospect; and Robert J. Bauer, Elk Grove Village. In the western suburbs, in addition to the Franklin Park location, the firm has offices in Villa Park and Berkeley.

With faith in the growth and prosperity of the northwest and western area of Chicagoland, Gladstone's goal is to serve the people of this area with a network of 30 offices.

Jack L. Kemmerly REAL ESTATE

SPRING MILL TOWNHOMES will be clustered around landscaped driving courts, giving access to each home's attached garage as well as providing guest parking. Living areas will face outward from townhomes' opposite sides, into green spaces between clusters. Rendering indicates contrast between horizontal lines of brick and vertical siding. Tall window, left, shows story-and-a-half space in living room of split-level model. Entries are via private landscaped terraces, between garage structures.

Work begins at Spring Mill

Pre-sales activity has begun at Spring Mill, an $8-million townhome community in Hoffman Estates.

Handsome, brick-trimmed townhomes in the $35-45,000 price range will be built on a 20-acre, gently sloping site at Grand Canyon Parkway and Bode Road, just south of Illinois Rte. 72 (Higgins Road).

"First homes will be available for occupancy in the fall," said William H. Crane, vice president-marketing for The Simon/R-G Group, Inc., developer.

"But for the convenience of prospective buyers we have opened a temporary sales and information center."

THE CENTER, containing floor plans, renderings of completed townhomes and a selection of carpeting and other finish materials, is in a specially designed trailer at the northwest corner of the property. Entry is via Spring Mill Drive, a new street leading south from Higgins Road, on the Western Boundary of the development. The new street is immediately west of the headquarters building of the Bowling Proprietors Association, Crane said.

Spring Mill townhomes will offer up to 1,635 square feet of living space, exclusive of each home's attached garage and basement. Two and three-bedroom models, in both two-story and split-level versions, are under construction.

"Spring Mill residents will enjoy a maximum of landscaped, green space, as well as swimming pool, clubhouse and other recreational facilities," Crane said. "About 80 per cent of the land area will be devoted to open space, recreation and a lake that will be created on the property."

WIDE AREAS between homes will be achieved by clustering dwellings around landscaped "driving courts," Crane explained. Automobile access to attached garages will be via these courts, which also will provide guest parking. Townhomes' living areas will be oriented to the green spaces between clusters, he added.

Spring Mill townhomes will include a number of attractive features in the purchase price: Central air conditioning; choice of color in shag, plush or sculptured carpeting in living and dining rooms, bedrooms, stairways and halls; luminous ceilings and stainless steel sinks in the kitchens; cultured marble vanity tops; ranges with continuous clean ovens, refrigerators, disposers and automatic dishwashers. Additional features such as fireplaces will be available. Arrangement have been made for 90 per cent financing, Crane said.

A well defined pattern of major highways links Spring Mill's location with shopping centers, offices and industrial developments throughout the northwest suburbs. Nearby suburban train stations offer a choice of commuting to Chicago via either The Milwaukee Road or the Chicago and North Western.

PLANNED AT Roselle and Beech roads is a 192-unit development that includes a 24-story building with 168 apartments and the balance in two-and three-story buildings, a parking garage, plus a recreation complex with swimming pool, cabanas and tennis courts. Baird & Warner Inc. is underwriting the project.

Condo sales will make up 50 pct. of new home sales

That relative newcomer to the American housing scene — the condominium — will capture more than 50 per cent of the new home marketplace by the end of 1973, predicts Durand A. Holladay, managing trustee of Continental Mortgage Investors, Boston.

"New condominium units offered for sale this year could reach as high as 58 per cent of the total number of new dwellings," he said.

"By comparison, condominiums accounted for only 11 per cent of new home sales in 1970. In 1971 the figure rose to 20 per cent and pushed up to 30 per cent in 1972," Holladay points out.

"The condominium boom mirrors important changes in the composition of American society. The groups most attracted to condominiums — younger buyers and senior citizens — now comprise 53 per cent of our population.

"More than 34 per cent of our population is now in the 20-30 age bracket — 21 per cent are 65 and older. This constitutes a healthy segment of purchasing power," Holladay continues.

Builders, aware of the soaring demand for condominium dwellings, have offered both an increasing variety of building styles and a wide range of prices.

"Land cost, from 1969 through the present time, has risen 54 per cent for the completed townhouse, 83 per cent for the high rise, and 109 per cent for garden apartment units," Holladay points out.

Partly because of this most builders in 1973 are pricing new condos in the middle to upper price ranges.

Current predictions indicate a minimum drop of 10 per cent in the construction of condominium units priced $35,000 or less.

"No one dares predict how much higher the condominium boom will soar. But just about everyone is convinced that the phenomenon will continue, at the very least, through the '70s," Holladay concludes.

Six condominium models open at Harmony village

Friday, Aug. 3 will mark the official grand opening of the six townhome condominium models at Harmony Village, Wheeling, it was announced by developer Dan Kron of Harmony Builders.

Sales personnel, led by sales director Dick Florio, will be on duty daily and weekends, from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

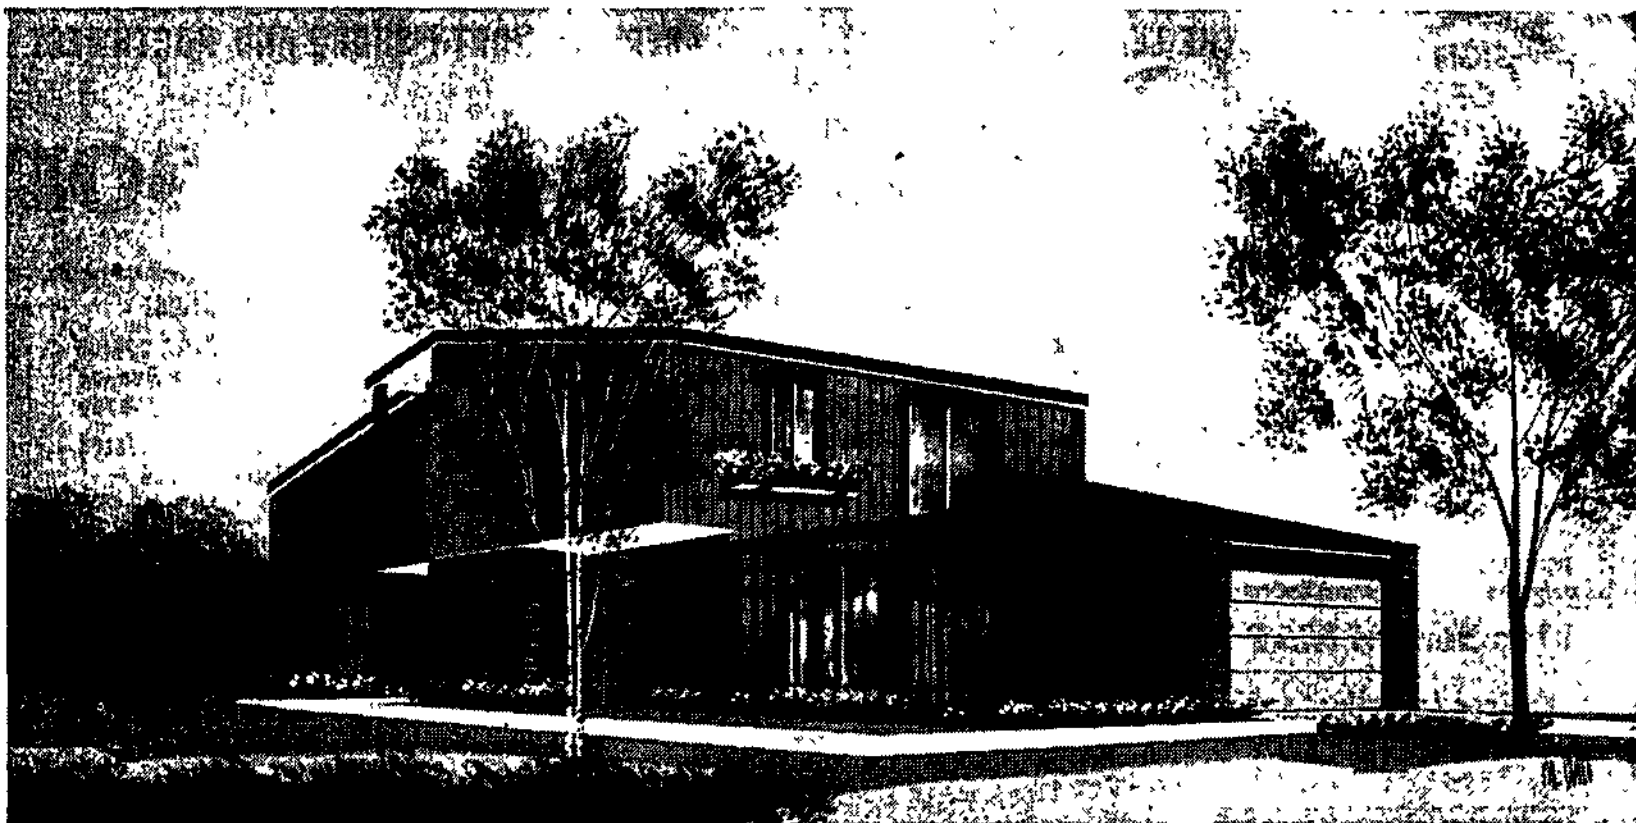

Harmony Village is located on Wolf Road just north of Hinz Road. From the South, take Willow Road (Palatine Road), to Wolf Road, north past Hinz Road 1/2 block. From the North, take Dundee Road (Ill. 68) to Wolf, south one mile.

Dan Kron said: "With Harmony Village, we have attempted to return to the old ideas of spaciousness and graciousness. So these 225 units do not constitute a typical suburban development.

"MANY 'HOUSE-SHOPPERS' have already stopped by to see the work in progress, and have been especially impressed by the room sizes, particularly the bedrooms, which are 12 feet by 14 feet. They also have commented favorably on the designs, and on the fact that three of our models have 2 1/2 baths, cathedral ceilings and balconies.

"Customizing is another innovative feature that has appealed to people stopping in. We have six basic floor plans, but all are subject to change. And at the very least, our buyers make these personal choices: wall coverings, kitchen cabinets, plumbing fixtures including cultured marble Formica-top vanities, brick and siding color selection, and appliances.

UNIT C at Harmony Village, Wheeling, one of six styles, has four bedrooms, 2 1/2 baths, and a full basement, 1,938 square feet.

Equal opportunity code announced

Adoption of a Code for Equal Opportunity in housing by the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors was announced recently by Arthur W. Pipenhagen, president, formalizing the Board's policy to offer equal service to all clients and prospects without regard to race, color, religion or national origin.

Coincident with the adoption of the Code, the Board established a Committee on Equal Opportunity that will undertake an educational program to familiarize board members and associations and the public with the terms of local and federal laws prohibiting discrimination in the sale or purchase of real property. Robert A. Kole is the chairman of the committee.

The committee also will consider complaints which may be registered with the Board. Any member found guilty of violating the spirit of any provision of the Code will be subject to disciplinary action.

The Code for Equal Opportunity was adopted by the National Association of Realtors in 1972 for submissions to its 1,600 local boards for their acceptance on a voluntary basis. It has the approval of the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which permits Realtors to display a special poster containing the Code and HUD's equal housing opportunity regulations, in lieu of the required HUD poster.

25 million homes in country estimated to need replacement

Nearly 25 million homes in the United States are prime targets for recycling.

"These are housing units that have simply worn out or become obsolete and need to be replaced," declares Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston.

"The need for replacement homes, added to other housing demand factors, could easily support an annual rate of 3 million new starts without flooding the market. The tearing down of obsolete homes and the rebuilding of new, modern dwellings will become an even more significant factor in housing production during the next 10 years," Goss emphasizes.

Currently, he notes, there are approximately 70 million housing units in the country.

"ABOUT 30 MILLION homes have been built since the end of World War II, and these units, for the most part, are still in very good condition. Approximately 15 million houses were built between 1914 and 1925.

"The remainder of our housing inventory is made up primarily of homes built between 1885 and 1905. A number of these dwellings will be caught up in the current surge of restoring older homes," Goss points out.

Another factor supporting the demand for new housing is the rapid formation of new families.

"When the goal of 2.6 million new starts annually was set in the 1968 Housing Act, the rate of expected family formations was based on 1960 census figures. Since then, updated figures show that the formation rate is outstripping earlier projections.

"These factors — the dual demand for new homes to replace those that have worn out and dwellings for new families — certainly shows that the nation needs and can support even higher levels of home building," Goss concludes.

Gladstone joins 'top 10' locators

Gladstone, Realtors has jumped into the top 10 of 625 members of Inter-City Relocation Service, the nation's leading real estate referral organization. RELO's program includes more than 7,000 residential real estate markets in all major cities and their suburbs as well as many small towns and cities.

"Under the referral plan, a member of the community from which a family is moving sends the destination broker a resume of the family's housing needs," Robert A. Poltzer, Gladstone's general manager, explains. "He also sees that the destination member contacts the family immediately, in order to answer questions about the community and pre-select homes that will meet the family's needs, well in advance of the family's first house-hunting trip."

Gladstone has been extremely successful in the program — in the first four months of 1973, the firm tripled the number of referrals in comparison with its 1972 figures. In addition to offices in Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Franklin Park and Villa Park, Gladstone recently opened its doors in Berkeley.

"Increasing construction costs, higher land costs particularly in metropolitan areas and a continuing strong demand for houses combined to create 'seller's market' conditions in most of the U.

S.," Poltzer said. "In these markets, houses sell relatively close to asking prices. That's good news when a family is about to move and sell the old family home."

On the other hand, according to Poltzer, the same conditions which can reduce the selection of available homes as well as increase prices, can be less welcome news in the real estate market when the family arrives at its new home town and begins to look for replacement housing.

Poltzer recommends that families about to relocate find out in advance as much as possible about the new home town. "Friends, relatives and employers can help. But families on the move should seek professional real estate advice, too. Through RELO many details can be handled in advance. Days and weeks of house hunting can be saved, and unnecessary delays and frustrations can be avoided, in contrast with house hunting from scratch."

Best ways to cope with the problems of a new house

A new house is not immune from problems. It may not have the major problems that an old house might have, but it can offer its share of trouble.

The first year for a new house is the break-in period. Count on some trouble just as you might with a new car. Major defects should be brought to the attention of the builder. Some minor problems are bound to occur and you should expect them and not worry about them.

But learn the difference between major and minor problems.

EVERY NEW house settles. It can be a little or a lot. And you can figure some materials in the house will shrink while others swell.

Houses don't settle evenly. If they did there wouldn't be any problems. The earth under the house will settle in one area but not another. The result is structural cracks. Hairline cracks around windows and in corners will not affect the strength of the walls.

Other minor cracks will develop as shrinkage occurs in the framing lumber. These will appear in walls and ceilings.

It's a process that could go on for several years. Ignore hairline cracks, but not large ones. The hairline cracks won't hurt anything and can be left until you are ready to redecorate, then can be filled with spackling compound before painting.

LARGE CRACKS, bigger than a pencil, are not normal. Neither are cracks in the foundation. Call these to the attention of the builder.

Doors and windows will swell in warm, humid weather. Resist the temptation to sand, file or plane and don't insist the builder do it. A light sanding may be in order but remember that the wood will shrink back to normal and excess wood taken off will leave doors and windows loose.

The air gets drier in the winter and will cause hairline cracks in the floor boards. This is normal. If the floors were too tight it would buckle during hot, humid weather.

DOORS THAT warp so badly you can see daylight through one side or that won't close properly are major defects and not your problem. Wood floors that buckle or in which gaps open indicate inferior lumber or bad workmanship.

Water seepage through basement walls and floors should be called to the builder's attention. Don't confuse this with humid air condensing on water pipes.

Plumbing, heating and wiring should give no trouble in the first year and if it lasts that long you can be fairly sure it will last even longer.

Built-in appliances, furnaces, water heaters, air conditioners, dishwashers carry manufacturer's guarantees. Save the papers.

Put your complaints in writing. Unless there is an emergency, save the complaints until you can make a list of them instead of giving the builder one at a time. Making it worth his time to send a repairman around once instead of several times will get you better service.

You want special selling effort that gets your home sold fast and for top price.

This calls for more and better merchandising. Such as:

Professional color photography of the outside and inside of your home that presells buyers on the property. Other brokers try and sell homes from 2" x 3" black and white printer's reproductions. We use six full color Kodak silk prints mounted in an album (you get the album after we sell your home).

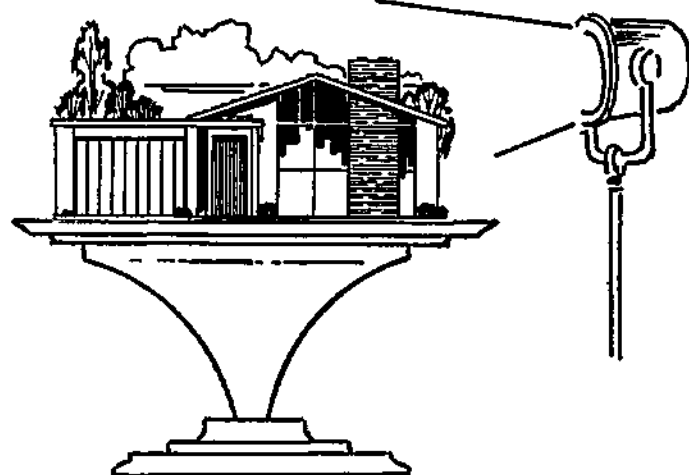

A multi-page professionally printed brochure devoted only to your home. Again, sharp, crisp exterior and interior photos that highlight the best features (you get to check the copy before it's printed). These impressive brochures are mailed to over 300 major corporations and to over 650 RELO brokers across the country.

Our Showcase of Homes in each of our five offices will feature an 8 x 10 full color Kodak silk print of your home until sold.

And these are just a few of the many extra things we do to sell your home. If you think your home deserves special selling effort, stop by our nearest office. Or call and one of our Sales Associates will give you full details and answer all of your questions.

Best of all — STARCK EXTRA SELLING EFFORT costs you no more!

'Increasing real estate New phone system at Kole Real Estateprices mean 'buy now'

Increasing prices for residential real estate should convey a message to prospective homebuyers, according to Robert W. Starck, of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, Mount Prospect.

"The message is this," Starck said, "a family that needs a new home should make a purchasing decision as soon as practicable — before prices increase even further."

Higher costs for land and labor and prices for building materials that continue to inflate have driven up the costs of new housing, Starck pointed out. Prices of homes on the resale market inevitably have followed, he added.

Higher home prices have been confirmed, throughout the nation, by transactions through the real estate referral program of Inter-City Relocation Service (RELO), which Robert W. Starck & Co. represents in this area, as one of more than 625 members whose offices serve more than 7,000 cities and towns in the U.S.

"In the first seven months of RELO's present fiscal year — November, 1972-May, 1973 — average sale price of a home closed through our referral program was $39,700," Starck reported. "This represented an increase of 5.87 per cent, compared with the $37,500 average price in the comparable seven-month period last year."

Kotleba receives broker's license

John Kotleba, sales associate in the Schaumburg office of Robert W. Starck & Co., Realtors, recently received his broker's license.

The announcement was made by Robert Starck, president of the real estate firm. According to Starck, Kotleba has completed the further study necessary and passed the examination qualifying him for his broker's license. With Starck, Realtors for only two years, Kotleba has had an outstanding record in sales and he was a member of the Million Dollar Club in 1972.

Before entering the real estate field, Kotleba worked in data processing for Montgomery Ward & Co. for 11 years and served in the United States Air Force. He and his wife live in Schaumburg.

F-B-K Inc. Realtors report record sales

The month of June was another record sales month for F-B-K Inc. Realtors as they surpassed last June's volume as well as the six month volume of previous years.

Billie Carlson

Billie Carlson, enjoying her first year in real estate, had the highest volume of all salesmen in the F-B-K Mount Prospect office for June. Mrs. Carlson has established herself as a real professional and is close to reaching the "Million Dollar" volume for the year 1973.

Kathryn Wallace

Kitty Wallace of F-B-K's Arlington Heights office led all others in sales volume for the month of June. Kitty recently received her brokers license and is a consistent leader in F-B-K's monthly sales volume.

F-B-K Inc. Realtors presently have two offices. One at 150 S. Main St., Mount Prospect, and another at 123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights. Plans for expansion of a third office is in progress which will be located in Schaumburg.

Kole Real Estate, Ltd., has introduced a new telephone system to provide faster and more economical communications among its eight sales offices in the Northwest suburbs.

Bennett & Kahnweiler Associates announce the sale of 54,600 square feet of land in Centex Industrial Park, Elk Grove Village, to Berkey Photo Company. Sole broker in the transaction was Robert B. Rosen.

A one story office and warehouse building of 19,500 square feet is currently being constructed for Berkey Photo by Missner Construction Company. Total consideration was in excess of $250,000.

the system links the Kole executive offices at 1000 E. Northwest Highway in Mount Prospect with the sales offices in Park Ridge, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Palatine, Barrington, Rolling Meadows and Wheeling.

Kole personnel can contact any office simply by dialing a two digit number. For example, sales associates at a branch office obtain updated information about real estate listings by calling the headquarters in Mount Prospect. Robert A. Kole, president of the firm, also used the telephone system to hold conference calls among his eight sales managers, several of whom are 40 miles apart.

Kole is the only real estate firm served by Illinois Bell with this type of telephone setup. The phone company charges Kole a flat monthly "mileage" fee, based on the distance between the offices. There is no charge for calls made between the offices.

Allstate appoints Klein sales agent

Richard L. Klein of Palatine has been appointed sales agent by the Allstate Insurance Companies. His appointment follows the completion of an extensive training course in the firm's Midwest Zone Office in Skokie.

A native of Chicago, Klein graduated from Sullivan High School, and received both his B.A. and M.A. degree in psychology from Roosevelt University.

Klein was also named an Allstate Safety Crusade Representative for the Palatine area. He may be contacted for the various safety materials made available by the company.

Headquarters for Klein will be at the Sears, Roebuck & Company building, Golf Mill Store in Niles.

Keep cold out to conserve fuel

The best way to conserve fuel, notes the National Better Heating-Cooling Council, is to keep the cold out of the house. Installing storm sash on windows and doors, and adding extra insulation in the attic will pay off in lower fuel bills. Also important is having a very sensitive thermostat which gives you the exact temperature you want without wasteful override.

3 residents join '73 Mercy leadership team

Clifford Johnson, vice president of real estate planning, Jewel Companies, Inc., George L. Morrow, president, Peoples Gas Company, and Blaine Yarrington, president, American Oil Company, all Arlington Heights residents, have joined the 1973 Crusade of Mercy leadership team. They will seek Crusade gifts from major firms in the Chicago area.

The 1973 Crusade goal of $36.8 million goes to support human care services in Chicago and the suburbs. The Arlington Heights United Fund again will participate in the campaign this year. The Arlington Heights Fund will conduct a local campaign to raise funds for human care services and it will receive funds from the metropolitan Crusade campaign.

These men will seek Fair Share contributions to the campaign. A Fair Share gift is one per cent of annual salary for administrative, supervisory and professional personnel and one day's pay for other employees.

The Crusade of Mercy is the fund-raising arm of the Community Fund of Chicago, the Mid-America chapter of the American Red Cross, the Suburban Community Chest Council and its 90 participating chests and funds covering 155 suburban communities.

Insurance salesman wins dual honor

David L. Lee, C.L.U., representative in the Des Plaines area for Franklin Life Insurance Co., Springfield, has been awarded the dual honor of "Man of the Month" and "Manager of the Month" for June in the Mid America Region. The announcement was made this week by the mid America executive sales director, William D. Clements Jr., at his Schiller Park headquarters.

Lee was recognized for outstanding leadership in personal sales and in agency development. He is a member of the 1973 Franklin Million Dollar Conference, the Company's group of million-dollar-a-year sales and sales management leaders.

Annen & Busse tell Spring Listing winners

Annen & Busse, Inc. Realtors announced nineteen winners in their Spring Listing Festival. All of the Annen & Busse sales associates participated in the seven week festival, accumulating a total of 100 new property listings. Winners were decided on a point-system basis; prizes being chosen by those with the most to the least points. Annen & Busse often uses this type of added marketing incentive as a bonus during the year, enriching their already dynamic sales program.

A variety of prizes, including a Console AM/FM Stereo, a Color TV, a Microwave Oven, Bar-B-Q Kettles, Specialty Radios, Desk Calculators, Tape Cassettes, Luggage Sets, Portable BW TV, and a Shetland Pony raised on the Edward J. Busse Farm, were presented at the June Sales Meeting.

The following winners were congratulated on their achievement: Manette Christensen, Veronica Connelly, Robert Magnus, Andy Olson, Del Sears, Robert Vehe, and Ruth Walker from their Mount Prospect Office; Alan Macdonald, Reva O. Peters, Eileen Rodgers, Dan Rutigliano, and Will Schwantz from their Arlington Heights office; Joe Gibbons, Claudia Poling, Ken Dubs and Ron Vollmann from their Schaumburg office; and Don Jeschke, Fyrne Gran and Rosalie Voras from the Palatine office.

Lapisa promoted to design manager

Michael Lapisa of Elk Grove Village has been promoted to manager of instrument and control design for Pioneer Service & Engineering Co., a Chicago-based consulting firm specializing in professional support activities for utilities, municipalities and industry. The announcement was released by R. N. Buschell, Manager of the Instrument & Control Division for the 800-member firm.

Employed by Pioneer since 1967, Lapisa, during his sixteen years of service has contributed to the design of numerous electric generating stations, both fossil-fired and nuclear fueled, as well as gas turbines, water filtration plants, chemical plants and sewage treatment plants. He has held the positions of draftsman, designer, field engineer, specifications writer and assistant engineer-design.

Herdegen named Touch and Grow contest winner

Robert E. Herdegen of 1728 Brookview Ln., Palatine, marketing representative in the Singer Business Machines branch office at Chicago, has been named a winner in the company's "Touch and Grow" summer sales contest.

More than 1,000 Singer sales personnel are competing for awards in the nationwide contest which runs through September. Herdegen was a bonus winner in the Data Processing Systems category for his branch office in June.

Monthly branch office winners are to compete for the "Touch and Grow" contest grand prize — a trip to Costa del Sol, Spain in January.

Herdegen, a native of Chicago, has been with Singer for 27 years. He is a Navy veteran of World War II and attended the Illinois Institute of Technology in Chicago. He is also a member of the Des Plaines Elks Club Lodge No. 1526.

One of the many nice things about an embossed vinyl asbestos tile floor is that it always looks clean. The design masks soiling, and loose dirt is hidden in the recesses, from which it is easily vacuumed or swept. Caring for this tile is just as easy — but not the same — as caring for smooth-surface floor. Here are Better Floors Council recommendations for the maintenance of embossed vinyl asbestos tile:

- Sweep or vacuum only as often as necessary. There is no sense sweeping every day if the floor doesn't require it. With frequent sweeping you won't have to wash the floor as often.

- Before you wash, always sweep or vacuum the floor thoroughly. The soapy water works better, and it is easier to rinse the floor clean. It is best to use a cleaner approved by the tile manufacturer; otherwise, use a neutral soap or diluted detergent solution.

- Remove stubborn stains with scouring powder and a damp sponge. Do not use steel wool on embossed tile.

- Always rinse the floor thoroughly, even if the detergent maker says it isn't necessary. Don't flood the floor with water — use just enough to flush the dirty wash water completely off.

- If you wax your floors, do not pour finish directly on embossed tile. Pour it into a shallow pan; dip the mop in this and then wring out so it is just damp. This prevents polish from accumulating in the recesses of the tile. Do not use paste waxes on embossed tile.

- With a buffing machine use a soft Tampico fiber brush when polishing embossed vinyl asbestos tile.

Subdivision addition: Le Mans II Townhome

The most recent addition to the Normandy Hill subdivision in north suburban Northbrook is the two-bedroom Le Mans II Ranch Townhome built by Rudenberg Construction Company.

Priced at $73,500, the model offers 4,200 square feet of living space, a courtyard entry, poured concrete patio and oversized attached two-car garage.

Spaciousness and a well-planned traffic flow pattern are immediately apparent when you enter an 8-by-18-foot foyer with skylight and guest closet.

Directly ahead and to the left are the entertainment areas. The sleeping quarters are to the right.

A circular pattern is developed in the entertainment section whether you start in a 12-by-12-foot den to the left of the foyer or a 13-by-20-foot living room directly ahead.

THE DEN overlooks the landscaped front yard. Adjacent and to the rear is an 8-by-12-foot breakfast area and same size kitchen featuring a semi-open concept, with appliances, cabinets and counters in a convenient "double-L" layout.

Included in the kitchen appliances are an automatic dishwasher, garbage disposal, gas continuous clean or electric self-cleaning oven with outside vented hood.

The kitchen also has custom styled wood cabinets and color coordinated vinyl asbestos flooring with underlayment and plastic laminated counter tops.

A doorway from the kitchen gains entry into a rear 12½-by-15½ foot formal dining room which is separated from the living room by a combination wood-gas island fireplace. Both rooms have insulated glass sliding doors which open onto a rear patio.

A SHORT HALL with linen closet and family bathroom leads to the sleeping quarters. Both this bathroom and a private bathroom for the 15-by-16-foot master bedroom have built-in cultured marble vanities, mirrored medicine cabinets, bath and shower enclosures and color coordinated ceramic tile floors and walls in tub and shower recess.

The master bedroom also has a walk-in closet, dressing area and insulated glass sliding doors opening onto the rear patio. A second bedroom measuring 12 by 12 feet has a walk-in closet.

To complete the floor plan is a utility area with a laundry tray and space for a washer and dryer, a staircase to a full basement and inside entrance to the 22-by-22-foot enclosed garage.

INCLUDED IN the price of the townhome are central air conditioning, choice of hardwood floors or carpeting, decorator paint colors, combination wood and gas fireplace, Colonial paneled interior doors and wood trim, radio controlled electric garage door opener and pre-wired telephone outlets.

Exterior features included are blacktop driveway, underground utilities, electric outdoor postlight, complete landscaping, privacy fencing.

As a townhome owner in Normandy Hill you receive such benefits as all exterior maintenance which includes landscaping and snow removal service, lighted streets and ample off-street parking.

Also provided is use of the clubhouse with heated all year around glass enclosed swimming pool, men and women's saunas, social room with kitchen facilities, billiard table, landscaped formal pool terrace and oversized combination wood and gas fireplace.

Both the new townhomes and apartment home models at Normandy Hill are open to inspection daily from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.; Sundays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Entrance to the condominium development is at 4000 Dundee Road in Northbrook.

Briefly on business

SHRINKING PROFIT margins are among the problems experienced by small companies in the current economic scene, says David E. Frick of Hanover Park, head of a Hanover Park management consultant firm. He sees the need to control costs as one good means of bringing profits into line with expectations. A former industrial engineer and plant manager, senior management consultant and data processing assistant manager, Frick moved into the consulting field. A more efficient cost accounting and production control system may be planned to maximize cost savings, he said.

Most small and medium size manufacturing companies are managed by persons with specific skills in sales and manufacturing methods, comments Frick. The additional skills utilized by a management consultant include cost control, cost reduction, incentive systems, clerical efficiency, production planning and management information systems. "The future is difficult to assess. There is no question that the weeding out will continue for some time," he said. "A close, objective look at the current costs of any company is well advised at this time."

BUS TOUR AND luncheon program are slated for today in the Joliet area by the Chicago Association of Commerce and Industry. The event is presented in cooperation with the Joliet Region Chamber of Commerce and the Will-Grundy Manufacturers Association. The tour and program will focus on major industrial parks and plant facilities, Bollingbrook housing, the new Chicago-Joliet Livestock Marketing Center and commercial developments. A number of luncheon speakers will discuss development trends in the Joliet area. Additional information is available by calling Al Thomas at the association, 786-0111.

RELOCATION CONSULTANTS, Inc. of Chicago has announced the opening of its third Apartment Information Center at 530 W. Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect. Apartment managers supply the Center with floor plans, photos, community conveniences, and other detailed information pertinent to their rentals, which range from $170. Counselors from the firm also regularly visit listed properties to verify owner information. Atkinson said the TWENTY PORTABLE emissions testing units will be provided by the Sun Electric Corp. to the State of California. The analyzers will be used by the state highway patrol in conjunction with its safety inspection program, for random roadside testing of vehicle exhaust. The units measure the percentage of carbon monoxide and parts per million of hydrocarbons in automotive exhaust. The basic system used in the Sunbeam analyzers is the same as in the units purchased by the State of New Jersey and the City of Chicago. Sun Electric Corp., based in Chicago, is a key supplier of precision instruments and electronic engine performance test equipment.

MULTI-FAMILY housing, including condominiums and rental structures, continues to hold the lion's share of Continental Mortgage Investors' portfolio. CMI, Boston, is the nation's largest independently sponsored real estate investment trust in mortgage lending. The company has made more than $2 billion in mortgage loans since 1962. Multi-family housing accounts for 31.2 per cent of CMI's portfolio, closely followed by recreational and retirement communities, with 26.5 per cent. Commercial construction, at 19.5 per cent, and single-family housing, 17.6 per cent, are neck-and-neck, according to CMI's 1973 annual report for the 12-month period ended March 31. Shopping center construction accounts for 5.1 per cent of Continental's portfolio. CMI's mortgage portfolio increased by $149 million, to $579.3 million, during the year ended March 31, 1973, the largest annual increase in the trust's 11-year history, according to Durand A. Holladay, managing trustee. Looking ahead for the rest of 1973, Holladay predicts that interest rates will decline by the end of the year. "We are expecting continued strong growth in every segment of the real estate industry. The supply of construction and development capital remains strong," Holladay concludes.

You don't need to own a second home if you buy at Turnberry in the first place.

Year-round vacation living with your own family home in a Chicago suburb.

Lakes, Woods, Hills, Valleys. A championship golf course. A private country club. A magnificent clubhouse. Tournament-quality tennis courts. Olympic-size pool. Everything you'd expect to find at the finest resort is here at Turnberry. The only difference is that you can take a 52-week vacation every year because you'll be living in your own year-round, custom-built family home. Only 10 minutes from the suburban Crystal Lake North Western Commuter Station — and a short drive to O'Hare Field and all of Chicagoland by readily accessible expressways.

Turnberry, in the Village of Lakewood, is comprised of 1100 acres of beautiful countryside. Protective covenants assure that the basic way of living — the good life — at Turnberry will never change. Architectural approval is required for every home built here. And no two houses may be alike. The size and cost of a home is not as important as architectural excellence.

There are no ordinary homesites at Turnberry. Here, the crest of a hill, a lush green fairway, a beautiful lake or century-old trees adjoin the living room of your custom-designed residence.

Homesites average ¾ of an acre, and more important, have a minimum width of 150 feet at the building line. All sites are fully improved with winding paved roads, water, sewer and underground utilities. Prices range from $18,000 to $35,000

Drive out now, or send in coupon below for a free brochure and details.

I'm Ben Pekin.
My company built Baybrook Park Condominiums. When people tell me they love what they see here, I tell them they should love what they don't see.

There's nothing wrong with people getting excited about extra large living and dining rooms, or 47 foot balconies, or big closets, or kitchens with a window. Those are the kinds of amenities that have made Baybrook Park Condominiums sell so well. I don't have to point them out to anybody. They speak for themselves.

But there are other things to look for when you're buying a condominium home. Things that will affect your pleasure and ease of maintenance while you live there, and your resale price when you move.

Consider my checklist below.
Construction: We built Baybrook Park Condominiums with concrete and steel construction throughout. Which may not mean anything to you until you talk to your insurance broker and find out it means lower fire insurance rates.

We build with the finest materials. ... or we don't build. Makes for a costlier building. And a more valuable one, too. Both for us to sell you, and for you to sell to someone else.

Our double security system features Illinois Bell Intercom plus closed circuit T.V.

The appliances in our kitchen are all top notch. We include dishwashers, disposals, self-cleaning ovens, double door refrigerators ... even carpeting. And beautiful laundry rooms are on every floor.

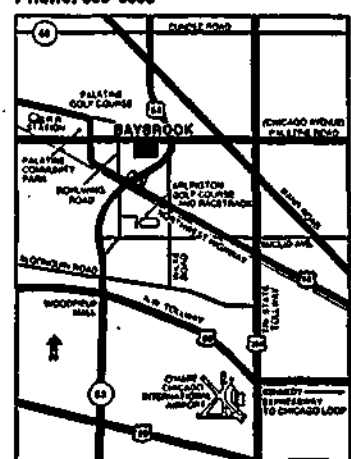

We chose a location for Baybrook as carefully as we built it. A beautiful setting next to a 30 acre park, yet less than 40 minutes from the loop. You can walk from your apartment to shops and movies and the Northwestern Station. And you're just 3 blocks west of new Rte. 53, with access to all major expressways.

We improved our location by adding a 7 acre lake for boating, fishing, ice-skating. Plus a beautiful private clubhouse with heated pool, sun decks, saunas, game and party rooms and 2 health rooms.

Come out this weekend. Enjoy the things you see, and ask about the ones you don't. I think you'll like the answers. We planned it that way.

Celebrating his 30th anniversary with Western Electric, manufacturing and supply unit of the Bell Telephone System, is Emilio Camodeca of 575 W. Westmore Rd., Des Plaines.

He started with the company on July 23, 1943, as an electrical tester of electromechanical telephone frames.

Mobile home warranty plan may be offered

A one-year warranty guaranteeing mobile homes meet federal safety standards may soon be offered by housing manufacturers.

The warranty amendment, sponsored by Sen. Robert Taft (R-Ohio), was placed in conjunction with a mobile home safety bill introduced by Sen. William E. Brock (R-Tenn.).

Under the proposed warranty, manufacturers guarantee to pay for any repairs or alterations necessary to bring the mobile home in compliance with safety standards during a one-year period.

Manufacturers will also act promptly to notify a buyer when a defect is discovered which affects the home's safety.

An inspection program will be introduced to help enforce safety standards. If manufacturers are found to be violating these standards, fines up to $1,000 can be imposed for every infraction of the warranty.

"The mobile home industry has cooperated fully in the development of this amendment," said Sen. Taft. This legislation should help manufacturers go a long way to insure the public of a safe home, he added.

Questions concerning whether or not a construction problem is included under this warranty will be determined by the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD). Either a manufacturer or owner can contact HUD when any problems occur.

Quick action after Alaska pipeline approval expected

by LEA TONKIN

THINGS are really going fast with the push for the construction of the Alaska pipeline. In fact, members in the House Interior committee seem to be bending over backward in their haste to get this project rolling. Environmentalist amendments to the Alaska pipeline bill were voted down in the committee Tuesday. This probably means clear sailing for final House approval of the measure. It would bar any further interference to stop the pipeline and would grant a group of oil companies the go-ahead for right-of-way agreements across federal lands.

This must be encouraging to the oil companies, who've been sitting on their hands for three years while the Wilderness Society, the Sierra Club and others tied up their project in the courts. But we can hope that the House pipeline bill will come out in more reasonable fashion than the recently approved Senate bill, which excluded the pipeline from environmental standards.

HOW MUCH will it cost? This is the question that's supposed to pop into car buyer's minds as soon as they hear about new automotive pollution control devices. At least that's what Thomas Feaheny, general manager of the Ford Motor Co. engine division says.

Compliance with the Clean Air Act standards "could turn out to be a bad bargain for the American public," said Feaheny at a Chicago press conference Tuesday. Its provisions are unrealistic and costly for the new car buyer, he said, and not justified by need.

Even if we could develop a clean engine, there's no way we could meet the deadline, he claims. The federal Environmental Protection Agency recently announced it would defer the compliance date from 1974, to a year later.

Hydrocarbon, carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen emissions would be stringently controlled in the Clean Air Act standards. We've heard of many emissions control systems offered developed by Universal Oil Products Co. in Des Plaines and others in this field. Then there are the promising emissions control systems worked out by Japanese auto makers, announced early year.

Feaheny says the U.S. auto industry just needs more time to use all the new clean air technology coming into the market. Let's hope this doesn't mean additional delays which can only mean additional costs in the form of air pollution.

TRASH CRISIS: our disposal "What we are throwing away doesn't really go away at all," says John G. Hutchinson, mayor of Charleston, W. Va. He recently directed a three month study for the National League of Cities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors titled, Cities and the Nation's Disposal Crisis.

The study shows that the amount of solid waste doubled for the general population over the past 50 years, but it has doubled in the cities in the past 20 years.

We're accumulating some 250 million tons of wastes every year, Hutchinson reports. This includes some 28 billion bottles, 48 billion cans, 30 million tons of paper, 100 million trees and three million junk cars. And the fascination with fancy packaging is pushing up these figures.

Severely limited markets for recycled materials and federal policies which do not encourage recycling programs handicap the efforts by local organizations and municipalities in the disposal of solid wastes, the report continues. In a nation faced with resource shortages, only 1 per cent of municipal wastes are recycled.

The report calls for a federal assistance in the effort to solve the solid waste problem. First of all, keep a lid on the packing industry that boxes and bags and sometimes conceals the consumer goods at the store. Then there's the need for federal policies to encourage experimentation, as New York City's burning waste to generate electric power.

Promotional activities for recycling efforts should also include, according to the report:

- Tax incentives and freight rates adjusted to allow economical shipment of recycled materials.
- Special, low interest rates for construction of solid waste management and resource recovery operations.
- Government practices which would encourage the use of recycled materials or reusable materials.
- Removal of barriers to interstate shipment of solid wastes.

HEARING ON the proposed compliance schedules for state clean air programs in Illinois will be held today by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. It will be conducted in the San Juan Kingston Room of the Sheraton Chicago hotel, Chicago. The hearing is part of a series scheduled in Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin on certain pollution sources not in compliance with applicable state air pollution control regulations. In this state, cornwet milling operations, coke ovens and sulphur dioxide and particulate emissions from small and large combustion units are included in the discussion.

INLAND STEEL CO. and the City of East Chicago, Ind., announced this week they moved a step closer to financing of construction and installation of added pollution control equipment at the company's Indiana Harbor Works. Under the proposed plan, the city will issue $26 million of tax exempt pollution control revenue bonds. This would finance the equipment installation at Plant No. 3, a coke over battery. The bonds will be payable to East Chicago by Inland. The transaction is to be completed early in August.

GARDEN SHOW of summer plants at the First National Bank of Chicago will be the setting for the Tuesday presentation of an environmental award for the design work by the Rolling Meadows landscape architecture firm of Novak, Carlson and Associates. The environment award will be presented by the Chicago Horticultural Society "for excellence in the application of ornamental horticulture and landscaping by a corporation."

Peter Merlin, chairman of the board of trustees of the society, will present the award to Gaylord Freeman chairman of the bank. Norman Ross, the bank's public affairs vice president will serve as master of ceremonies.

Just who gets in on pension plans?

by GERARD M. BRANNON
(Last of a series)

(Dr. Brannon is director of tax research for Tax Analysts and Advocates, a Washington, D.C., organization which provides research services for the news media and engages in a public interest tax law practice. He also is research professor at Georgetown University and formerly was director of the Office of Tax Analysis in the Treasury Department.)

WASHINGTON — We have seen that pension plans are not the safest things in the world, but probably nearly 60 per cent of workers will in the future retire with some kind of employer pension plan to bolster up their social security.

• Why will only some workers get pension benefits?

Apart from the problems of vesting that we have talked about, the big problem is that at any one time only a little over 50 per cent of the workers are covered by pension plans. If a fellow loses his job before he gets a vested claim to a pension, there is a pretty good chance that there won't be a pension plan in his next job.

A lot of the lack of coverage occurs in small firms with an uncertain future. As we saw, the big companies don't pay up (funds) their pension costs immediately but the promise of a big company to put up the money later is pretty good (not perfect, but pretty good). For most small companies, the promise to put up funds later probably doesn't cut much ice with the workers and full funding is too expensive.

Another circumstance is that in industries with a lot of low-income workers, their workers are not so interested in savings (and pensions are really savings). They want their wages pretty much in cash to meet current expenses and to educate kids. Retirement will have to wait.

• What about self-employed people?

In the 1960s there was some extension of the pension benefit under a law that lets a self-employed person set up a pension plan which covered himself. The Congress put a few extra limits on these plans because it was expected that they would be used mostly by professional people who didn't have many employees. In lots of these cases, it is practically a matter of a fellow setting up a retirement plan only for himself. He might try to get a deduction for as much as he wanted to save.

Since then, the professionals have outfoxed the Congress by devising ways to form "professional corporations" so they can have pension plans without the special limits. They are "employees" of their own corporations.

• What about workers not under a plan?

The administration is willing to throw in the towel. Now they say that the way out is just to keep on expanding pension coverage. In the President's program, he proposes to relax the limits on plans that self-employed people can set up for themselves and to create a new deduction for employees whose employer doesn't have a plan. They could get a deduction by paying into a pension plan of their own. Sen. Lloyd Bentsen (R-Texas) has sponsored a bill to permit a deduction.

• Didn't Canada try this?

Canada provides this deduction for employees who set up their own plan. The Canadian experience shows that not many low-income employees use it. This tells us something about the whole arrangement. By and large, tax benefits for pensions are not of much value to low-income employees. At low incomes, people don't save much anyway. Also, the interest that could be earned by postponing a 10 per cent tax is a lot less than the interest possible from postponing a 50 per cent tax.

A part of any reform debates in 1973 will be what to do about the tax benefits for pension plans. The big issues will be whether pension promises will be more secure and whether coverage will be widened. Of the two issues, the security issues will be the most important.

• Will there be efforts to make pensions secure?

The answer has to be yes. Both the administration and members of Congress are pushing their plans. All are mild but if the size of pension promises is to be unchecked, making these promises secure will be very expensive. This is why the politicians don't want to change vesting and funding very much. Whether these small changes now will lead to still tougher rules in the future, we can't tell.

• What is portability?

Some pension visionaries have a dream that someday all employer pensions could be "portable" like the system most college professors are under now. Professors' pensions are generally funded completely and currently with one fund. When a professor goes to a new school he still has his pension reserve — the new school just takes over adding to it. This ideal is called portability. With universal portability, all workers could take their pension entitlements with them from job to job (just as they take Social Security).

Consumer advocate Ralph Nader has proposed that the present system of pension plans sponsored by corporations, industries or labor unions be replaced by a system of competing fully-funded retirement benefit funds. Each employee would notify his employer which of these funds to send the employer contributions to. If the employee became dissatisfied with the investment performance of the retirement benefit fund, he could switch his share to another fund.

The visionaries think that portability would lead to a more efficient economy where workers could freely move to jobs where they could be more productive without the anchor of losing pension benefits in the old job. We are a long way from this.

• Will private pension coverage increase?

I think the answer to this is not very much. The Canadian experience suggests that the deduction for employees will not change things significantly. In fact, the Treasury's own revenue estimates suggest that most of this effect will be on government employees who are already in pension plans but who have to contribute half the cost out of their own salary with no tax deduction. Giving them a deduction for this other half will be nice for them but it doesn't get more people into pension plans.

Part of the reason that I don't look for much in the way of expansion is that the other policy issue of providing more security will make pension plans a bit more expensive and probably will have some marginal effect on slowing down new employer plans. This doesn't say that efforts to improve security are bad. The social goal should be more pensions, not more pension plans, and providing vesting and funding within present plans will mean more pensions.

THE OTHER reason that I don't expect much success in efforts to expand coverage is that this is a little like caviar; somewhat of a luxury. Pensions are far more attractive to high-income workers than to low-income workers. As we have said before, most low-income workers don't want it when they can buy their own.

If you think a little about that last paragraph it may occur to you to ask: "Since the available tax benefit (postponement) is more attractive to high-income people and these high-income people will be saving part of their income anyway why does the law persist in providing very generous 'incentives' for high-income people to get very high pensions?"

That is a hard question which may be the reason why neither Congress nor the administration has faced it.

6,840-ft. Algonquin Road sewer bids to be sought

The Metropolitan Sanitary District board took action last week concerning two interceptor sewers connected to the Salt Creek Water Reclamation Plant.

The MSD board Friday approved advertising for bids from contractors to build a 6,840-foot-long interceptor on Algonquin Road from Ill. Rte. 53 northwest to Plum Grove Road.

The sewer, which will connect to an existing interceptor in Algonquin Road, is being built to provide relief for an existing sewer in Algonquin Road which is not large enough to handle stormwater from rapid development of land in the area.

The new interceptor will serve an 11 square mile area including portions of the villages of Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates, South Barrington and Inverness as well as unincorporated areas.

MSD engineers expect the sewer construction to cost approximately $2,094,425. Work on the sewer is slated to start this fall with the sewer completed by Jan. 30, 1975.

IN OTHER ACTION Friday the MSD board accepted an easement agreement and a state highway permit for another Salt Creek Interceptor.

The $3,850,000 interceptor will extend from Kenilworth Avenue south along Rohlwing Road to Kirchhoff Road.

The state highway department permit accepted by the MSD allows construction of the sewer on state rights-of-way in Arlington Heights, Palatine and Rolling Meadows.

The easement for the sewer accepted by the MSD board was granted by the Chicago and North Western Transportation Co. for the use of the railroad's permanent easement extending on either side of the railroad tracks.

BOTHERED BY THE hustle and bustle of everyday living? Would you like to get away and relax — spending your time thinking of those things you'd like to be doing now? These two girls seemed to have that problem solved. Away from the hot pavement of the city; away from the humid humdrum of the Kennedy Expressway, and into the playground world of what can only be termed "a device that jiggles up and down and goes round."

A 'now' in education — lifetime sports

NEW YORK (UPI) — The "now" physical education in high school and college stresses lifetime sports for all.

Schools still have sports heroes from the varsity teams but they also are serving up this smorgasbord — jogging, tennis, climbing, skiing, softball, track, swimming.

The idea: students no longer are content to get their sports' enjoyment vicariously by watching elite groups of players. In response to their desire for lifetime sports' experiences, enter the sports-for-all movement.

THE CHANGE in sports styles affects physical education facilities, and is leading to obsolescence of traditional gyms and old-style stadiums.

New sports facilities are for double duty — and for female as well as male use. In a report on the trend, Educational Facilities Laboratories EFL, said:

"Whatever use is made of it, the new sports facility should never become one of the traditional temples of sweat operated at enormous cost for the benefit of a few talented people for a short season of the year."

P. RICHARD THEIBERT, director of athletics and special assistant to the president of Hostia University, in the report reviews some of the alternatives.

For one, seasonal limitations can be removed by roofing the area. The football stadium, that is. EFL suggests that the stadiums be "deconsecrated" and used for several kinds of games. Three softball games can go on at one time in such a converted football field. Plus some tennis or other games.

A MORE radical approach to providing playing areas at economical cost was demonstrated by Friends Select School in downtown Philadelphia. The school leased some of its land and netted enough to pay the cost of a new school on the existing site. But gone was the playing field. To compensate for this loss, the school covered the roof with artificial turf and fenced it in to stop balls sailing toward the streets below.

Long Island University bought a baroque movie theater close to its Brooklyn campus and converted it to a gym.

The first surfing pool in the United States was built at Tempe and is used by Arizona State University. Water surging from the base of a reservoir wall creates waves at 50 second intervals. This is one way of bringing the pleasures of surfing to students who do not live near the ocean.

The idea of making a surfing pool was first tried in Hacholji, Japan. This indoor pool has a wave generating machine. When the wave machine is turned off, presto — there's a regular pool.

WOODFIELD SCHAUMBURG DEARBROOK MALL LAKE-COOK & WAUKEGAN RDS. DEERFIELD

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — I am 75 years of age and retired a year ago.

My weight varies between 135 and 140; am 5-foot, 6-inches in height. Don't drink or smoke.

For some years I weighed 150 and suffered high blood pressure. Now this appears to be under control, although my doctor has me taking a pill every other day. Preventive medication perhaps.

Have always been an active shooter, both large and small bore and shotgun, and still enjoy these hobbies, as well as fishing. I have given up hunting and now have a strong aversion to killing. I get my sport from trying to break clay "birds." And punching holes in paper targets.

Two years ago, my doctor discovered that I have a malignancy of the prostate and put me on some sort of a hormone. I have to take these the rest of my life.

DO THESE PILLS (or the pressure pills I have taken) have any insidious side effects. I am somewhat worried about this possibility because during the past year I have noticed a tremor of fingers and hands, along with what I would say is a lack of control of my thumbs. This difficulty manifests itself especially as I attempt to separate pages of books or magazines.

My doctor of many years, and in whom I have full confidence, told me this tremor condition is normal in many persons of my age. He evidently feels that the condition cannot be helped. Can you give me any suggestions as to what might be done to help this shaky situation? There must be something.

Have always been proud of my steady nerves and good coordination, so am really shook up by this development. (And you can easily imagine what it's doing to my rifle scores.)

If you can give me any help, I would surely appreciate it.

Dear Reader — Your tremor is not caused by your medicine. As your doctor has told you, this commonly occurs in individuals as they get older. Some people have more trouble with this than others. Often it is associated with atherosclerosis, or fatty blockage of the arteries, which increases as people get older in our society. This is particularly true if one has had a problem of high blood pressure.

It seems to me that you've done rather well since you have reduced your weight, which in turn, along with your doctor's help, has resulted in decreasing your blood pressure which is the most important thing that could be done. The hormone pill has no effect whatever on your tremor. It is a female hormone used to neutralize male hormone. This is a common treatment for individuals with a malignancy of the prostate and is a very useful approach to the problem in many cases.

I would think that your tremor should emphasize the need for you to eliminate any excess amount of body fat that you might have, even though I know you've already lost some weight, and particular attention to dietary management which I've discussed often in my column for the prevention of atherosclerosis, or fatty blockage of the arteries.

Your are to be congratulated on maintaining your interest and staying active.

Adolescence—three ways in which parents cope with it

(This column is presented by Forest Hospital in Des Plaines, known for its programs in psychiatric treatment, research, education and community service.)

Adolescence is that time in a child's life when parents sometimes feel they are losing control over their children. Parents often become confused as to how to deal with their child's behavior which requires discipline.

Occasionally, it is difficult for parents to recognize whether some unacceptable behavior is a "phase" of adolescence, or the beginnings of a real trouble situation.

Dr. Kent Ravenscroft of The Children's Hospital in Washington, D.C., says that "adolescence itself can be rather flamboyant and people have trouble knowing what's normal and what's not normal."

A common occurrence, according to Ravenscroft, is that some families seem to do very well rearing their children to about age 11 or the beginning of adolescence, and then parents seem to show a vulnerability to that particular phase of childrearing known as adolescence. He broke these families down into three types of marital relationships and described them and the results they have on their children's behavior.

THE FIRST TYPE is what he called a binding family. It is a very closely-knit family in which the parents have the tendency to "smother" their children.

The children are given the message that everything good and valuable can only be found within the family. The rest of the world is seen as dangerous and they are traitors if they get too far out of the family orbit: get too involved with other people, too into clubs or their peer group.

"This family plays on a child's natural mixed feelings," says Dr. Ravenscroft. "Most children getting into adolescence have a mixed set of feelings. In part they want to deny their needs and dependencies and lack of skill and want to say they know it all, have the answers and better ideas than their parents. They start to get deeply into peer groups and outside activities. But the other half of it is they're a little anxious about it, they're a little unsure, they like to dip back home for a little support and a little bit of commendation from the parents."

The second type of family, which is at the opposite end of the spectrum from the binding family, is the expelling family. The parents in this family are very self-centered, and their marriage has very little depth or intimacy. They get along pretty well together up until they have children and then they find they need to share, and have a combined responsibility for their child.

DR. RAVENSCROFT says, "These parents who, right from the beginning feel that their kids are a burden, they're a hassle. They want kids who are neither seen nor heard and who make minimal demands." As they grow up, the children find that if they're going to survive they have to take their satisfactions where they can. They feel that as persons they're not accepted and are not appreciated for their own needs and pace of development, but rather are put up with.

The third type of family is at the midpoint between the binding and the expelling families. The marriage in this situation is much healthier in comparison with the other two types. The parents have their hangups but by and large are fairly available for dependency, give the child a fair amount of support, sense that he's wanted, that he's meaningful. But still they have their problems and the child often gets caught in a crossfire between mother and father.

"In some areas, mother demands loyalty from the child, and then father demands loyalty, but the kind of allegiances demanded are not mutually compatible and the child is forced to make a choice between sides, that is, between parents," says Ravenscroft.

Doc's marijuana in brownies treats glaucoma

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (UPI) — Dr. Frederick Blanton, an ophthalmologist, is treating some of his glaucoma patients with brownies — filled with marijuana — despite the illegality of the weed, because of its successful results.

Blanton cannot obtain the drug legally but the U.S. Division of Dangerous Drugs is "looking into" his application to acquire marijuana through government research agencies.

Blanton, 42, told the Fort Lauderdale News Monday he was using the brownies to treat about 50 volunteer patients, following a precedent set by University of California-Los Angeles (UCLA) researchers in 1970.

Head of an eye surgery clinic in Fort Lauderdale, Blanton said he conducted his own research and presented a paper on the subject at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore in April.

He said it is illegal for him to use the marijuana, but he "acquires" it nonetheless, blending the leaves into powder and baking them into a readymade brownie mix.

He said that within an hour of eating a marijuana cookie the pressure of eye fluid within the eye of glaucoma sufferers drops 25 to 35 per cent. These results last for several hours without affecting vision, he said.

Pressure of the eye fluid on the optic nerve is the cause of glaucoma, a disease which can cause blindness and death.

Blanton said legal or not he feels he must go on with his marijuana-brownie treatment. "While I have patients dying of glaucoma."

West Coast rumor: Nixon had bug implanted in chest

WASHINGTON — Any time a U.S. President enters the hospital, rumor and speculation become epidemic.

I do believe, however, that the outbreak of scuttlebutt caused by President Nixon's recent confinement set a new record of sorts.

Everyone, I'm sure, heard the reports that the official diagnosis of viral pneumonia was only a cover and that Nixon actually was suffering from a staff infection or a tape worm.

That word began going around within minutes after the President was admitted to Bethesda Naval Medical Center. And as the week wore on, the poop from the grapevine medics intensified.

Consequently, I was not surprised to receive a note from a tipster, Mike Halligan, suggesting I check out a rumor he had picked up on the West Coast.

Dick West

Halligan had heard it whispered about that one of the spots on Nixon's left lung failed to clear up under the therapy prescribed by his physicians.

THE WAY Halligan heard it, additional x-rays showed that the shadow was being created by a tiny electronic listening device implanted in the President's chest.

After making a few discreet inquiries, I was able to piece together the following report:

Camp David, Md. — White House sources denied today that a team of surgeons, engineers and "plumbers" removed a bugging device from President Nixon's chest during a secret operation at Bethesda Naval Medical Center last week.

"I can state unequivocally that nobody has ever bugged the President, accidentally or otherwise," a spokesman said.

He made the statement in response to rumors that former members of the White House staff had been misguided in their zeal to keep informed through electronic eavesdropping.

The ex-aides were said to have gotten so carried away while hooking up listening devices they even installed one in the President himself.

But White House sources insisted there was no way bugging equipment could have been installed in the President's chest without him knowing about it.

"THE PRESIDENT is extremely ticklish," one source said. "If anyone had started monkeying around his ribs, he would have put a stop to it just as soon as he quit laughing."

This source also discounted the possibility that the device might have been implanted in the President's chest by mistake while Nixon was taking a nap.

"That type of mistake wouldn't have been possible," he said. "The President always sleeps on his stomach."

Social Security and You

People already getting public assistance because they're 65 or over, or blind, or disabled do not have to apply for the new Federal supplemental security income payments, according to Norman R. Thoresen, manager of the Arlington Heights Social Security Office.

"We're taking applications now only from people who aren't getting public assistance but who think they may be eligible for the new federal payments that start next year," Thoresen said.

The aim of the federal program is to provide supplemental payments in cases of need. People 65 or over, or blind, or disabled will have a basic cash income of at least $130 a month for one person and $195 a month for a couple. The amount people will get depends on their other income.

AMONG ELIGIBILITY factors are resources up to $1,500 for single persons, $2,250 for those married. A home of reasonable value will not be counted as an asset.

Certain income also will be disregarded for new supplemental security income. The first $20 a month income generally won't affect the Federal payment. For those working part-time, the first $65 a month of earnings will similarly not be counted. After that, only half of any additional earnings will be counted, Thoresen explained.

"Those not getting public assistance who think they may qualify next year under the Federal Supplemental Security Income Program should contact their local Social Security office at this time," Thoresen said.

Q. My cousin told me that the retirement age for a man has been changed from 65 to 62, and that I can get my full retirement benefit at 62. Is he correct?

A. No. Age 62 will be used only to compute the number of work credits a man needs to qualify for benefits and in computing his average earnings to arrive at his monthly benefit rate. This change in the law will be applied gradually, and will become fully effective for men who will be 62 in 1975 or later. Retirement benefits for men or women continue to be reduced if started before age 65.

Q. Is there anything wrong with having more than one Social Security account number?

A. Yes, because this might cause you to lose valuable Social Security credit for work you do under the program. If you have more than one Social Security account number, contact the Social Security office to find out which is the correct one to use.

Q. I receive Social Security widow's benefits on my late husband's account. My Medicare card bears his Social Security number with the letter "D" after it. I myself never had a Social Security number until recently. Which of these is my correct Social Security number?

A. The latter is the one you should use whenever you are asked for your own Social Security account number. Your husband's number with the letter "D" following it is your claim number. It should be used only when reporting to Social Security events affecting your widow's benefits, or in connection with your Medicare coverage.

Veterans' News

Q — My husband died of service connected disabilities while in military service. Am I eligible for Veterans Administration assistance to take correspondence courses or on-the-job training?

A — Yes. Public Law 92-540 (Oct. 24, 1972) extended these benefits to wives and widows of veterans whose permanent total disabilities or deaths were service connected.

Q — I still carry my World War II "V"-prefixed National Service Life Insurance. Can I get additional coverage?

A — Yes. Public Law 92-188, enacted in December, 1971, allows veterans with these policies to use their insurance dividends to buy additional paid-up life insurance protection.

Q — The Veterans Administration guaranteed $7,500 of my home loan, based on my World War II service. Since VA now guarantees more, do I have more entitlement coming?

A — Yes. VA currently guarantees up to 60 per cent up to a maximum of $12,500 of home loans. Since you received a loan guarantee of only $7,500, you are eligible to apply for an additional $5,000 in loan benefits.

Q — I was discharged about 10 years ago before the current GI Bill was passed. Did I lose out on educational benefits altogether?

A — Not necessarily. For on-the-job training, apprenticeship, farm cooperative and flight training, you have until August, 1975 to use your eligibility. Other education benefits expire May 31, 1974, the eighth anniversary of the current GI Bill. All eligible veterans have 3 years to take advantage of education benefits. Time is computed from the date of discharge or the date the benefit first became available, whichever is later.

Q — What is VA doing to help the severely disabled Vietnam veterans get jobs?

A — In addition to providing medical care and compensation, VA is hiring many handicapped veterans including some who must work in wheel chairs or are blind. In addition, VA is working closely with universities, other government agencies, and business and industry to help disabled veterans get jobs.

Q — If a lender turns down a veteran's application for a GI loan, what should the veteran do?

A — He should see another lender. The fact that one lender is not interested in making the particular type of loan the veteran wants does not preclude the possibility that another may be interested.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

HOLLYWOOD — NBC-TV achieved a memorable visual portrait of a lighter side of American life Tuesday with frequently stunning camera work that caught the special atmosphere of the All-Star baseball game — and the sport itself.

Even viewers who are not enamored of baseball might have understood and felt its endless appeal as NBC-TV, with the help of hand-held cameras and some beautiful scanning techniques, offered almost magical shots of the Kansas City stadium at dusk and into the night.

This was a capsule portrait of part of America at play in midsummer — not merely the athletes, but the spectators at leisure. And some of the shots of the crowded stadium, framed by the darkening sky, were like paintings, or still photographs in a book illustrating the many aspects of pure Americana.

WHAT NBC-TV's cameramen proved anew is that a sensitive eye can find beauty in almost anything — even, for instance, in a baseball park, or perhaps a freeway at night, as well as in the more obvious subjects such as flowers or seashores. Some of Tuesday's stadium shots were almost touching in impact for those who still get a lump in the throat when the essence of a tradition seems to be captured in all its glory.

NBC-TV's executives should be especially thankful that the camera work at the game was so exceptional because the contest itself was as one-sided as a hanging, with the National League demolishing the American League, 7-1. Once matters were decided by a couple of scoring outbursts, the play was about as thrilling as getting your car repaired.

STILL, there were some sights and sounds in the All-Star action that a television viewer will remember. There was Henry Aaron, who has hit 700 home runs and is closing in on Babe Ruth's record of 714, getting a standing ovation when he came up to bat for the first time.

And there was Willie Mays, no longer the ballplayer he once was but still magnetic, also getting a standing ovation when he came up as a pinchhitter in his 24th, and perhaps last, All-Star game. What was particularly moving was that, although he struck out, the crowd gave him another ovation as he walked back to the dugout.

HE HAS that indefinable magic, all right. Throughout the contest, you kept waiting for that moment when he would emerge from the dugout to bat in this series in which he has scored so many personal triumphs. You knew that eventually he would come up to bat, and you kept hoping for that miracle — a home run. But it really didn't matter, so long as he got his shot. There was more excitement in watching him swing and miss than in seeing some other players hit homers. Games come and go, but the memories of Mays remain.

Mays and Aaron. Did someone say they don't make ballplayers the way they used to? Someone is always saying things like that.

Mitchum

'Friends of Eddie Coyle' one of his best movies

by DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — It doesn't seem too long since Robert Mitchum was Hollywood's enfant terrible. The years roll along, even for film stars, and now he's one of Hollywood's elder statesmen.

Gradually, he's gotten the recognition as an actor he always deserved but never received. Like the great stars of the past — Tracy, Bogart, Gable — Bob Mitchum is always in there, doing a great acting job. He'd be the last to admit it.

In common with most of those old-time greats, Mitchum is given to undue modesty, when it comes to his acting. He hardly ever likes his own things. One exception is his new release, "The Friends of Eddie Coyle." This one he is enthusiastic about.

"It's the best thing I've done in a year," he says, which may sound like high praise, except it happens to be the only thing he's done in a year. Even when he's immodest, the modesty shines through.

Scripts continue to pour in to him but he's grown more selective lately.

"I use two criteria in judging what films I'll do," he says. "The first is — is it a picture that I can damage too badly? And, the second, will it be comfortable and convenient?"

"I don't like doing things which involve too much work. Yet, curiously, I enjoy working — when I'm working. It's just that I hate thinking about working."

He has gotten himself trapped in some dreadful films in the past. He says he's often been working on a picture and goes off by himself, sits on a rock and asks, plaintively, "What am I doing here?"

That probably won't happen as much in the future. He's being more careful, more choosy and it seems to be working. As Eddie Coyle, he gives a brilliant performance, even speaks with a Boston accent. I didn't think the picture worked too well but he did.

"The Friends of Eddie Coyle" was filmed entirely in and around Boston and the locations help. Mitchum, surprisingly for one who is away from home as much as he is, says he doesn't like to travel.

"It's funny," he says. "I just don't like to travel — but I like being places. I liked being in Boston. Not that I did much there. I holed up in my motel room most of the time. One good thing was that it was colder season so I spent most of my time drinking cider and eating cheese."

He didn't go to the movies much as a diversion. In fact, not at all. He's a confirmed nonmoviegoer. He just doesn't like them.

Geer, Grandpa Walton aren't alike

by VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Will Geer, the salty grandpa of "The Waltons," says, "I'm three score and 10 and just beginning to live it up."

Geer, who was 71 last March 9, means what he says.

The actor lives a sort of gypsy life in Hollywood. He bought a complex of three houses and eight apartments from an actor friend. They are located along a defunct streetcar line in the heart of Hollywood. The buildings have been converted into a theater where Geer books plays for young talent on Saturdays and Sundays.

A sign outside the compound reads, "We positively do not lease rooms to theatricals." But very few unemployed, un-housed actors are turned away when applying for a roof over their heads.

GEER IS UNMARRIED, but winks broadly when the subject of lady friends comes up.

He's had his own repertory company since 1924 and still travels around the country in an old Greyhound bus that has been fitted with living quarters for his performing troupe.

When the CBS series goes on hiatus Geer loads up his bus and barnstorms across the country putting on plays.

Geer says his real home is in Stratford, Conn., where his pride and joy is a vegetable garden. But he is a natural food freak no matter where he alights.

In southern California he plants okra, corn, lettuce and other vegetables in a garden in Topanga Canyon, 20 miles from his house. He also cultivates a small plot in the compound for his tenants.

ON CLEAR NIGHTS — which is most of the time — Geer sleeps out in the garden on a cot. He prefers his 13-acre ranch in Massachusetts during the months of April and May during spring planting.

"That's where I used to keep my wives when I was married," he said, grinning. "I was married three times, you know."

And my favorite wife had most of my kids."

Geer and Grandpa Walton have little in common in life style or attitudes — except perhaps their eye for the ladies.

An avid ecologist, Geer dislikes automobiles and smog. He believes he is striking a blow for cleaner air by riding a bicycle around Hollywood.

HE COOKS all his own meals, and frequently dishes up goodies for his folklore group of players and tenants whom he treats with the benevolent authority of a patriarch.

He generally appears at Warner Bros. for work at 7 a.m., usually is involved in scenes until late afternoon when the child stars must call it a day. Then he's off for home.

Geer says he was born with show business in his veins. His own grandfather was a 49er who made his strike in California and returned to Frankfort, Ind., to build an opera house.

"He led the good life," Geer concluded. "So do I."

Stamp Notes...by Bernadine M. Rechner

8-cent release to honor Yank poet Robinson Jeffers

The U.S. Postal Service will release an 8 cent commemorative stamp honoring the American poet Robinson Jeffers Aug. 13 at Carmel, Calif.

The stamp, designed by Mark English, is one of four in the American Arts series which will include novelist Willa Cather and artist Henry Ossawa Tanner. Composer George Gershwin's commemorative was released Feb. 28th.

The Jeffers stamp will be printed by gravure on the Andreotti press in six colors. Each pane will bear six plate numbers.

Jeffers was born in Pittsburgh in 1897 and died at his home in Carmel in 1962. The son of a theology teacher, he acquired a love of the classics which he later studied in private schools abroad. Jeffers also studied medicine at the University of Southern California and forestry at the University of Washington. Another influence on his poetry was the California coast, near Carmel, where Jeffers built a house and a tower. His works were mainly allegories with overtones from the Greek and Roman tragedies.

Collectors desiring first day cancellations should send requests to "Jeffers Stamp, Postmaster, Carmel, Calif., 93921" enclosing the proper remittance, the cost of the stamps to be affixed.

THE TITUSVILLE, FLA., Post Office will accept mail from the public to be postmarked July 28 when the Skylab III mission is scheduled for launch.

Mail will be accepted for an 8-hour period beginning at 8 a.m. July 28. The mail will then be taken to Kennedy Space Center Post Office, canceled and placed in the mail stream. In case of a delay in lift-off, mail will be held until launch and then canceled with the new date.

NASA will accept mail orders, limited to five covers per person. Envelopes should be addressed to "Special Philatelic Cancellation, IS-DOC-M, NASA, Kennedy Space Center, Fla., 32899."

Mail orders also will be accepted by the Postal Service in Houston, Tex. Requests should be sent to "Space Cancellation, Main Post Office Window Service, Houston, Tex., 77013." The five covers per person limit applies.

THE U.S. NAVY'S Manned Spacecraft Recovery forces in the Atlantic and Pacific will also cachet and cancel philatelic mail for NASA's Skylab III flight.

Covers will be processed through designated coordinators at Norfolk, Va. and Honolulu, Hawaii. Names of the primary recovery ship and other participating units will be released later.

Covers will be canceled on splashdown day — about Sept. 21. Covers must be received by coordinators before Aug. 15 or they will be returned unprocessed.

Covers must be standard size, 3-5/8x6-1/2 inches, and a three-inch square should be allowed on the left hand side so the cachet may be applied.

Only two covers from each collector will be processed. Extras will be returned. Each cover also must be stamped and carry a complete address.

Collecting Coins...by Mort Reed

Few similarities in coins and medals

At first glance the two central objects of interest in numismatics: coins and medals, would seem to be totally homogeneous in nature, differing only in their point of origin and purpose of existence. But the similarity is not all that simple.

Coins are commercial vehicles of expressed value which can be classified as domestic or foreign; unrecirculated or circulated; rare or common; expensive or inexpensive. Medals, on the other hand, are more or less free agents. They conform to no predetermined standards, leaving the composition, size and subject matter solely to the discretion of the producer's concept of what constitutes a saleable collectors item.

Medals are almost always domestic in origin; unrecirculated; seldom rare and often moderately expensive depending on whether or not it is the product of a reliable medallic art firm or one of the new "letterhead" mints operating out of a glove-compartment.

A true medalist will concentrate his efforts on 1) logical and reasonably accurate subject matter, 2) eye appeal and 3) the most desirable composition for the established selling price. He will limit his edition if it is a series and restrict his production if it is a single issue.

To accomplish these three goals a medal producer must have on his payroll 1) a competent historical researcher, 2) a professional sculptor known for something more than soap carving, and 3) the best die men money will buy.

A majority of the so-called "investor ingots" being sold today are nothing more than silver paperweights totally lacking in collectors' value. There is a noticeable absence of accurate historical detail and sculptural skill which leaves only the purity of the composition to justify their existence. Even this must be checked thoroughly from time to time because some ingots are known to exist with nothing more than a .900 silver content.

Reputable medallic art and private mint firms prefer to conduct their business on the premise that the hobby of medal collecting comes first and the more accurate the historical details, the more attractive the piece will be as a collectors' item.

AFTER FOUR YEARS of metallurgical research, the Letcher Mint developed a "Two Color" work of art consisting of five grains of 24 karat pure gold fused configuratively in the center of a 24.0 gram (370 grains) .999 pure silver medal.

The 1 5/8" Parthenon medal is the third in a series of two-color pieces produced at the Letcher Mint in Lancaster, Calif. It commemorates what historians regard as the most magnificent architectural marvel of the ages. The building stands today at the summit of the Acropolis in Athens, Greece.

The obverse features a sculptured bas relief of the Parthenon in brilliant pure gold against a background of pure silver. The reverse is engraved with the words from a poem by Lord Byron appropriately written about this Grecian structure.

Interested readers may write The Letcher Mint, P.O. Box 107, Lancaster, Calif. 93534, for further details. Only 10,000 pieces will be struck and they sell for $25 each.

Win At Bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

A Canadian reader wants to know if the wily and villainous Mordred ever got a good result in the play at King Arthur's bridge table.

The answer to that is that while Galahad the Pure and Lancelot the Peerless were successful against him, Mordred did very well against the lesser knights.

Here we find Sir Kay the Seneschal in a spade slam. Kay won the heart lead in his hand and immediately led his three of spades and finessed dummy's queen.

This was an error. Kay could not make the slam if West held four trumps to the king-10-eight. The finesse also would cost him if East won with a singleton king.

As soon as the dummy hit the table Mordred had counted points. It was possible for West to have one point. He could not hold two since that would leave Kay with only 15 points and Kay never bid 15 point no-trumps.

Mordred needed two trump tricks and saw only one way to get them. He dropped the eight of spades.

Kay could now have insured his contract against all trump breaks by returning to his hand and leading the spade nine, but Kay wanted an overtrick. He led the spade jack in an effort to pick a doubleton 10 and the wily Mordred had triumphed for once.

Palatine captures 3rd Paddock Olympics championship

by MIKE KLEIN

The Paddock Olympics traveling team trophy, nearly the size of some eight-year-olds, has journeyed "home."

For the third time in seven years, Palatine Park District won team honors Wednesday by outpointing Wheeling, 303-240.

No other park district has won even two Paddock Olympics. Palatine won in the Games' inaugural year, 1967, and followed with a successful title defense.

Then a dry spell hit. River Trails, Roselle, Arlington Heights and Elk Grove won titles but none could repeat. Now, Palatine has become a three-time winner.

The winners were never seriously threatened after leading Wheeling, 167-150, following the opening round on Tuesday at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

In fact, standings did not change through the top four teams after Tuesday. Schaumburg placed third with 190 points and defending champion Elk Grove had 176.

The only park district to greatly improve its position after Tuesday was Mount Prospect, going from seventh to fifth. It switched places with Arlington Heights, official host district.

Mount Prospect's second-day surge came about largely by winning three of four softball game categories and placing second in the other. That gave Mount Prospect 38 of a possible 40 first place points. They totaled 172.

Remaining team standings, which also didn't fluctuate after Tuesday, were Hoffman Estates sixth, Salt Creek eighth and Buffalo Grove ninth. Complete team totals accompany this article.

Palatine won 12 individual plus two team titles on Tuesday and didn't let up after that. Ten more individual titles were won. Palatine also picked up points by placing fourth in tug-of-war, third in softball for girls 10 or 11 and second in softball for boys 10 and 11.

Under the supervision of park director

Steve Whittier, Palatine virtually dominated the softball throw, winning six first place blue ribbons.

The three winning girls with their ages listed in parentheses were Sue Ralf (8), Laura Lowecki (11) and Mary Smith (12). Winning boys were Mark Pape (8), Tom Spoo (11) and John Slywka (6).

Palatine won two first place awards each in boys kickball and tennis singles. Kickball winners were brothers Mark (9) and Mike Benz (13). Alice Hodge (11) and Phil Roberts (11) scored blue ribbon points for Palatine in tennis.

Other girls softball throw winners were Donna Weber (9) of Arlington and Sandy Rainey (10) of Wheeling. Boys who also won blue ribbons were Mike Lindholm (9) of Buffalo Grove, Schaumburg's Doug Allen (10) and Elk Grove's John Nelson (13).

Boys' kickball winners included Mount Prospect's Jim Oswaski (8), Hoffman Estates' Frank Cammsla (10), Schaumburg's Kurt Roushclarg (11) and Elk Grove's Steve Thon (12).

Winners in the girls' division were Wheeling's Martina Nizza (8), Hoffman Estates' Amy Thompson (9), Elk Grove's Tina Desantis (10), Wheeling's Cheryl Wood (11), Hoffman Estates' Sue Burton (12) and Elk Grove's Darlene Briscoe (13).

Girls who won in the basketball free throw were Hoffman Estates' Karris Klimkoski (8), Mount Prospect's Valerie Plucinski (9), Arlington's Lynn Kashmere (10), Salt Creek's Nancy Kelly (11), Salt Creek's Shelly Andre (12) and Arlington's Debbie Dahm (13).

First placers in the boys' category were Glenn Sikarcis (8), Mount Prospect's Wally Szymanowski (9), Schaumburg's Doug Allen (10), Mount Prospect's Craig Perriva (11), Elk Grove's Don Swight (12) and Elk Grove's Scott Parker (13).

Other tennis winners in girls' play were Salt Creek's Laurie Rossities (10), Mount Prospect's Cindy Alberti (12) and Mount Prospect's Mary Dickey (13).

Boys who won included Salt Creek's John Kotsakais (10), Hoffman Estates' Scott Culliton (12) and Hoffman Estates' Orson Faynor (13).

Complete tug-of-war standings, a team event, were Elk Grove, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Palatine.

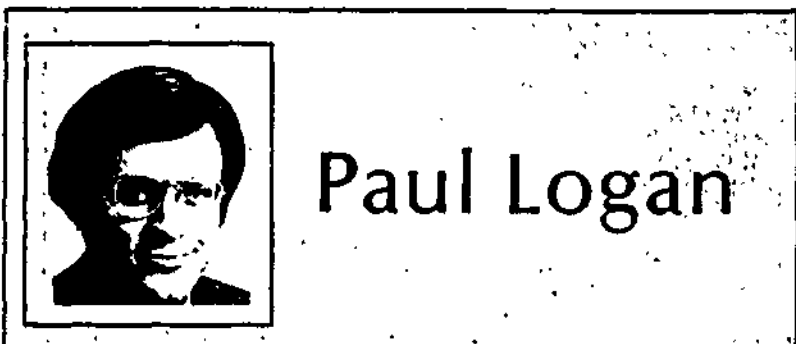

In softball for girls 10 and 11, placers were Schaumburg and Palatine behind winning Mount Prospect. It was Palatine and Wheeling behind Mount Prospect in play among boys the same age.

Schaumburg, Mount Prospect and Wheeling led the field in softball for girls 12 or 13. Mount Prospect won in the boys' category, followed by Wheeling and Hoffman Estates.

In Friday's edition, the Herald will publish names of all individuals who placed first through fifth in any event.

Good attitude keeps future Cub patient

Tom Lundstedt's stockings weren't hung by the chimney with care. They were with the rest of the team's gear back in Indianapolis, Ind.

And as for hoping for Santa — forget it. Tom knows that's still five months away.

However, this 24-year-old baseball player seemed almost as happy as a kid on Dec. 25.

"It's like Christmas in the minor leagues," said Tom, referring to the holiday he was enjoying Tuesday because of the major league All-Star game.

So Tom celebrated with his family in Mount Prospect, a plane ride away from his Wichita team. It was a short "home-stand" because he had to fly back yesterday afternoon for a night game, but it was long enough to discuss the Cubs and himself.

For those of you who haven't been properly introduced to this 6-foot-4, 200-pound catcher, here's a quick glad-to-meet-ya:

After starring at Prospect High School, in American Legion ball and with the University of Michigan, he signed with the Cubs. Now in his fourth year of pro ball, Tom's playing in the American Association (Class AAA) . . . Only one very difficult step away from the "Big's," as they say.

Those who have known him will tell you he's one of those rare humble types. He's kept his head despite plenty of publicity for his numerous exploits over the years.

So it comes as no surprise that he hasn't changed. There have been plenty of reasons for doing so, however, especially this year.

As a public relations man for Wichita mentioned while giving his statistics, "He's been tearing the cover off the ball until late." In other words, big Tom has been enjoying his most successful year as his 10 homers, 45 RBIs and .295 batting average attest (going into last night's game).

Just an hour before, according to the Wichita PR man, Andy Thornton (who was acquired in the Joe Pepitone deal) was called up. He'll be at Wrigley Field today because the slumping Cubs need help at first base.

How about catching help, Tom? Because he hadn't seen the Cubs except for a national televised game, he couldn't comment on that position — a position he has played since Little League.

In fact, he had no idea when he'd get that coveted call from the front office. "It's kind of a funny thing," he said yesterday. "You just can be here today and gone tomorrow. It's something that can happen at any time."

"Hopefully I can make it fairly soon. I feel confident in my ability."

Last month he was blistering the ball at a .340 clip before both he and the whole team hit a slump and dropped out of first place — just as the Cubs did recently.

Still, his .295 average is almost a hundred points higher than Ken Rudolph (.196), the No. 2 man behind Randy Hundley (.222), and No. 3 man Adrian Garret (.180).

"Mostly I try not to worry about statistics," said Tom. "I've tried to develop a philosophy to do as well as I can every time I play and let the statistics take care of themselves."

This attitude is working so far. His homer output has already eclipsed his Class AA (5) and Class A (8) marks.

"I'm real happy with it," he said of his fine season. "No question about it."

He credits his progress to having "another year's experience of left-handed switch hitting. When I was just getting started three years ago (at swinging from the port side), (Don) Kessinger and (Paul) Popovich said it took three or four years to start feeling comfortable. I feel good left-handed and real good right-handed now."

A poll of the Herald sportswriters — men who should be in the know — could come up with just one major league catcher that could switch hit — Ted Simmons. In modern baseball history, there have been very few. Therefore, a giant plus for both the Cubs and Lundstedt.

"I think a catcher has a lot to learn," he said, commenting on the quickness with which players at other positions reach the majors. "There are a lot of mental adjustments as well as the physical."

Of all the challenges of his position, he said he thought his biggest was quickness in getting rid of the ball when the man attempts a stolen base. I think the Cub organization is happy with that (his progress).

Naturally he is aware of old age problems on the north side, but he added "you just can't sit back and try and figure things out. I don't know what the Cubs (front office) are thinking . . . If they'll end up trading people or what."

"I'm sure a lot of guys at Wichita see that some of the guys are getting older. It's just a matter of patience, I guess. It's easier to get impatient."

After talking to a young man seemingly loaded with every asset needed as a major leaguer, you come away thinking that he'll have the patience to wait it out.

Maybe the next phone call will be for him.

Heights romps in playoff opener

by LARRY EVERHART

For four innings at Recreation Park Tuesday, it appeared Arlington Heights might surprisingly be in for a battle against lowly Norwood Park in the only game played among three openers scheduled in the American Legion Ninth District playoff tournament.

It was only 1-0, Arlington, after four and Norwood pitcher Joe Loessy wasn't doing badly at all.

But what happened from then on was more what one would expect considering the league records of the two teams (Arlington 11-4, Norwood 2-13). Heights erupted for seven runs on eight hits in its last four at-bats for an easy 8-0 triumph.

Jim Hopkins had no problems in racking up the mound triumph for Arlington, allowing only three hits and three walks with seven strikeouts in eight innings. Mark Leonhard hurled the ninth.

Arlington Heights, as its reward for taking first place in the regular season, now gets to rest until Saturday while the other teams are at one another's throats. The tournament, as usual, is double-elimination with nine-inning contests.

Four Norwood Park errors made the job easier for coach Lloyd Meyer's team. Ironically, the biggest hitters were Heights' two pitchers, Hopkins and Leonhard. Hopkins was three for four with a double and Leonhard blasted a home run over the center field fence (which had just been put up) to lead off the seventh.

Arlington wasted no time getting on the scoreboard in the first when Bob Harth sharply singled in a run after Mike Broderick had walked and was sacrificed by Marc Klemp.

There was no more scoring until the fifth when Hopkins and Leonhard singled and there were two errors and a walk. Only one run scored from all this as the bases were left loaded.

But it was only a matter of time after that. In the sixth Hopkins doubled, Broderick singled and an error scored another run. Leonhard homered in the next inning and Heights finished the job with a three-run eighth on two walks, still another error and singles by Leonhard and Harth.

3 squads survive prep tourney axe

Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Hersey represented area hopes in the Illinois High School Summer League Tournament after Tuesday's second-round play eliminated three more Herald squads.

In a local head-to-head confrontation, Prospect dumped Conant, 5-2, while Wheeling was sent packing by Evanston, 6-2. Forest View ended the tourney trail at the hands of New Trier East, 9-6.

Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Hersey advanced to third-round play last night in the single-elimination tournament.

PROSPECT SIDELINES CONANT
Prospect rapped 10 hits, but couldn't breathe easy until the final out was recorded as they shaded Conant, 5-2 in second-round play of the summer league tournament.

The Knights knocked Dave Domek for eight hits over the first six innings, but only had a 1-0 lead to show for their efforts. The winners got a tally in the second when Tom Garms walked, Tom Hayes sacrificed him to second and Craig Nicholas delivered a run-scoring single.

The Knights broke the game open in the seventh when they tallied four times on Laddie Janda's pinch single, a sacrifice, Mike Quade's run-producing double, a walk and Jim Anderson's booming three-run homer to left.

Conant refused to fold, though, and rallied for two runs in the bottom of the seventh. John Milke walked and George Rawlinson singled past the left fielder — the resulting error scoring Milke. Another misplay at first tallied Rawlinson and Jeff Ironside just missed putting Conant back in the game when Knight right-fielder Paul Obuchowski made a shoe-string catch of his sinking liner.

Kevin Kelley pitched the distance for Prospect who moved into third-round action against Wheaton Central last night.

WILDCATS BOW OUT
After slugging out a 9-9 deadlock after seven innings with Evanston, Wheeling was muffed in the rematch, 6-2, in second-round action.

The Wildcats managed just four hits — two of them of the extra-base variety — but aided Evanston's decisive four-run fifth and two-run sixth with four errors.

Wheeling jumped on top, 1-0 in the third when Ken Margalski parked a fastball over the outfielders' heads in right-center for a solo home run.

The Wildcats' lead jumped to 2-0 in the fifth when Howard Brauer walked and George Kange slammed a booming triple to left center, but Evanston pushed four across in the bottom of the frame on a swinging bunt, a walk, an error-plagued sacrifice bunt to load the bases, a triple and a suicide squeeze bunt that tallied the fourth.

Wheeling completed its season with a sparkling 19-3 record.

FALCONS OUSTED

Forest View was eliminated from tournament action with a 9-6 loss at New Trier East after the Indians erupted for all of their runs in the first two innings.

Keith Mallan was the pitching victim of the explosion. Don Stevens, however, entered in relief in the second inning and pitched shutout ball the rest of the way.

But Forest View's season was over, for all practical purposes, after the first two frames. Biggest hits were a pair of two-run homers by Tom Hall.

The Falcons got one run each in the third and fourth, the first on a single by Neil Schmidt after Tom Culkar was hit by a pitch and Greg Pfaff singled; the second when Ray Meinen walked, stole second, went to third on a groundout and scored on a wild pitch.

Forest View made noises as though it would still make the game interesting with a four-run sixth, but the comeback died there. This rally started with two outs when Mallan was hit by a pitch, Dave Langowski walked, Culkar again singled, an error brought in two runs and Schmidt singled in two more.

Baseball's Howard Hughes

'Hermit' owner of Cubs

by IRA BERKOW
(First of Two Parts)
(NEA) — "I'm loose," said Phillip K. Wrigley, actually standing there in person in his white shirt sleeves, a little smaller in physical build than one might expect from a genuine mystery man, and a little hunched from his 79 years of covering from the public glare.

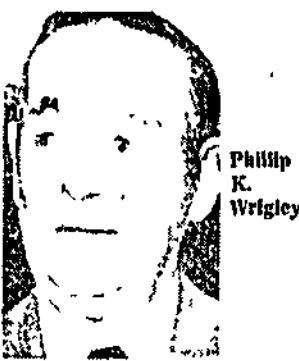

He does exist! He was talking to his prospective interviewer and asking him into his office. He was standing there pouty-eyed and a bit floppy-eared but not dour-looking at all as some of the stiff old photographs show him. There was a sort of comfortable old Home Sweet Home sampler look about him.

Chicago Cub owner Phillip K. Wrigley may not be exactly the Howard Hughes of baseball but he's the closest thing to a multimillionaire hermit the sport has.

Wrigley has owned the Cubs for 40 years. The team has not won a pennant since 1915. From 1917 it spent 20 straight record-smashing seasons in second division despite some of the wildest contrivances by its owner. In recent years the Cubs have gained fame for late-season flops. But now they just might stay on top.

So people are wondering again, who is this mystery man?

Who, in fact, is this unswerving individualist who has done everything from withstand the pressures of putting lights in his ballpark (the Cubs are the only major league club to play only day home games) to pay for the families of his players to accompany the team on a road trip to try a system of rotating managers.

Wrigley hasn't been to Wrigley Field, home of the Cubs, in over 10 years. He got tired of being fawned over by the ushers when he came to his special box. Then he tried sitting incognito in various parts of the park. He was always being discovered by gaping fans and being photographed by the press ("and always with my mouth open").

So this gigantic rich fellow (estimated daily income of $10,000) does not go to Wrigley Field at all (in fact, he hardly ever went — even when the team won a pennant in 1915, he stayed in his office and wrote personal letters to fans explaining why everyone couldn't get tickets) but slips into the white wedding-cake-like 32-story Wrigley Building on the north bank of the Chicago River, where he conducts the business of the largest chewing gum company in the world.

It is here that to the man in the street Wrigley may become a disembodied voice. Everybody who works in the executive offices of the gum company answers his own phone.

His father taught him that they were in a five-cent business. "But even if it's a 10-cent business now," says Wrigley, "we should still remember our level."

"Hello, hello, I wanna talk to Mlshter Wrigley," says the caller with the sudsy voice.

"This is Mr. Wrigley."

"Oh."

"What can I do for you?"

"Well, I'm watchin' the game here and your jerk manager oughta yank the pitcher. Use your influence, huh?"

Click.

Wrigley had been watching the game on television, as usual, in his wood-paneled office. Just as the caller hung up, the manager went out to the mound and changed pitchers.

Wrigley, now, says, "The guy probably turned to his pal on the stool and said, 'Boy, do I get action!'"

(It is one of Wrigley's favorite anecdotes.)

Being uppity is anathema at the gum place, thus the answering of one's own phone. But phones are still a modern necessary evil to Wrigley, who says, "My ambition is to live in a cage without any telephones and a big rock over the door."

He says that "my cave" is the Wrigley House on Lake Geneva. He never answers any of the 21 telephones in the place, whether one rings in the master's bed dressing room or the hall-coat closet or the stable shop or his enormous workshop or anywhere near any of the house's 11 bathrooms.

When asked, "Is it true that you earn over $3 million a year?" he says, "I don't know. Money has never really interested me," and the listener believes this man with the clear blue eyes and avuncular visage.

He has never appeared on television or radio. He has made only two speeches that anybody knows about. Both were after receiving awards. He said, "Thank you," the first time. The second time he burst wide open. He said, "Thank you very much."

So it was shocking when he took out a full-page ad in the Chicago papers in October 3, 1971, to condemn a "Dump Durocher clique" as he called it. It was headed:

"This is for Cub fans and anyone else who is interested" (the latter surely included some disgruntled players).

He ended with: "(Leo) is running the team, and if some of the players do not like it and lie down on the job, during the off season we will see what we can do to find them happier homes." Signed: "Phil Wrigley."

Two things are noteworthy here. One is that Durocher was fired two-thirds of the way through the next season (Wrigley knows when he can go no further with a problem) and second, he spelled his last name correctly, part of the Wrigley legend is that sometimes he even spells his name incorrectly.

Misspelling your own name sounds nearly as eccentric as something Howard Hughes might do. Wrigley does not see himself in that mold at all.

"Howard Hughes goes into a hotel in Las Vegas and when he can't get a room, he buys the place and fires the manager," said Wrigley. He smiled to himself at the probable scene. Then a story occurred to him.

"A fella had a flat tire in front of an insane asylum," said Wrigley. "Several of the inmates came to the bars and watched him take off the bad tire and start to put on the spare. But he accidentally kicked all of the nuts (Wrigley probably meant "lugs") down an open manhole. He didn't know what to do.

"One of the inmates called out, 'Why don't you take one nut from each of the other wheels and put them on the fourth and then fix it up as soon as you get to the nearest service station?'"

"The driver looked with amazement that such an intelligent idea should come from the inmate.

"I may be crazy," said the guy behind the bars, "but I'm not dumb."

Race for top tightening up in Hoffman Estates Men's Golf loop

Just 16 points separates the top six teams in the Hoffman Estates Men's Golf League after last Friday's action.

Quinlan & Tyson (Ray Larson, Joe Valenti, John Sievers, John Murray and Bill Hanson) hold the lead with 120½, followed closely by Hoffman Estates Liquors with 115½, Scotty's Heating at 110½, Schaumrose Inn with 110, Ted's Plumbing at 108 and Rice Heating, rounding out the first division with 104.

Scotty's Heating had the team low net last week with a 173. Dick Thompson's 35 captured low gross while his 29 was good enough for low net as well. Ed Kearns' net 31 paced alternates.

The Des Plaines Tennis Club got back on the winning track last Saturday by beating Skokie in men's "A" 4-1, men's "B" 3-2, women's 4-1 and junior boys 3-2.

The men's "A" team won all four singles matches behind Laddy Birge, Eddie Thompson, Chuck Hawke and Dave Little. Al Valliquet and Dick Lathrop lost in doubles after two and one-half hours with two of three sets decided by a tie breaker.

In men's "B" play, Roger King of Des Plaines won first singles, 6-3 and 7-5, over Ted Besser. Also winning were Howard Pohl, 6-2 and 6-1, plus Lindy Frakes by default after leading, 7-6 and 2-0. Bob Kloeckner lost in singles play for Des Plaines.

In doubles, action, Merlin Schultz and Grant won the first set 6-1 before losing, 6-3 and 6-1.

The men's "C" team played River Trails Tennis Club and lost, 3-2. Gene Tolstad and Bob Schultz won for Des Plaines. Bill Salisbury, Bill Gorman, Kevin Chapman and Bill Schanilec were losers.

In women's play, Ginny Mozdren played an excellent match to secure a team victory over Skokie. The junior boys got a victory in doubles to edge Skokie by a point.

The season ends this Saturday at Wheaton. King continues to lead the men with Salisbury and Tolstad improving greatly. The junior boys have lost one match, to Northbrook.

8. The Backhand (II)

At the conclusion of the backswing, the shoulders have pivoted so that the top of the body faces the alley line and the racket is pointing to the rear fence. Both feet are pointing to the alley but no step has been taken yet. The feet have simply pivoted from their net-facing position to a leftward position. As the player is about to hit his right foot will step forward (toward the net) so that the body will then be completely sideways to the net. As he makes this step with his right foot toward the net, his weight transfers with him from left foot to right and he meets the ball not only with his racket but with his weight as well.

The arms are slightly bent throughout the backswing and hit. They straighten only at the finish, when the racket is pointing to the top of the opponent's fence.

In the backhand stroke, the arms, wrist and racket form a straight line. The wrist is not laid back nor does it lead. It is firm throughout the stroke. This means that the backhand is hit with the shoulder, arm and racket, rather than with any wrist action.

Rolling Meadows to host Metro tourney

Rolling Meadows has been designated one of the sites of this year's upcoming Metro Chicago softball tournament.

Other cities hosting local competition are Yorkville, Aurora, Waukegan, Geneva, Lockport and Rockford. Winners of the various women's fast and slow pitch and men's fast, slow and 16-inch tournaments will then advance to the nationals, at sites across the country.

Teams or recreation departments still wanting to enter the Metro tournaments should contact Metro ASA commissioner Ferris Reid at 4 Knollwood Dr., Aurora.

Team No. 2 leads Chemplex Golf

The seesaw battle between Team No. 2 and Team No. 3 continued into the tenth round of the Chemplex Twilight Golf League.

After the tenth round, Team No. 2 was in first place with 40 points, while Team No. 3, which failed to score any points, dropped into second place with 36 points. In ten weeks of season play, Team No. 2 has been in first place six times, and Team No. 3 the other four.

Average scores for most golfers were lower than usual last week. Eric Janasch, the league's lowest handicapper, set the pace with a low gross of 40, a single stroke less than Ray Cameron.

Low net for the evening was awarded to Ramesh Shroff who posted a 34 (54-20).

Team No. 1 set some sort of a record for team low net as all three members present for the round (Dick Reals, Ray Cameron, and Sven Solvik) finished with net scores of 35.

Birdies for the evening were bagged by Jack Blanchard, on Golden Acres' par 4, hole No. 2, and by Holly Fairchild on par 4, hole No. 7.

Arlington hosts Open Gym Meet

Arlington High School will be the site of an Open Gymnastics Meet Saturday. Gymnasts in age groups 9-and-under, 10-12, 13-14, 15-18 and 19-and-over will compete in Olympic and trampolene events.

The meet, sponsored by the Midwest Gymnastics Association, Inc., is open to everyone. Admission is free while competitors up to 14 years cost $5.00 an event with a $2 maximum. Those 15 and over will be charged $1 an event with a $3 maximum.

Everyone up to 14 years begin optional routines only at 9:30 a.m. Those 15 and over will check in at 11:30 a.m. with competition slated at 1 p.m. Doors open at 8:15 a.m. Ribbons will be awarded to the first five places in each event and trophies to the first and second place teams in each division. Registration is open until Saturday.

Arlington ice plans underway

The Arlington Heights Minor Hockey Association has plans for next season well underway. A block of ice-time at the Arlington Spectrum has been purchased so firm planning can start.

As a result of this purchase AHMHA now has been granted the rights by the Spectrum management to 88 weeks of the Spectrum Hockey School. The Association is selling at the rate of $35 per week. All proceeds from this sale will go to the Association and will be used to defray the costs of ice-time. Call Mary Lou McGuire at 259-6559 for registration at the Spectrum School.

Registration of boys for the program will start Aug. 25 at Recreation Park between 10 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. All registrations must be made in person — no mailed applications will be accepted. Another registration date has been tentatively set for Sept. 8, with competition due to start in early October.

Weber grabs lead in National loop

A pair of wins over Sellergren has vaulted Weber into first place of the National division in Des Plaines Mid-Teen baseball.

Weber's triumphs, 2-1 and 10-4, gives them a half-game edge over Sellergren which had been undefeated in second half play. Weber is now 4½-1½ and Sellergren 4-2.

In other National division results, first half champion Kunkel split a pair with First National, winning 10-0 and losing 7-2. Kunkel is 2-4 and First National 1½-4½.

Allens mashed Johnson, 10-0, upping its American division mark to 4-2. Johnson is 5-1 and still leading the pack.

SCHROEDER BEATS JUST
 Ron Schroeder pitched a complete game three-hitter and struck out 10 as Weber scored in the first and fourth to beat Sellergren, 2-1.

Losing pitcher Joel Just allowed just five hits and struck out nine but got little offensive support. Schroeder had a perfect game until Bob Nelson singled with two out in the sixth.

Weber picked up an unearned run in the first. Jeff Schwarz reached on an error and stole second. Carl Metzger walked and when he drew a wild pickoff attempt, Schwarz scored.

Schroeder helped himself in the fourth by stealing second after a walk. Austin Stanton singled him home for a 2-0 lead. Fred Schmidt's bases loaded single in the seventh drove home Bruce Freeman for Sellergren's only run. Schroeder retired the next two batters to end the game and leave the bases loaded.

WEBER EASY WINNER, 10-4
 Timely hitting combined with a host of Sellergren mistakes in the sixth let Weber coast to a 10-4 win over the ex-division leaders.

Four runs on four errors, two walks and no hits in the sixth gave Weber an uncatchable advantage. Two runs in the first and four in the inning later gave Weber a 6-0 lead. Sellergren came closest when it made all of its four runs and five hits in the third.

Jeff Schwarz doubled, Carl Metzger singled and winning pitcher Bruce Terry tripled for Weber's opening runs. In the second inning, Jim Lofgren, Schwarz and Terry singled. Steve Semler doubled and Bill Finnin walked as Weber scored four runs.

Singles by Kevin Bouchee, Tom Thvedt and Jay Liggett, doubles from Bob Nelson and Joel Just and Norm Plozajski, walk gave Sellergren its four-run third inning.

Terry pitched three hitless innings for Weber. Finnin started for Weber and yielded all four runs and five hits. Metzger pitched one and one-third innings of hitless ball.

Starting and losing pitcher Nelson lasted just two innings for Sellergren, giving six runs on seven hits. Thvedt pitched four innings, allowing just one hit.

 Weber 240 004 x-10-8-7

ALLENS MURDERS JOHNSON
 It was never a ballgame after Allens five-run third but the winners kept pouring it on, winning 10-0, over Johnson which still leads the American division.

Rich Slapke allowed just two hits for Allens, struck out eight and walked one. The losing pitcher was Johnson's Ralph Amelio, even though he allowed just two runs. Dave Labickas pitched three and two-third innings of relief, giving eight runs on eight hits.

Four walks, two wild pitches and only two hits gave Allens five runs in the third. The second hit was a bases loaded triple by Jeff Myers. Mike Paul singled to start the rally.

Paul's single and stolen base plus Rick Felde's hit produced a run in the fourth. John O'Connor's three-run homer made it 9-0 after five innings. Slapke (single), and Jim Olsen (double) scored ahead of him.

Allens' last run came in the sixth after two outs. Slapke singled, moved up on a passed ball and scored on Olsen's hit.

The hidden costs of mobile home living

by MONICA WILCH

"Mobile home residents are treated like second class citizens," the woman complained bitterly.

She was one of many mobile home residents in the northwest suburbs who have detailed to The Herald a pattern of abusive and potentially illegal practices by mobile home park managers — but she was one of very few who recognized it as "second class citizen" treatment.

Paradoxically, while most mobile home dwellers choose this alternative for low cost and maximum freedom of movement, it frequently turns out to be relatively expensive and extremely restrictive in terms of personal freedom.

It all boils down to that "second class citizen" status: the mobile home tenant is at the mercy of the park manager, without benefit of the kinds of legal protection other citizens living in apartments or homes enjoy.

TO BEGIN WITH, mobile home parks rarely offer leases. Thus, basic laws covering the landlord-tenant relationship do not apply. This means a park manager can raise the rent as frequently and unexpectedly as he pleases, can evict tenants whenever and for whatever reasons he pleases, and can impose whatever rules and regulations he pleases — which may not even be made known to tenants if the manager wishes to use them for the purpose of eviction.

Of course, if a person doesn't like the rules, he needn't move into that park, or if he gets evicted, he can move to another park. But it's not that easy.

In addition to the unpredictability of park managers in admitting tenants to their parks, park space is becoming very scarce. Moreover, there is a great deal of expense in moving from one park to another — besides the actual transportation, which is costly, many parks have "entrance" and "exit" fees which can run anywhere from $5 to $1,500 and are non-refundable.

And the mobile home owner is in no position to decline paying such fees, since, unlike an evicted apartment dweller, he has a trailer on his hands. He must have some place to park it — and zoning regulations usually preclude parking it anywhere other than a mobile home park.

ONE ELDERLY WOMAN living alone in a Des Plaines mobile home park reported that she paid a $1,000 entrance fee when she moved there three years ago. But other tenants said they paid no entrance fee. One tenant told The Herald the entrance fee "depends on whether he (the manager) wants to keep you out." The manager of the park told a reporter the "set-up" fee is "$850 on up, depending on the size of the coach."

More significantly, entrance fees seem to depend on whether the prospective tenants buy their mobile home from the park management or a "preferred" dealer. Another tenant of the Des Plaines park said she bought her mobile home from a nearby dealer who, she said, "took care of" the entrance fee.

"They had a deal between them for one day. So I went right down that night and bought my trailer..."

In an Elk Grove Village park, all but one tenant contacted had bought from the park and paid no entrance fees. The other tenant, who brought a trailer in from Indiana, paid a $50 entrance fee. In another Des Plaines park, all tenants who had bought their trailers there paid no fee, while a family moving a trailer in paid $250.

ACCORDING TO park managers, entrance or set-up fees are intended to cover the cost of installing the mobile home and hooking up the utilities — a rather standard procedure that would not appear to require such a broad and high range of fees.

In one case, reported to The Herald by a resident of a Des Plaines park, a woman moved into a mobile home already in the park, after the former residents had moved out. She paid an $800 "transfer" fee.

In another Elk Grove Village park all tenants The Herald talked to had bought their trailers from the park management and were not charged set-up fees. One tenant commented, "You have to buy your trailer here — you can't buy one somewhere else and move in."

For park managers to openly require that trailers be bought from them if they are to be parked there is a violation of anti-trust law. Several parks have been charged by the Illinois attorney general with such illegal tie-in arrangements and ordered to stop.

But economic coercion to buy from the park seems to be a widespread practice. The attorney general's office currently is investigating other mobile home parks and dealers for alleged anti-trust violations, including a dealer in the northwest suburbs, The Herald learned.

ENTRANCE FEES are only the beginning of the expenses — and inequities — of mobile home living. Monthly rents, although lower than most apartment rents, were found to vary significantly within at least one park. Moreover, the variations did not necessarily correspond to larger lot or trailer size or to length of residence.

In an Elk Grove Village park, one family who has lived there eight years pays $106 a month, while a family who moved in five years ago pays $90. Another woman in the park who has been there less than a year pays $85. The manager of the park told The Herald that the rents are "all the same unless the mobile home is double-size."

Mobile home tenants also, of course, pay their utilities in addition to rent, but in one park residents reported they pay additional fees for each major appliance (besides the electric bill).

Then, there are the gas and oil which are used for cooking and heating. In some parks residents get their own gas, often in bottled form, from various sources. In other parks they get it from the management. All of the parks The Herald checked supply oil from a single distributor. In some states, park managers who supply gas and oil without choice to tenants have been found to be charging inflated prices under kick-back arrangements.

THE SAME PRACTICE has been followed in some parks in connection with skirting and tying down trailers (enclosing the space underneath and making them resistant to wind). Some area parks require and provide these procedures, particularly skirting, for which the charge is anywhere from $350 to $500. Skirting can be done by mobile home owners themselves for less than $200.

Delaware, which has passed legislation regulating mobile home parks, requires that parks give tenants free choice in contracting for various products and services, and the state is seeking to extend that provision to gas and oil.

Extra fees in mobile home parks seem to be as endless as the managers' imaginations. Tenants in one park in Des Plaines told The Herald they are not allowed to have television antennas and must pay $25 to hook up with the management's cable system if they want TV. Another park assesses $1 per month for each child in a family.

EVEN WHEN a tenant decides to move out of a mobile park, his troubles are not over. Unfortunately, many mobile home dwellers neglect to ask (much less get in writing) the park's rules for terminating residence.

Area tenants' impressions of what they must do to leave included paying exit fees ranging from $5 to $100 if they pull their trailer out. Many of the parks require that trailers of a certain age (usually 5 to 7 years old) be taken out when the tenants leave. Other parks, according to tenants, require any trailer that is sold to be taken out.

However, if tenants choose and are permitted — to leave the trailer, these are some of the problems, according to local mobile home dwellers:

"You lose a lot of money when you leave because you have to sell the trailer to the park and they don't offer much."

"If you sell your trailer to an individual, you have to turn over about $400 to the management."

"I think the management would buy the trailer at a considerable loss. They wouldn't let me sell it."

EVEN IF MOBILE home owners are permitted to sell their trailer and leave it in the park, the management usually reserves the right to approve or disapprove prospective buyers and in some instances will impose a stiff entrance fee on them.

The whole procedure puts mobile home owners in a corner — and insures abundant fees for the management regardless of what kind of transition takes place. However, a strong legal precedent was set last December in Massachusetts to rule some of this maneuvering illegal.

A Superior Court judge there ruled that unless a park manager actually sells the mobile home himself, it is a violation of the state's Consumer Protection Act for him to collect a commission from the mobile home owner upon sale of the home. The judge termed the procedure "a slick way for the mobile park entrepreneur to get his hands on someone else's money."

SOME MOBILE HOME parks are quite luxurious, with trailers spaced far apart and surrounded by nicely landscaped yards and broad, paved streets. Other parks are less attractive, the trailers jammed close together, no grass, no skirting around the trailer bottoms and inadequate streets. In both kinds of parks, however, tenants complain of extra fees and other abuses.

Suburban Living

Especially for the Family

YET, AFTER ALL these costs have been exacted, the mobile home owner still can't call his soul his own — though amazingly enough, many park tenants seem to accept the restrictions imposed on them "for their own good."

Managers and tenants alike insist that the regulations are necessary "to keep the park nice." But the major determinants of a park's appearance are the size of the lots, landscaping and paved streets — all dependent upon the management. (And many tenants complained that the management was negligent in maintaining and improving the park's facilities.)

"I love the mobile home — but not the park," a tenant of an Elk Grove Village park said. "We don't have much freedom for what we pay — there are so many restrictions," she said.

"Most people will keep things up without someone on their backs... but if everything's not perfect — the trailer washed and waxed, the yard mowed — you'll get evicted."

"HE (THE PARK MANAGER) gets pretty nasty about it if the grass is a little high," she said. In another park, the manager reportedly mows tenants' grass himself if he thinks it's too high — and tacks a charge on to the next month's rent.

"They hold (the regulations) over you and if you get kicked out there's no place to go," observed a tenant of another Elk Grove Village park. "It's hazardous living — you pay this much money and have this hanging over you."

The worst regulations are those the tenants don't know about. Violation is grounds for eviction — even if the rule was just invented five minutes earlier. Several tenants told The Herald of building porch steps or purchasing certain vehicles; only to be informed afterward that it was not allowed.

As states like Delaware, Florida, California and Michigan have recognized, special legislation is needed to regulate the unique and free-wheeling arena of mobile home living.

"We can use the tools we have," said Peter Kilchenmann of the attorney general's office, "but specific legislation would be useful." The only recourse for mobile home tenants at this time is through anti-trust and consumer fraud laws, which have been used, but spottily.

HOWARD KAUFMAN, head of the Consumer Fraud Division of the attorney general's office, also supports legislation to regulate mobile home parks, but, he lamented, "we're having trouble getting anything at all through the legislature."

According to Kilchenmann, it would be beneficial to require leases — although it would not solve all the problems encountered with mobile home parks.

The Delaware law requires a minimum lease of 120 days, forbids rent increases during that period, and requires all fees and all grounds for eviction to be detailed in the lease. Duties required of the landlord are also spelled out in 11 subsections.

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: We have poison ivy all along our fence. Not only am I covered with blisters, but so are my neighbors. Please, what's the best thing to get rid of it? and is it possible for a dog to infect the children with it? —Anne M.

Yes, of course, dogs can carry poison ivy into a house. So can cats. They brush up against the leaves and bring in the infection on their fur. Some people have caught poison ivy just from smoke from burning leaves. That's how powerful the toxin. If you have this much poison ivy around, you ought to be washing the children thoroughly with strong soap and water the moment they come indoors — and the clothing should be laundered by itself, using strong soap. The best herbicides for poison ivy are amitrole, silvex, ammonium sulfamate and 2, 4-D. The 2, 4-D may be impossible to find. Use any kind of good garden sprayer — and pick early morning or late afternoon when there is the lightest breeze stirring.

Dear Dorothy: My rubber-backed scatter rugs are losing the backing so fast I guess I've either been stung or am doing the wrong thing. The backing has become so straggly I can pull most of it off now. Can these rugs be saved somehow? —Gertrude Foreman

Yes. Most notions departments carry a spray-on backing that will make them serviceable again. What you've probably been doing wrong is washing these rugs in too hot water. Also, I hope you remembered that if put in the dryer, the heat should be just about off. The best way to dry them, really, is outdoors.

Dear Dorothy: Fresh or frozen vegetables, lightly seasoned, then wrapped in foil and placed in a 400-degree oven for 15 to 20 minutes, are cooked beautifully crisp — and they retain their color. —Pat Botsinger

Merlin Elliott now Mrs. George Bork

Mr. and Mrs. George Bork

An area couple who exchanged vows and rings July 8 in the First Methodist Church of Arlington Heights share not only in marriage, but in their careers. They attended Arlington High School, although not together, went on to earn education degrees, and are both in high school teaching at Dist. 214.

The bride and groom are Mary Lynn (Merlin) Elliott, daughter of the Lang Elliotts, 641 S. Burton Place, Arlington, and George Bork, son of Mrs. Frank Bork, 112 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, and the late Mr. Bork.

The bridegroom formerly lived in Arlington Heights, attended Northern Illinois University and teaches and coaches golf, football and basketball at Prospect High School.

MERLIN IS A graduate of Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex., and has been doing substitute teaching in the local high school district this past year.

She and her bridegroom were united in 5 p.m. rites, then greeted their 235 guests at a reception at Arlington Park Towers.

They honeymooned for three weeks in Canada and are now living in Palatine.

As Merlin and her bridal party came down the church aisle, her brother Bruce, of Park Ridge, sang "Day by Day" from Godspell and during the ceremony he sang "Eternal Life," the prayer of St. Francis.

There were four bridesmaids in the procession: the bride's sisters-in-law, Caroline Elliott of Randalstown, Md., and Jeanne Elliott, Park Ridge; and Nancy Hancock and Sue Bowman, both of Dallas, Tex. There was no honor

THE GIRLS wore a Hawaiian print in purple, green, yellow and orange and carried fireside baskets of flowers in matching colors.

The bride chose a white satapeau gown with high neck, long sleeves and chapel train. Heavy Venetian lace trimmed the dress and its matching cap-type headpiece which held an elbow-length veil in place. Merlin carried orange roses, white glads, baby's breath and lilies of the valley.

George had no best man but was attended by Ron Ashley, Elk Grove; Jim Hoffman, Mount Prospect; Larry Pohlman and Roger Voigt, Arlington Heights; and the bride's brothers, Bruce, Park Ridge, and Steven, Arlington.

Gayle Trulove comes back to Arlington for marriage

South Dakota will be the new home of Gayle Imarene Trulove, daughter of the H. E. Truloves of Phoenix, Ariz., formerly of Arlington Heights. Gayle became the wife of James Stanley Case, son of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley A. Case of Livingston, N. J., in an afternoon service in the Church of the Incarnation, Arlington Heights.

For the July 14 nuptials the bride chose an organza gown trimmed with scalloped, sequined, Chantilly lace at the neckline, waist, wrists, and hem. Her chapel-length train was a cascade of lace-edged ruffles, and the elbow-length lace-edged veil was attached to a ruffled bonnet band.

The bride carried a bouquet of white roses.

Maid of honor was Cynthia Carlson of Harvard, Ill., and bridesmaids were Lois Brockmann of Westchester, Susan Kowalik of Skokie, Karen Busch of Harvard, and Becky Geiser of Arlington Heights.

THE ATTENDANTS wore blue floral organza gowns with cape collars. They carried baskets of white daisies, baby's breath, and blue bachelor buttons and wore blue straw picture hats.

The best man was Robert Young of College Park, Ga., and ushers were Herbert Trulove, brother of the bride, from Phoenix, Richard Cicetti of College Park; Stephen Ericson of Stevens Point, Wis.; and Peter Schmiedel of Chicago.

Following a reception at the Black Fox in Rolling Meadows Holiday Inn, the couple took a two-week honeymoon in New England.

The bride is a graduate of Arlington High School and attends Western Illinois University, Macomb. The groom, a graduate of Marietta (Ohio) College, is employed by the Saga Administrative Corp. in Macomb.

The couple will move to Brookings, S. D., Aug. 1 when the groom starts a new assignment.

The Consumer

by Monica Wilch

"Slack fill," the food industry's euphemistic term for "half-empty package," was enough to dampen the spirits of some enthusiastic picnickers last weekend.

Friends of this reporter were unanimously disgusted when they opened several boxes of Jewel Maid potato chips to discover two skinny bags of chips lost at the bottom of each cavernous box. The bags of chips barely filled half the boxes.

According to the label, the box contained 10 ounces of chips (many not-so-old consumers may remember when such boxes contained a pound of chips), and a subsequent weight check confirmed the label.

But the hurried shopper doesn't always take time to read all content labels; he or she makes quick selections based on the sizes of packages and the assumption that they are filled.

IN SOME cases such a judgment proves valid. A competitive brand of potato chips checked by this reporter was filled to the top of the 10-ounce size box.

So, in addition to the waste of excess packaging, the Jewel box misleads the consumer. Just the kind of deception the Fair Packaging and Labeling Act of 1966 was intended to prevent. The Food and Drug Administration has pretty thoroughly lowered the boom as far as the labeling of products is concerned. But packaging continues to be a problem.

A study of "slack fill" conducted by the FDA in 1970-71 revealed that some food products contained as much as 47 per cent "slack fill" — in other words, they were half empty. And the study did not even include potato chips.

The FDA is now laboriously trying to determine how much of the empty space is "functional" — that is, can be justified because of product "settling," or is necessary to protect the product.

THE JEWEL Maid boxes could have been reduced by at least three inches in height without even touching the chips, much less crushing them, in spite of a Jewel spokesman's explanation that "we don't want the chips crushed."

According to Jewel public relations director, William Newby, potato chips "do settle down" after packaging, and the two bags "take extra space." But even "unsettled," those chips could not have filled that box. And other brands packaged in two bags manage not to have so much wasted space in their boxes.

Food shoppers today are quite aware that they're paying more and getting less; it's only adding insult to injury when the food industry tries to deceive consumers with over-sized, half-filled packages.

STAMP SAVERS may now redeem their S&H stamps for cash by order of the Federal Trade Commission. But at $2 a book, the current cash redemption rate consumers would do better to continue redeeming for merchandise, since the value of a book redeemed that way is $3.

The way it works is that S&H buys the merchandise wholesale at a discount price. They in turn pass along this savings to stamp savers. But the benefit is lost when consumers redeem their stamps for cash, since the company obviously cannot buy money wholesale.

Moreover, according to Ron Supp, district manager at S&H's Hillside office, Deceptive packaging protested

the merchandise in the redemption centers is top-line and, in many cases, Fair Traded — meaning it cannot be sold at discount prices.

Thus, to obtain it anywhere else, the consumer would have to pay a full retail list price — a price often higher than the cash value of the stamps.

WHILE THE FTC seems determined to put S&H in a strait jacket with its requirements to insure cash redemption (which already was law in some states and not refused elsewhere), few consumers seem interested in cash redemption. Nationally, 95 per cent of all S&H stamps issued are redeemed, and in Maryland, following passage of a cash redemption law, only 1.5 per cent of the green stamps were redeemed for cash.

Some consumers, along with FC Commissioner Mary Gardner Jones, voice the conviction that trading stamps cause higher retail prices in the stores giving them. But numerous studies by government agencies and universities, as well as an investigation by The Herald (Oct. 23-24, 1972) have failed to turn up any evidence supporting this suspicion.

Diane Spurr a June bride

Our Saviour's United Methodist Church in Hoffman Estates was decked with a variety of white floral arrangements and candelabras for the June 23 wedding of Diane Lynn Spurr of Hoffman and John Edward Morrison of McHenry.

At the back of the altar were vases filled with white daisies, glads and mums and in front were large urns holding the same floral setting. A chain of daisies, baby's breath and leather fern decorated the wrought iron railing around the altar, and the pews were dotted with baby's breath and fern bouquets tied with white bows.

Diane and John were united in marriage at 1:30 p.m., then greeted their guests at a reception in the church hall where a buffet table was centered with the three-tiered wedding cake.

DIANE is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Spurr of 479 Campbell Lane, Hoffman Estates, and John's parents are the John L. Morrisons of McHenry.

Among the many out-of-town guests at the nuptials was Diane's grandfather, William Spurr of Cleveland, Ohio.

The bride was dressed in a gown of white organza, Victorian styled, with a white lace train holding her elbow-length veil in place. Her gown had a ruffled yoke and high neckline of white tatted English cotton lace, which was repeated on the top and cuffs of the bishop sleeves. The same theme was carried out in the lace sash and double-tiered hemline and train.

The bride's bouquet was composed of a single white orchid, white roses, stephanotis, baby's breath and lily.

HER ATTENDANTS were gowned alike in turquoise, green and white plaid voile, also Victorian styled, with white pique yokes and ruffled necklines. A white grosgrain ribbon encircled the waists, and double-tiered ruffles edged

Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison

the hems. The girls wore turquoise picture hats and carried nosegays of turquoise and green shasta daisies and baby's breath, tied with white pique streamers.

Gail Marie Spurr was her sister's maid of honor and Mary Moran, Schaumburg, and Leslie McDonald, Elk Grove Village, were bridesmaids.

Their escorts were Douglas E. Paquette, Mundelein, who was best man, and Edward Foster, Lincoln, Neb., an uncle of the groom, and James Oster, Mundelein, who were groomsmen. Soloist for the double ring service was Mrs. Douglas Paquette.

AFTER A week's honeymoon in Miami Beach, the newlyweds are living in a Hoffman Estates apartment. Diane works for Midaco Corp., Elk Grove, and John for Chicago Corrugated Box, also in Elk Grove.

She graduated from Conant High School in '70 and from Massey Junior College, Atlanta, Ga. the following year. John is a '66 graduate of Conant High, then spent seven years in U. S. Navy submarine service and a year at Southern Illinois University.

Chester C. Sipiora takes bride July 7 in Florida

A former Mount Prospect resident, the Chester F. Sipioras, are sending news from their home in Largo, Fla., of the marriage of their son, Chester Craig, to Nancy Evelyn Bennett of Belleair, Fla.

The bridegroom is a '66 graduate of Prospect High School and after a stint in the U. S. Army was discharged as a First Lieutenant.

The couple was married July 7 in St. Jerome Catholic Church in Largo, with a reception following at Bardmoor Country Club, Largo.

NANCY is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Bennett of Belleair.

She wore a white crystal satepeau gown with a circlet neckline, ribboned organza bodice and Juliet sleeves re-embroidered with Alencon lace. A wide flounce at the hemline extended into a chapel train.

At the neckline Nancy wore a pearl and silver pendant from her paternal grandmother, and over her hair was an elbow-length veil secured by a lace and pearl crown. She carried a nosegay of white lavender roses and baby's breath.

Mrs. Thomas VanderVoort was matron of honor; Dalane Decker, maid of honor; and the groom's sisters, Cheryl and Cindy Sipiora, bridesmaids. They were gowned in lavender dotted swiss rimmed in Venice lace and wore white picture hats with lavender trim. Each carried a nosegay of yellow roses, lavender pompoms and pink carnations.

Lady Waltonians attend convention

Four Lady Waltonians of the Des Plaines Izaak Walton League recently attended the national convention held in Duluth, Minn.

Dr. Alfred J. Kreft, formerly of Des Plaines, now residing in Portland, Ore., was named president of the entire league and John Case of Des Plaines Chapter 206, was elected national vice president.

Attending the convention were Mrs. Marie Crowley, Mrs. Millie McGee, Mrs. Ann Smith and Mrs. Sue Romkins.

The Lady Waltonians are now planning their Monte Carlo Night to be held Sept. 28.

Remember victory gardens?

It's post-war time again and now a massive effort is being directed to fight the war on inflation, with the establishment of a National Gardening Program — starting from the White House and branching out into all parts of society.

The man who has set out to spread this renewed grow-it-yourself movement is James Paulk, president of Bonnie Plant Farms in Union Springs, Ala.

Paulk announced at a press conference last week his offer to donate 50,000 free vegetable plants to every school district in the country if they will initiate a gardening course.

To launch his mammoth garden project, Paulk gave away half a million cabbage, collard, tomato, pepper and eggplant seedlings earlier in the season on the small lot near the Washington Monument in the nation's capital. Three thousand people rushed over to grab up the seedlings during the hours that followed.

YOU MIGHT REMEMBER seeing a photo of Governor Wallace's wife posing in blue jeans in a vegetable garden planted behind the Alabama Executive Mansion. Paulk was the fellow who got Governor Wallace to do that promotion. The photo was carried in newspapers nationwide.

When a major flood destroyed thousands of Pennsylvania gardens this spring, Paulk sent a million place replacements there. The Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture was asked to have been astounded, as Paulk asked no compensation for the mercy mission and no favors. But his mission was accomplished there: the people got the message of the new National Gardening Program.

Paulk recently got the Alabama State School Board to endorse a program of teaching gardening to all the schools of Alabama with the cooperation of the University Cooperative Extension Service. Sixteen hundred public schools and 70 private schools in Alabama are involved in the program to teach gardening. It's the first step in the ultimate goal of teaching gardening in every school system in the nation.

Paulk's plan seeks to fight inflation by increasing the food supply and reducing the cost of the family meal. Surely, nobody need be reminded of the exorbitant grocery bills nowadays.

THE NATIONAL GARDENING Program is Paulk's alternative to welfare handouts. He explains it like this: In Bullock County, Alabama (where Paulk lives), 900 welfare families are receiving food stamps. As an example, if a family gets $1,000 a year in food stamps, Paulk proposes that, instead, the family will get $900 with the other $20 earmarked to buy seeds, fertilizers, etc., at a garden supply store. This $20 investment is mathematically capable of producing a harvest of 30 to 1 (actually $600 worth of food). The following year, by growing their own, this same welfare family could get by on a $400 subsidy. Applied nationally, this could conceivably save U.S. taxpayers $29 billion a year.

In a neighboring Alabama county, this seed order vs. food stamp idea has already been implemented, with the government issuing 642 lower-income families an $11 seed-fertilizer allowance. The government hired assistants to consult with the beginning gardeners and a few women to assist in freezing and canning aids. For a $7,000 investment here, $224,000 worth of vegetables were eaten or preserved.

BEFORE THE SPRING of 1975, Jim Paulk hopes to have the Food Stamp Act amended so that in every state seeds, fertilizers and planting supplies may be purchased by poverty-level people in lieu of a portion of their ready-to-eat grocery allowance.

Paulk believes that "it is really rare to find a program to benefit everybody in the Nation. This one is geared to fight inflation, improve nutrition, promote healthful exercise, save on food costs, and reduce government spending for welfare, by giving people a job with dignity — in their own backyards."

You'll be hearing a lot more about Jim Paulk and the National Garden Program in upcoming months.

I believe that if we can teach our children to grow food, just as they are taught to read, spell and add, we parents can rest assured that our children — no matter what — will never go hungry. And if you want YOUR child to have the advantage of learning to grow his own food, then talk it up with PTA, tell the school board, and most importantly, write the state superintendent of schools in Springfield.

Lab mice prefer female company

An Australian research company has revealed that its mice can only feel really content in human female company.

It appears that male laboratory workers cannot establish this same rapport with the little pests.

Dr. Margaret Holmes, assistant manager at the Walter and Eliza Hall Institute which runs the laboratory, said the mice can tell the difference between male and female lab assistants. "They become upset if their favorite female assistant is changed," Dr. Holmes said.

The center, partly backed by the Australian and Victorian governments, is aimed at producing germ-free mice and rats.

Until now, research has been hampered by these animals dying due to normal infections occurring during vital experiments to isolate causes of cancer and other killer diseases.

Strict hygienic conditions have been formulated at the institute to help produce super-healthy mice. (UPI)

Used children's clothing needed

A clothing drive is in progress for the Illinois Department of Children and Family Services. Elk Grove Village Jaycees are sponsoring the area-wide collection.

Clothing in sizes from birth to age 10 are needed for children who must be placed in emergency foster homes.

Anyone having clean used items to donate may call 439-8957 for pick-up or drop-off.

Frenchman amasses data

Collector's collection collects collectors

by ROSETTE HARGROVE

PARIS — Shortly coming off the press is "WHO'S WHAT?", a mighty tome, the work of Jean-Claude Baudot.

This, he claims, will be the only directory of its kind of interest to collectors. He has gathered some 17,000 names covering 400 items, as well as 300 clubs or associations, 200 periodicals and again as many small obscure museums, covering altogether 30 countries' worth of collecting information.

It took Baudot — a collector who collects collectors — three years to compile his WHO'S WHAT.

His own particular hobby is ancient toys and games. Now in his late 30s, he started 25 years ago but he declares he wasted time, effort and money getting in touch with people with identical interests. This is what led him to think in terms of a bi-lingual international directory of collectors.

The work is meant to facilitate contacts between private collectors, clubs and associations.

Collectors seem to belong to a special race whose primary quality is perseverance. But they also sometimes are peculiar. It was Balzac who once wrote about the "incomparable joy of collectors."

Outside classic or orthodox collections of stamps, coins, objects of art, paintings, musical instruments — from harps to harmonicas — autographs, antique automobiles, there are those people who collect weird, even morbid things.

IMAGINATION runs riot so far as collectors are concerned. Running from the gentleman whose hobby is chateaux — he owns 40 — to the characters who hunt posters, bidets, elevators, sails, or the type who specializes in death, murder and executions.

Among the latter is a Frenchman who is the proud owner of a bill, written on parchment, listing the cost of public trial and execution of 23 witches at Dax, France, in 1544. It even enumerates the cost of the ropes to tie the victims, the straw, twigs and logs for the stake, sulphur and resin to keep the fires burning, plus the barber's fee for shaving the unfortunate creatures' heads, and finally the trumpeter who heralded the execution on the marketplace.

Also included in his collection is a "Perfect Crime Manual" printed circa mid-19th century. One of the simplest ways, apparently, is to feed plants poisonous to man to the common garden snail. They like belladonna, for example. Then the snails can be cooked in garlic butter and served to the unsuspecting victim. (Result guaranteed.)

Music boxes, ash trays, buttons, postal and cigar cards, tin soldiers, laundry irons, matchboxes, lamps, even out-of-date passports are popular, if more banal.

Definitely out of the ordinary however is the Frenchman who collects chamber pots. He recently traveled to East Germany, where he was told of a unique specimen — a double one. Until the advent of modern plumbing, these intimate objects, like bidets and lavatory seats, often were works of art.

THEY RANGED from the most plain and humble to specimens made of the finest porcelain and often decorated by well known artists. Decorated bidets and lavatories were common even in bourgeois homes well into the 1930's. Today they are eagerly snatched up and command high prices.

Jean-Claude Baudot's fifth floor apartment, a stone's throw from the Madeleine, is cluttered with all sorts of things. There is a mini-mechanical piano (his latest find), a scattering of art nouveau knickknacks, while along one wall there are four penny-in-the-slot machines, the ancestors of one-armed bandits, an ancient billiard table. A modern touch — three enormous collapsible floor cushions.

Surprisingly, according to Baudot, 90 per cent of collectors are 90 per cent masculine. He stresses the fact that the hobby is not only fascinating but can be quite lucrative. "A good collection of any interesting line can today easily increase in value by 25 per cent in a year or more." He also quotes Walpole as saying: "The real secret of life is to be deeply interested in a given thing and sufficiently interested in a thousand others."

Let your table host a SEAFOOD FESTIVAL

Two happenings on the wave-laced shores of Massachusetts serve to focus attention on the rich harvest of fish and shellfish brought into its ports daily. Gloucester, glorified by poets, writers, and movie makers for its contribution to American fishing history, celebrates its 350th birthday. Days of wind-driven schooners and lonely dorymen on the Grand Banks will be recalled even as today's diesel-powered fishing fleet off-loads its catch of ocean perch, whiting, cod or herring.

Meanwhile, down the coast 80 miles as the seagull flies, another historic port revives a popular seafood festival. New Bedford, once the home port of globe girdling whalers, is the nation's number 1 port for flounder and sea scallops. On July 28 and 29 this venerable port will welcome vacationing visitors to a great feasting on fresh-from-the-ocean seafoods.

Not everyone can get to a seafood festival. But there's no reason you can't have your own — backyard style. The firm flesh of cold-water bred Massachusetts fish lends itself nicely to outdoor cooking. These days, many inland seafood lovers can enjoy fish fresh from Atlantic waters. Fast air and ground transportation and sophisticated shipping containers make it possible to whisk fresh seafoods to all parts of the country. But the salty atmosphere and cool seabreezes of Massachusetts' historic fishing ports, alas, are not transportable.

Ocean Perch Kabobs

- | | |
|--|-----------------------------------|
| 1 pound ocean perch fillets, fresh or frozen | 24 soft-shell clams (steamers) |
| Marinade | 12 strips bacon, halved crosswise |
| 4 green peppers, cut into squares | 16 small apricot halves |
| | Cucumber Sauce |

If perch is frozen, defrost. Cut each fillet into 8 crosswise slices. Pour marinade over fish, let stand 1 1/2 hours at room temperature, stirring occasionally. Drain, saving marinade. Fold fillets over once. Meanwhile steam clams; cool; remove from shells; wrap each clam in 1/2 slice bacon. String six skewers alternating bacon-wrapped clams, fish, green pepper squares, and well-drained apricot halves. Place on a well-greased grill about 4-inches above glowing coals. Brush with marinade. Grill for about 10 minutes, turning once and brushing often with marinade. Slip off skewers onto plates or into frankfurter rolls. Serve with Cucumber Sauce. Makes 8 kabobs.

Marinade

- | | |
|---------------------------------|----------------------|
| 1/2 cup rose wine | 1/4 teaspoon chervil |
| 1/4 cup water | 1/4 teaspoon salt |
| 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce | 1/2 teaspoon Accent |
| 1 tablespoon parsley flakes | |

Combine all ingredients; mix well.

Cucumber Sauce

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1 cup diced peeled cucumber | 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel |
| 1/2 cup water | 2 teaspoons lemon juice |
| 2 tablespoons butter or margarine | 1/2 teaspoon onion salt |
| 2 tablespoons flour | 1/2 teaspoon sugar |
| | 1/4 cup diced pimiento |

Cook cucumber in 1/2 cup water until transparent and tender; drain, saving cooking water. Melt butter; blend in flour. Measure cooking water; add enough more water to make 1 cup; add to flour mixture; stir over medium heat until smooth and thickened. Add remaining ingredients; mix well. Add drained cucumber. Makes about 2 cups.

Heavenly and Hawaiian

Two winning ways with ice cream

Heavenly Ice Cream Puff Fondue was named the winning recipe in a recent Ice Cream Show-Off contest sponsored by Boskin-Robbins.

The combination of ice cream, cream puffs and chocolate sauce was submitted by Laurie Hoppe Freedman, a 20-year-old college student in Buffalo, N.Y.

Described as a "do-ahead" and a "dipper," the dessert starts with small cream puffs filled with Jamoca, Burgundy Cherry and Chocolate Mint ice creams. You spear the ice cream puff with a fork and dip it into a chocolate sauce, warmed in a fondue pot, a chafing dish or a skillet.

Miss Freedman received a compact car as her grand prize. Forty-six other prizes were awarded for the best recipes in four categories in the first Ice Cream Show-Off.

Baked Hawaii, submitted by Mrs. Richard Dickinson, Indianapolis, Ind., is another prize winning dessert from the contest.

A fresh pineapple half is filled with pineapple chunks, Burgundy Cherry and Nutty Coconut ice creams and placed in the freezer. Just before serving, the pineapple shells are topped with meringue and browned quickly in the oven.

HEAVENLY ICE CREAM PUFF FONDUE

- 30 miniature cream puffs, bakery or home-made
- 1 pint Burgundy Cherry ice cream
- 1 pint Chocolate Mint ice cream
- 1 pint Jamoca ice cream
- 2 cups Chocolate Fondue Sauce

Cut tops off puffs, pull out any filaments of dough to form a shell. Fill and mound six puffs, using a melon-ball cutter or teaspoon, with one flavor of ice cream. Press tops into ice cream, place in freezer. Fill six more puffs with second ice cream flavor. Freeze; repeat with third flavor. Continue to vary flavors until needed numbers of puffs are filled, 5 to a serving. When all are frozen, place in a plastic bag, freeze until served. To serve; gently heat Chocolate Fondue Sauce in a fondue pot or decorative skillet; arrange frozen filled puffs on plates. Each guest spears a puff with fondue fork, dips into the Sauce and swirls to coat. If desired, small bowls of flaked coconut, chopped pecans and sprinkles can be arranged around Sauce in which to dip the chocolate-coated puffs. Makes 6 servings.

Chocolate Fondue Sauce

- 1 can (14 ounces) sweetened condensed milk
- 1 package (12 ounces) semi-sweet chocolate bits
- 1 jar (7 ounces) marshmallow creme or 1 cup miniature marshmallows
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine all ingredients in fondue pot or saucepan. Heat over medium heat, stirring, until mixture is smooth and warmed through. Sauce can be made ahead and reheated. Add a little milk if sauce becomes too thick. Makes 4 cups.

Miniature Cream Puffs

(Miniature cream puffs can be ordered, in advance, from many bakeries.) Preheat oven to 375 degrees. In medium saucepan slowly bring 1 cup water, 1/2 cup butter or margarine, and 1/2 teaspoon salt to a boil. Turn heat low, stir in 1 cup sifted all-purpose flour all at once. Beat until mixture leaves side of pan and forms into a small, compact ball. Remove from heat, then add 4 eggs, one at a time, beating until smooth after each addition. Drop dough, by slightly rounded teaspoons, about the size of a quarter, 2 inches apart, onto ungreased baking sheet. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until puffed and golden. Cook away from draft. Makes from 60 to 70 Miniature Cream Puffs.

BAKED HAWAII

- 1 large ripe pineapple
- 1/2 cup sugar
- 1 teaspoon rum flavoring
- 1 pint Burgundy Cherry ice cream
- 1 pint Nutty Coconut ice cream
- Meringue

Halve pineapple lengthwise keeping leaves intact and cutting right through them. (Use one half for Baked Hawaii, other for fruit salad, etc. Or, make two Baked Hawaii's, using a quart each of the ice creams.) With sharp knife, cut out the fruit, leaving a shell. Cut out core, discard, cut fruit into bite-size pieces. Put half the fruit pieces into bowl; mix with sugar and rum flavoring. Let stand 30 minutes. Wrap leaves of pineapple with foil, put in freezer for 30 minutes. Remove shell from freezer; half fill with slightly softened Burgundy Cherry ice cream; add a layer of the rum-pineapple pieces; fill remainder of shell with softened Nutty Coconut ice cream. Freeze for at least two hours.

Make a meringue by beating 3 egg whites with 1 teaspoon lemon juice until frothy. Gradually beat in 6 tablespoons sugar, a little at a time. Continue beating until stiff and glossy. Remove filled pineapple from freezer, place on small cutting board or baking sheet. Completely cover and seal ice cream and edge of shell with meringue. (If desired, freeze up to 24 hours.) Bake in a preheated 500 degree oven, on lowest rack, about 3 minutes or until meringue is delicately browned. Remove foil from leaves. Slice, with heavy sharp knife, or electric knife, through shell, into one-inch slices. Makes 6 servings.

Heavenly Ice Cream Puff Fondue

Baked Hawaii

Tropical touch for ham and eggs

Slices of canned pineapple and bananas lend fruity goodness to Ham and Eggs Hawaiian style, a perfect all-in-one entree for a festive supper or Sunday brunch.

Pan-fry a thick ham slice, then set it aside and keep warm. In the same skillet, lightly saute the pineapple and bananas in the pan juices while adding a little brown sugar and pineapple syrup. This creates a caramel-like glaze which is poured over ham and fruit before serving.

The eggs may be fried, poached or scrambled according to personal preferences. And since eggs are still a good food buy, they help this recipe qualify as economical. You'll also get four to six servings from the ham depending upon size of slice.

HAM AND EGGS HAWAIIAN STYLE

- 1 (15 1/2 ounce) can sliced pineapple
- 1 slice ham (1-inch thick)
- 1/4 cup butter
- 2 large bananas

- 1/3 cup brown sugar (packed)

- 1/4 cup syrup from pineapple
- 4 eggs, pan fried

Chopped parsley for garnish

Drain pineapple saving 1/4 cup syrup. Trim excess fat from ham. Cook ham in 2 tablespoons butter over moderate heat until heated and lightly browned on both sides. Remove ham and keep warm. Add drained pineapple slices to pan and saute until lightly browned; pile on top of ham slice. Add remaining 2 tablespoons butter to pan. Cut peeled bananas into large pieces. Add to pan and cook just until heated, gently turning fruit. Remove and arrange around ham. Sprinkle brown sugar into pan in which fruit and ham was cooked. Add 1/4 cup syrup from pineapple. Bring to boiling and simmer 3 or 4 minutes. Spoon over ham. Serve with pan-fried eggs, sprinkled with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

You're invited to dinner but better bring an apron

by FRAN HECKART

A little imagination and a lot of clan can turn an ordinary dinner party into a festive evening that guests aren't apt to soon forget. Just ask Mrs. John (Skip) Kennedy. Her most recent dinner party could better be described as fringing on madcap rather than anything akin to conventional. But then one might expect that, when the hostess asks the guests to make their own dinner.

Gina Kenney recently invited seven couples to her Arlington Heights home for dinner. All were forewarned that anyone "socially late" would miss the fun. As instructed they arrived at 5 p.m. expecting only a typical dinner party.

But the daring hostess had big plans awaiting her 14 guests. After a round of cocktails she yelled "surprise" and made her announcement.

GUESTS WERE TO be divided into five groups of three each. Each group was handed an envelope with one of the following notations: appetizers, salad, vegetable, meat, dessert. Inside each was grocery money ranging from $1.50 to $11.

Party rules devised by Gina were simple. Each team was to shop for the food, prepare it and serve the course noted on their envelopes.

They were not to return home for ingredients, buy prepared food or spend more than the contents of the envelope. Gina's cookbooks were off limits and the women were urged to let the men be creative in the name of women's lib.

Gina concluded her speech with directions to the local supermarkets. Whether her guests were just hungry or good sports, they were going to put the food on the table.

"After the initial groans, cheers and 'You're kidding' reactions, everyone rallied and set out for stores," said Gina.

"EVERYONE LEFT the house at 5:45 p.m. and were back by 6:30 p.m. clutching their grocery bags." The hostess, who had cleverly assigned her husband to a group, had nothing left to do except go along for the ride.

She had previously set the food budget at $20 and divided it among the envelopes. "Actually the 'game' was a challenge in budgeting as well as a good party mixer," Gina said.

It just so happened that the Kenney's guests turned out to be excellent cooks and pretty clever with limited funds.

The hors d'oeuvres committee spent their allotted $2.50 on chipped beef, ham and cheese. Gina supplied the horseradish which was mixed with the cheese and spread on the ham. The group also prepared tiny muffins topped with ham and cheese.

THE $1.50 FOR THE salad was spent on spinach, a head of lettuce, tomatoes, one onion and croutons. High produce prices put a squeeze on the salad findings which, according to Gina, was the only dish that ran short.

Ideas for ham and Kentucky fried chicken were considered and rejected by the meat committee for an original dish they named Beef Arlington.

The original entree turned out to be a bread stuffing sandwiched between dinner-plate size hamburgers which were cooked on the grill outside. The creators of Beef Arlington had been given $11 to spend.

Zucchini squash, egg plant, tomatoes, onions and green pepper seasoned with garlic salt was the offering from the vegetable group.

"I think this group over-extended their $2 budget," said Gina, "but the result was an imaginative and tasty vegetable casserole."

THE DESSERT TEAM spent $3 on watermelon, cantalope, sherbet and animal crackers. (There wasn't enough money for the preferred vanilla wafers.) This creative threesome served a mound of sherbet surrounded by melon balls and decorated with animal crackers.

All the while the guests crowded into Gina's tiny kitchen to do the cooking she supplied pots and pans. "I think it was about 9 p.m. before we finally sat down to dinner," Gina recalled. "I kept washing dishes, but with about 14 people cooking in the same kitchen there was still a mess."

Yet she admitted good naturedly that the inevitable mess was small penance for having the dinner prepared. It was all part of the fun.

Fortunately, everybody pitched in and the kitchen was returned to its natural state, according to Gina.

PERHAPS IT SEEMS unbelievable that a hostess should decide to have guests cook their own dinner, but Gina, the woman who tried it, feels that the party was one of the most successful she's had.

"I had invited two groups of people," said Gina. "By the end of the evening, everyone was talking and laughing as if they'd known each other for years."

She also mentioned that the evening turned out to be an inexpensive but fun meal for less than $20. As part of the fun this ingenious hostess presented a prize to the group that gave her the most change back. This award went to the meat people who returned 27 cents.

"I don't know if I could get away with the same type of party again," laughed Gina recalling the evening's antics.

"But if the success of a party can be measured by how late the guests stay, it was nearly 3:30 a.m. when the last ones left."

Mrs. Lloyd Lundberg

She makes entertaining look easy

by LOIS SEILER

Carol and Lloyd Lundberg extend the spirit of fellowship by inviting other parishioners into their home after the Sunday night service at Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church. In addition to the Lundbergs' friendly hospitality, guests often enjoy a tasty supper prepared by Carol.

She likes to seat her guests at the table as it is conducive to better conversation. With advance preparation, the food can be ready in a matter of minutes.

One of Carol's favorite menus features Crab Delight and a fruit salad with Napoleons for dessert. All can be prepared hours ahead.

The Crab Delight consists of an appealing crabmeat and shrimp mixture mounded on Holland Rusk rounds and topped with slices of tomato and cheese.

Carol has the sandwiches all assembled, so merely pops them into the oven for 15 minutes before serving. She accompanies them with potato chips and the refreshing salad.

The salad is simply made by combining a variety of canned and frozen fruit with vanilla pudding and chilling the mixture until firm. The pudding holds the fruit together, and it looks especially pretty served in a cut glass bowl. Carol suggests adding fresh fruit when in season.

The attractive appearance and delicious flavor of her Napoleons belies their ease of preparation. Assembled in an oblong pan, she uses whole graham crackers for the bottom and top crusts, filling them with a pudding mixture and whipped cream. Canned chocolate frosting is used to ice the top. Carol advises making the Napoleons at least 12 hours ahead of time as they will set up better.

In addition to Sunday night get-togethers, Carol enjoys having coffee parties for the neighbors or women from church. One of her specialties is a delicious fruit-filled coffee cake that she says is best "the first time around." Carol prepares the cake early in the morning so that it is fresh from the oven and warm when her friends arrive.

Made in a jelly roll pan, the batter is covered with canned fruit filling and a streusel topping. Carol usually covers half of the cake with one flavor and the other half with another — such as peach and blueberry. Strawberry and cherry pie filling are also tasty. She recommends cutting the cake in small pieces because it is so rich.

If there are any leftovers, her family will usually eat them as a dessert with a scoop of ice cream on top. Or if Carol makes the coffee cake for a Sunday morning family breakfast, she cuts the recipe in half as the cake tends to become soggy on the second day. It is a great favorite of her children, Les, 17, Jim, 15, Carolyn, 12, and Gail, 9.

Very active in church work, Carol serves as co-Sunday school superintendent and an Awana leader and plays volleyball on the church team. In her spare time she enjoys sewing, gardening and craft projects.

Brazilian Coffee Cooler

Refreshing coffee cooler

South America is enjoying increasing popularity as an exciting land to visit. Perhaps one of its best known regions is Brazil, an area unlike the rest of the continent. Its climate, people, history and language are different from other regions, and consequently, its food is different. Even its coffee is unique.

In Brazil, coffee is served at every meal and often between meals. Americans, too, enjoy their coffee, and in hot summer months there's nothing quite like a refreshing Brazilian Coffee Cooler, a recipe inspired by our South American neighbor.

You can enjoy this delightful beverage so easily in your own home, for it's made with freeze-dried coffee. Serve it on a warm summer evening at home, when friends stop for a visit.

BRAZILIAN COFFEE COOLER

1 square unsweetened chocolate
2 cups water
2 cups milk
1/4 cup sugar
Dash of salt
2 1/2 tablespoons freeze-dried decaffeinated coffee
Ice cream
Chocolate curls

Melt chocolate with water in saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly. Stir in milk, sugar, and salt. Continue stirring over low heat until thoroughly heated. Stir in coffee. Remove from heat. Beat with rotary beater until light and foamy. Cool. Pour over cracked ice in 6 tall glasses and top with ice cream. Garnish with chocolate curls. Makes 1 quart or 8 servings.

Cool cucumbers flavor lemonade

The thermometer is the best indicator for lemonade weather. The higher the mercury rises, say growers of this tangy fruit the busier the lemon squeezer. Lemonade made with slices of fresh cucumbers is a double refresher! It's a lively combination of fresh flavors that will make your lemonade something special.

Like other citrus fruit, lemons are wonderfully rich in vitamin C. Very low in calories, one medium size lemon, 2 inches in diameter, has only 20 calories. Lemons are in the market all year, so keep them on hand and plan to use them often.

Cucumber Lemonade

12 cucumber slices
1 cup sugar

5 cups water, divided
1 cup fresh lemon juice, divided
Rind of 3 lemons, cut in strips
Ice cubes

Combine sugar, 1 cup water and 1/4 cup of lemon juice in medium saucepan. Mix well. Place over low heat; stir to dissolve sugar. Bring to a boil; boil 2 minutes. Remove from heat. Add lemon peel. Cover, let stand 5 minutes. Remove lemon peel. Add remaining 4 cups water and lemon juice. Place 2 to 3 ice cubes and 2 cucumber slices in each tall glass. Fill glasses with lemonade. Makes 8 tall glasses.

CALORIE-WATCHERS beware, these yummy Napoleons are loaded! Mrs. Lloyd Lundberg, Arlington Heights, assembles graham crackers in an oblong pan then spreads them with a rich pudding mixture and whipped cream. More graham crackers are used for the top crust which is frosted with a creamy chocolate frosting.

LOOKING FOR A NO-WORK way to have a dinner party? Let the guests do the shopping, cooking and serving. That was the surprise at a recent party hosted by Mr. and Mrs. John Kenney, right. Mrs. Kenney read her brief instructions and pointed the way to the nearest grocery store. Two guests returning with groceries were Mr. and Mrs. David Neupert, Arlington Heights.

Mostly For Men

by Charles Flynn

Casseroles which are simple to fix and require little time in the kitchen are always welcome in summer. Here's an interesting recipe which combines old favorites, ham and eggs.

Hard cook six eggs. Cool and peel, cut in half and remove yolks. Mash yolks and mix with 2 tablespoons mayonnaise combined with 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1/2 teaspoon dry mustard, and 1/8 teaspoon pepper. Fill whites, as for deviled eggs. Place eggs in a lightly buttered casserole, 7 x 11 inches.

Melt 1/4 cup butter and blend in 1/4 cup flour, 1/2 teaspoon salt, then add 2 cups milk and cook, stirring constantly until thick and smooth. Stir in 1 cup grated Cheddar cheese and cook until cheese is melted.

Next add 1 1/2 cups drained canned peas (or cooked fresh or frozen) and 1 cup diced ham. Pour this mixture over the eggs in casserole and top with 1/2 cup dry bread crumbs mixed with 2 tablespoons melted butter. Bake in 350 degree oven for 25 minutes or until bubbly and heated through. Serves 4.

A FLAVORFUL potato casserole is Swedish in origin and appropriately named "Jansson's Temptation," probably because it is not for calorie counters.

Peel six medium white potatoes and cut into shoe strings or thin slices. In a skillet melt 2 1/2 tablespoons butter or margarine and saute 4 large onions, peeled and sliced, for 10 minutes until onions are golden brown. Drain 12 flat anchovy filets and cut each into 8 pieces.

Brush a large casserole with 2 tablespoons vegetable oil, covering all interior surface. Now arrange layers beginning with potatoes, then onion and anchovy pieces. Sprinkle each layer with white pepper and salt.

Pour 1/2 cup half and half over the top and place in a preheated 400 degree oven for 10 minutes. Pour a second 1/2 cup half and half over the casserole and dot with 1 tablespoon butter. Reduce heat to 350 degrees and bake another 45 minutes or until potatoes are tender and virtually all liquid has been absorbed. Do not cover. Serves 8.

Menu versatility with mushrooms

While famous chefs have all used mushrooms in creating some of the world's most famous dishes, you don't have to have a chef's expertise to prepare mushrooms right at home on the range. They are available, fresh or processed, throughout the year, but, given their druthers mushrooms prefer the coolish, damp months. Today, with the highly scientific process of production, they thrive in air-conditioned growing houses. Canned mushrooms can be had at all seasons and in all parts of the county. For household use they are sold whole, sliced or as stems and pieces. And be sure to use the juice of canned mushrooms; it's good in sauces, soups and can be used as the cooking water of other vegetables.

These two mushroom dishes, Mushroom Pineapple Rice and Mushroom Ratatouille are great treats for all mushroom fans.

A dish worth celebrating

New Bedford, Mass., a thriving seaport and city, has had a good year. The fishermen and all those who live in the area will be celebrating with a Seafood Festival this weekend.

Some of the events will be a beauty pageant, a number of formal dinners and dances, and a feasting of fresh seafood.

New Bedford's fishery products may be used in dozens of taste-tempting ways such as fresh seafood entrees, soups, sandwiches and salads. With good supplies of frozen seafoods, inlanders can enjoy a wide variety of these coastal products.

New Bedford Cod 'n' Rice Salad is a hearty, satisfying combination of flaked cod fillets, celery, rice, and mandarin orange segments blended together with a curry dressing, then chilled until the flavors are mingled. Served in tomato wedges or on salad greens, this meal-in-a-salad entree is sure to please. Serve it anytime — luncheon or a Sunday supper. It's so versatile you could carry it to a picnic in a refrigerated container.

NEW BEDFORD COD 'N' RICE SALAD

- 1 pound cod fillets, fresh or frozen
- ½ cup water
- 1 slice onion
- 1 slice lemon

- ¾ teaspoon salt
- 1 cup quick-cook rice, cooked and chilled
- 1½ cups thinly sliced celery
- 1 cup salad dressing or mayonnaise
- 1½ teaspoons curry powder (or to taste)
- 1 can (11 ounce) mandarin orange segments, drained
- 6 to 8 large tomatoes, washed and dried (optional)
- Crisp washed salad greens

Thaw frozen fish. Combine water, onion, lemon, and ½ teaspoon salt in frypan; bring water to boil. Add fish; cover and simmer for 10 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Remove fish from liquid. Chill well. Flake fish. Combine rice and celery; toss. Combine and mix salad dressing or mayonnaise, curry powder, and remaining ¼ teaspoon salt; fold into rice mixture. Carefully fold in flaked fish and orange segments. Chill well. Cut tomatoes, if used, into 8 even wedges, starting at top and cutting to within 1 inch of bottom. Arrange tomatoes on crisp salad greens, open tomato wedges and fill tomato with salad. Salad may be served in lettuce cups, if preferred. Makes 5 cups salad mixture, 6 to 8 servings.

MUSHROOM PINEAPPLE RICE

- ¾ pound fresh mushrooms or 1 can (3 to 4 oz.) sliced mushrooms
- 1 can (8½ oz.) crushed pineapple
- Water as needed
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup raw regular cooking rice
- 3 tablespoons butter or margarine
- ¾ cup finely chopped onion
- 2 teaspoons imported soy sauce
- ½ teaspoon ground ginger
- ¼ cup cashew nuts

Rinse, pat dry and slice fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms, reserving liquid; set aside. Drain pineapple; reserve fruit and liquid separately. Combine pineapple liquid with sufficient water to make 2½ cups. (If using canned mushrooms, combine mushroom and pineapple liquids with sufficient water to make 2½ cups.) In a medium saucepan bring liquid and salt to boiling point; stir in rice. Cover, reduce heat and simmer 20 to 25 minutes or until rice is tender. Meanwhile, in a medium skillet melt butter. Add onion and reserved mushrooms; sauté 5 minutes. Stir in soy sauce, ginger and pineapple; blend well. Add mushroom mixture to rice along with cashew nuts. Serve with barbecued steak kebabs, if desired. Yield: 6 portions.

MUSHROOM RATATOUILLE

- 1 pound fresh small mushrooms or 2 cans (6 to 8 oz. each) whole mushrooms

- 1/3 cup olive or salad oil
- 1 cup sliced onions
- 1 teaspoon finely minced garlic
- 1 small (¾ lb.) eggplant, cut into 1-inch cubes
- 2 small (¾ lb. each) zucchini, sliced ½-inch thick
- 3 tablespoons flour
- 1 green pepper, seeded and cut into 1-inch pieces
- 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, broken up
- 1¼ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon marjoram leaves
- 1/8 teaspoon ground black pepper
- ½ teaspoon lemon juice

Rinse, pat dry and halve fresh mushrooms or drain canned mushrooms; set aside. In a large skillet heat oil. Add onions and garlic; sauté 5 minutes. Dredge eggplant and zucchini in flour. Add to skillet along with green pepper. Cover and cook over low heat 45 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add reserved mushrooms along with the tomatoes, salt, marjoram, black pepper and lemon juice. Cook, uncovered, stirring frequently, 15 minutes or until mixture is thick. Serve hot or cold. Yield: 6 to 8 portions.

The freeze is off and once again the heat is on the food budget. Economic experts seem to agree on one thing: food prices will be going up. To what extent, however, remains a much talked about variable.

At any rate, the days of steak and salad are fading into ones of hot dogs and beans. Try to convince the average homemaker that this is the land of plenty. She'll probably point out that her food budget registers on "maximum stretch" and that the cupboard is going the way of Mother Hubbard's.

Strict budgeting does tend to take a lot of the fun out of shopping and menu planning. But on the other hand, it can become a creative challenge with a positive mental attitude and a few basic guidelines.

The following rules for grocery shopping are from "Stretching Food Dollars," a booklet published by Quaker Oats Co.

PLAN BEFORE you shop. If possible, plan menus and shop for at least a week at a time. By planning ahead you can save money by using leftovers in another day's meals.

Cut down on commercial snack products. Homemade snacks are usually less expensive and often more nutritious than store-bought. Homemade oatmeal cookies or peanut butter cookies with raisins and milk-based drinks, fruit juice and fruit drinks with vitamins added are good examples of wholesome snacks.

As you plan menus, check newspaper ads for weekly special and sales, and for menu ideas. You can save money at sales if the store is nearby, if the food is of a good quality for your needs, if you have enough good places to keep it and if you can use all the food. You waste, not save, money when you buy a sale item your family won't eat. Handbills and circulars handed out at the store also tell sale items. Use cents-off coupons if you had intended to buy and need the item.

REMEMBER, NON-FOOD items are not part of the food bill. You might buy laundry supplies, cosmetics, hose or magazines in the supermarket, but you should keep these things separate from your food budget.

Buy staples such as flour, sugar and corn meal only once or twice a month if possible. Most grocery products cost less per serving when you buy larger packages.

It pays to become familiar with brand names so you can recognize price changes. A price increase in one brand might tell you to compare brands and perhaps switch to a lower priced brand. If the price goes down, you might consider buying more if you have enough places to keep the food and if you can use it.

Compare costs of different forms of foods (fresh, frozen, canned, dried, etc.). To find the best buy, divide the price by the number of servings. And if you want to buy foods already prepared by the manufacturer, like a frozen pizza, remember you will usually have to pay more than if you prepared the food yourself.

READ LABELS to learn quality, size and weight of food products. You do not need to buy fancy grades of canned fruits and vegetables, especially for stews, soups, fruit cobblers or pies. Lower grades are just as nutritious, the flavor is often just as good and the price usually lower. Color, size and uniformity of pieces may differ.

For cooking and baking use dry milk or evaporated milk mixed with water. If your family doesn't like to drink this milk, try mixing it half-and-half with fresh milk from the store.

If possible, eat before you go shopping. If you go to the store hungry, you may buy things you don't need and spend more money than you planned.

Revenue-sharing funds used to keep village taxes down

by LYNN ASINOF

Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt has used the village's $234,000 in federal revenue sharing funds to defray the cost of projects that would have substantially increased the village portion of the property tax.

Passolt said $194,000 of the revenue sharing funds will be used for projects that otherwise would have been financed with tax money.

The village's 1973-74 budget allocates $3,601,373 for the operation of the village, an increase of 22.5 per cent over last year's appropriations level.

Passolt said the increase of $660,509 will probably mean only a slight increase in taxes because of the use of revenue sharing funds. "The federal revenue sharing has allowed us to circumvent tax increases," he said.

THE MANAGER said he can not estimate the size of the tax increase until he knows the village's assessed valuation. "My guess is it will go up a small amount," he said. "My goal is to keep it the same."

The largest portion of the budget, about 42 per cent, will be used to pay the salaries of village employees. Passolt said the budget includes an eight per cent across the board hike for the employees as well as a 21 per cent increase in the size of the village staff.

"Salaries are almost $1.5 million, and that reflects an increase," he said. Passolt said the new village employees will be added to the police and fire departments, clerk's office, transportation, vehicle maintenance and road and bridge areas.

The manager said some of new employees have already been hired, and said in the fire department the new employees will bring the force up to strength.

OTHER MAJOR expenditures for this year include $100,000 for a new village well, and $96,000 for new buildings and building additions.

Passolt said he is hoping to build a new maintenance garage at the old sewage treatment plant on Nancy Lane. He said the budget also allows for an expansion of the fire department building to store the new paramedic equipment. An expansion of the village hall is also planned to provide more room for the police, building and public works departments.

The federal revenue sharing money will be used in four major categories.

Golf clubs, bicycle stolen from garage

A set of golf clubs and a bicycle valued at $600 were taken in a burglary discovered Tuesday at 870 Dorncliffe Ln.

Police said the resident of the home, Burton Schmarak, 35, and his family were asleep when the burglar entered the garage of the home. The burglar broke the window on the garage door to gain entry, police said.

No one apparently saw the burglar enter or leave, police said.

Top village employees get hefty raises for '73-'74

by LYNN ASINOF

Salary figures released yesterday by Wheeling Village Mgr. George Passolt show that top-ranking village employees have received substantial raises for 1973-74.

In a general comparison, most department heads received larger raises than they did last year. The average increase in salary for major departments is 13.1 per cent.

The largest increase went to Police Chief Peter Gutilla, who is now making 20 per cent more than last year. Passolt said, however, the increase of $3,600 includes a $2,000 raise for Gutilla's promotion to chief.

LAST YEAR, Gutilla held the rank of captain while serving as acting police chief. His salary was raised from $18,000 to $20,000 when he was promoted. The new increase to $21,600 represents an eight per cent raise, if the promotion is not included.

Fire Chief Bernie Koepfen received a 15 per cent salary increase, from $18,000 last year to $20,700 this year. Passolt said the raise in this department was because of the national recognition Koepfen won for innovations with the Wheeling Fire Department equipment.

Last year, both the fire chief and police chief earned the same salary, and both received a 5.5 per cent salary hike. This is the first time in at least two years the two chiefs have not earned the same salary.

Director of building and zoning Bill Bieher received a 13.2 per cent increase of $2,500. His salary was raised from $19,000 to $21,500. Last year, Bieher also received a $2,500 salary hike.

Passolt's salary, as village manager was increased 12.5 per cent to $27,000, making him the highest paid village official. Passolt said his increase from $24,000 was designed to establish a differential between his salary as manager and the salaries of his employees.

EVELYN DIENS, who serves as village clerk, collector and office manager, received a 10 per cent increase this year. Her salary was raised from $11,300 to $12,500 this year.

The smallest percentage increase went to Larry Oppenheimer, director of public works and village engineer. Oppenheimer got a 7.9 per cent increase from $24,000 last year to $25,920 this year.

Last year, Oppenheimer received the largest percentage raise of all village department heads with a 19.4 per cent hike.

Other village salaries include Village Atty. Paul Hamer at $19,500, and Village Prosecutor Donald Norman at $8,100. The village sanitarian Jane Terbell is earning $6,500.

M. O. HORCHER, administrative assistant, is receiving $8,720 supplemented by his police pension. Horcher was formerly the police chief.

Passolt said he has also created a new department of municipal and building maintenance. Dennis Milosz, who heads the department, is earning $18,000.

Other village employees received an eight per cent across-the-board pay hike this year after negotiations with the village board. The increase included a 4.7 per cent cost of living adjustment.

PASSOLT SAID yesterday it is unfair to compare the employee increase with the raises given to the department heads. He said the village employees also receive an annual incremental raise which is not given to the department heads.

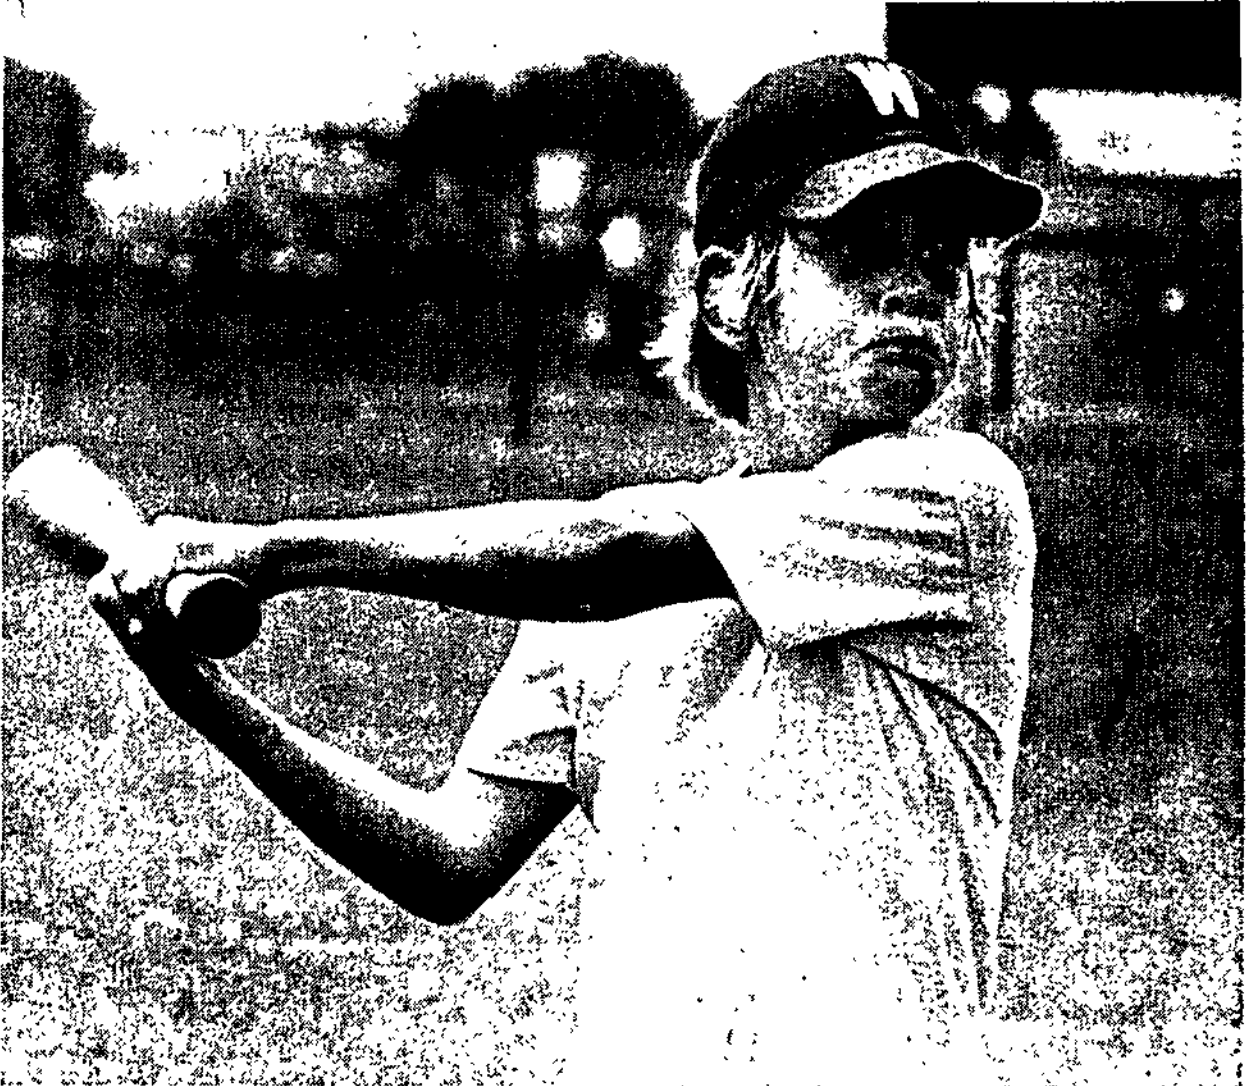

"The department heads don't get step increases," he said. "Plus the department heads have more responsibility."

Passolt said that by taking the step increases into account, some employees actually receive higher raises than the department heads.

Several senior citizens have already asked that this $2,000 be used to provide bus rental for field trips for their organization.

The manager said the increase in the budget is a little higher than he had hoped. "I just felt there was nothing more I could pare without hurting the operation of the village," he said.

Passolt said, however, he did not think there were any drastic cuts in the budget. "We always have to cut from the budget," he said. "You always have your problems when people want things and need things, but you just say we don't have the money. I don't think there are any real drastic cuts, but some of the department heads might differ on that opinion."

Stumbling block to Village plans

Land, cash slow growth here

by LYNN ASINOF

Members of several Wheeling civic organizations agreed at a community meeting that the major stumbling block to several proposed village projects is lack of land and money.

About 30 residents, most of whom represented community organizations, met Tuesday to discuss possible village projects. The suggestions included attracting a hospital to the area, recreational facilities, a beautification program, an indoor theater, a community calendar and a meeting place for youth and senior citizens.

Earl Sauter of the Chamber of Commerce told the group that most of these projects depended on finding land. "You can't do anything without the land, and I don't know where you'll get it," he said.

TRUSTEE JOHN KOEPFEN, who called the meeting, said he realized the problem. He said, however, that he felt the organizations might find an answer if they did not abandon the ideas.

"We hope that this first meeting is just the beginning," he said. "If we keep chopping away at it, someday it may be a reality."

The residents present gave enthusiastic support to the idea of bringing a hospital to the area. Richard Calfa also of the Chamber of Commerce, said he has been working on bringing a diagnostic treatment center to the village for some time.

Calfa said the diagnostic center would be able to provide most medical services, but would be smaller than a hospital and would deal mainly with out patient care. He said, however, he needs to find about 15 doctors who would be willing to invest in such a center.

TRUSTEE BILL HEIN told Calfa that he had been in contact with a group of doctors who were interested in opening such a center in Wheeling. He said, however, they were looking for the village to donate the land for the center.

The two men said they would get together at a later date to discuss the project and see if the two groups could reach some agreement.

Otis "Skip" Hedlund of the Republican Organization said he will investigate the possibility of getting federal funding for

Engineer dies of accident injuries

David Oeming, 33, of 2 Oak Creek Dr., Buffalo Grove, died in the University of Illinois Hospital late Tuesday night of injuries he suffered in an auto accident in Wheeling July 14.

Oeming, a Federal Administration engineer, had been unconscious since the car in which he was riding struck a tree in the Cook County Forest Preserve near Dam No. 1. Originally admitted to Holy Family Hospital, Oeming suffered severe head injuries and a fractured leg in the crash.

Thomas Conley, 30, of 429 Desmond

Dr., Schaumburg, was driving the car when it crashed into the tree. He also received head injuries but was released from Holy Family Hospital July 21.

Wheeling Police said the damage to Conley's car was such that Oeming had to be removed from the vehicle with special rescue equipment. No charges have been filed in the accident.

Oeming was transferred to the University of Illinois Hospital by helicopter Saturday when his family agreed to donate his kidneys for transplants.

The death is the first traffic fatality in Wheeling this year.

One night every week, at Neptune's Pool in Wheeling, a group of shadowy figures move about beneath the water.

The underwater beings aren't Neptune and his mermals, come to haunt the high school pool, but scuba diving students, participants in a summer park district course.

Nine students are taking the seven-week course, which meets every Tuesday evening. In order to qualify for the course a student must be over 14 years old and must be able to pass rigid swimming requirements.

THE PREREQUISITES include swimming 10 lengths of the pool using any stroke, 10 lengths wearing a 10 pound weight, and approximately 45 yards under water. Students must be able to tread water for five minutes, 30 seconds of which must be without hands. They must also be able to recover a 10-pound weight from the bottom of the pool.

Mike Donovan, the course instructor, outlined the course objectives.

"The object of the course is to give students good working knowledge of water skills. To get them to where they're able to relax in the water and also teach them the technical aspects of scuba diving," he said.

IN ORDER TO achieve this, students attend a weekly lecture and a pool work session. They also study a variety of reading assignments.

Lecture subjects cover a range of material from the physics and math of scuba diving to marine life the students are likely to encounter in their diving careers. It looks at the mechanical and medical aspects of diving as well.

In the pool, students begin by working with mask, fins, and snorkel and learn such skills as surface dives and entries. They then begin to work with the scuba gear. They are taught how to handle the gear, how to "buddy-breathe," (one air hose passed between two divers), how to ditch their gear if necessary, and a variety of other underwater skills.

Donovan also has added one innovation to the course this summer. Formerly it was taught in ten weekly sessions, with a final check-out dive at the end. This summer, however, the class will have only seven sessions in the pool.

They will then combine learning the rest of the material with their checkout dive during a scuba diving weekend which Donovan has scheduled for the first week in August.

THE CLASS WILL probably spend the weekend at Green Lake and Devil's Lake up in Wisconsin.

He said this format has been used in other scuba courses, and it has been found to be a more effective way of teaching and checking students because of the extra time it allows.

Another advantage of the weekend is it should allow for a much more pleasurable introduction to outdoor diving than just going to a murky nearby quarry, Donovan said.

"I'm trying to get them into an area where it's really nice and clear. If they go into water where all they see are old

TVs and other junk, then they'll think, 'What have all these 10 weeks been for?'" They also won't last long in the sport. We're trying to get them into an area where they'll really be able to appreciate the diving."

THE COST FOR THE course is $50 and it includes use of the tanks and air, two textbooks, a variety of handouts and the course instruction.

Students must buy their own fins, mask and snorkel and must rent a wet suit for the checkout dive, making the total cost to the student almost $75, Donovan said.

Donovan learned to scuba dive in 1968 and was certified as an instructor in 1969. He will work as a physical education instructor at Adlai Stevenson High School beginning this fall, although he will offer the scuba diving course through the Wheeling park district again in the fall.

He has taught the scuba diving course for the park district four times in the past three years. With his experience as a scuba diving teacher, Donovan has developed certain distinctive approaches to the class.

ONE OF THESE is his attitude towards the girls' in his class. He said that one of his "gripes" is that in some sports girls are pampered when it comes to handling certain tasks.

"It's one of my standing rules that the guys do not help the girls in my class with their equipment. Otherwise, if the girls get used to that you can have a bad situation later on out in the open water, because the girls aren't used to lugging that heavy stuff around when they may have to."

Under the buddy system, the two girls in Donovan's class now help each other, but at least they get used to handling the equipment, he said.

DONOVAN IS ALSO a strict taskmaster to all the students in his class when it comes to the area of developing physical fitness in the water. Every week, the students must do rigorous water treading and kicking exercises to build up their leg muscles and kicks. Beyond just developing their strength, the students also become more relaxed in the water.

"If they don't learn to be relaxed in the water then they'll have a bad time of it later on. I've had former students come to me and say, 'We really hated you when you made us tread water all those times, but it really paid off eventually,'" he said.

STUDENT'S REASONS for taking the course range from those who just like water sports and wished to learn another one, to one girl who is a free-lance writer and wants to have another area to write about.

Several students have dived before but decided to take the course in order to be certified.

Certification is necessary in order to rent scuba gear almost everywhere in the country. As a member of the National Association of Underwater Instructors, Donovan can certify students who pass his course.

At the end of the course, Donovan will recommend that all his students join a scuba diving club, so they will be able to keep up their interest in diving. He also recommends looking into other areas of diving, such as underwater photography and spear fishing.

However, even if the students never go beyond the basic instruction, Donovan said by the end of his course, "they'll all know how to scuba dive not just fairly well, but well."

Land, cash slow town growth

The representatives also endorsed the idea of bringing an indoor theatre to Wheeling, but once again agreed that the problem was finding land. Village Pres. Tod C. Scanlon said he had investigated the idea, but found that developers wanted to locate in a shopping center where parking was provided.

SEVERAL PEOPLE suggested possible locations including Lynn Plaza, property adjacent to Wickes Furniture, K-Mart and Dunhurst Shopping Center. Scanlon said, he had already explored those sites, and that no one is interested.

Land problems cropped up again when the group discussed bringing a recreational facility into the area or building a center for teens and senior citizens.

Several of the residents asked that the village develop a program of planting more trees along the main village streets. Calia said federal money is available to purchase trees if the village applies for it. He suggested the village might plant these trees along the parkway on Milwaukee Avenue and Dundee and Elmhurst roads.

Trustee Ed Berger said he would ask the village manager to look into the matter. Koepfen added that he would like the village beautification committee to develop a planned program and then contact the various civic organizations for their help.

TWO CHAMBER OF Commerce programs were discussed, and other organizations said they would take the ideas back to their members. One project would replace the present Wheeling Welcome signs with new signs that would also display the emblems of various civic organizations. These signs would make the numerous organization signs now in use unnecessary.

The Chamber also asked that civic organizations make use of their community calendar program so fund-raising events of the different groups would not conflict with each other.

Trustee Hein suggested that the Wheeling Historical Society might consider moving their building from Milwaukee Avenue to Chamber of Commerce Park. "I was thinking about starting a community historical building over there," he said, noting that the old community church is already in the park.

WALTER DIENS of the society said his group had considered moving the building, but noted that their only fundraiser is the annual Brat 'n Beer Fest. "There's not enough bratwurst in the world to pay for moving that building," he said.

Hein suggested that the move might become a community project, saying that other sources might be able to help finance the move.

Finally, the Jaycees present at the meeting urged the members of other civic organizations to contribute blood to the Wheeling Community Blood Plan at the next drive Aug. 18 and 19.

Koepfen said he would compile a newsletter on the meeting and send it to the civic organizations. He said he would research several of the proposals before he called another meeting of the civic groups.

Galena: historic Illinois mining town making a comeback

by JOE SWICKARD

GALENA, ILL. — Tucked in the extreme northwest corner of the state, this small community owes its history and attraction to it being by-passed by the forces of nature and history.

When the last glaciers planned North America, Jo Daviess County was left untouched. While Illinois was being plowed into the prairie state, the area surrounding Galena was left with nobtop hills, bluffs and cliffs rich in lead sulphide (galena).

White settlers came to mine the lead. A boom town with a difference grew along the hill sides and banks of the Fever River. This was not a shanty mining town typical to the frontier. Substantial brick and stone homes in classical styling were built to attest to Galena's prosperity and importance as the lead capital of the mid-19th century world.

The mines played out and the hills that nurtured Galena now cut it off from change.

THE DE SOTO House Hotel, built in 1885, is representative of the changes in the town since its boom days. Once called the "largest and grandest hotel in the West," its long neglected grandeur is making a comeback through the sweat and imagination of Judy and Jim Clayton.

The Claytons, formerly of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect, accepted the challenge of restoring the hotel and made the task something personal.

Two years ago, they tired of the congestion of the urban sprawl and the resulting conflicts with the crowds.

"It seemed there was always some one else wanting to do the same thing you were," said Jim, a former advertising salesman. "I would travel to New York frequently and if you wanted a cab or something like that it seemed you had to fight somebody for it. Chicago wasn't that bad, but since we've come here the contrast between the two lives stands right out."

Judy said the first longings came about after visiting a restored hotel in Colorado. "Jim saw an ad for this hotel in the Wall Street Journal. No, we'd never seen it. Oh, I had been here once before as a child but it wasn't really within my memory. Jim had never been here. But, we thought it was the time to move."

THE CLAYTONS packed up their three children and headed for an entirely new life. Not only were they lacking in experience of hotel, restaurant and bar management, they faced a restoration task of the first magnitude.

Previous owners of the hotel had let the furnishings and decorations deteriorate. A fine example of 19th century embossed metal ceiling was covered with layers of house paint. Chandeliers were removed and replaced with fluorescent tubes.

The Claytons made up for the lack of experience with enthusiasm and energy. The ceiling once again represents the past wealth of the hotel. Jim and Judy found period fixtures where they could. The lobby now beckons visitors to stay with history.

"The wallpaper is hand blocked right here in Galena. The pattern is authentic. I couldn't find anyone who would hang it, so I had to do it myself. The longest drop is 22 feet," said Jim.

Gen. Grant used the De Soto House as headquarters for his 1862 presidential campaign. The rooms used by the General and his cronies have been long since divided into smaller units. However, some of the furnishings remain.

"He had some rooms here where he could sleep it off after a night of conferring with aides," Jim said.

LINCOLN once spoke from the hotel balcony. The balcony and the two original top floors of the hotel have been removed.

"As things around here declined, the hotel was changed. The roof was raised and the top stories were taken down. The balcony is long gone. We heard once it was on a farm near Freeport, but we couldn't find it," he said.

The Claytons also suspect the hotel may have been 37 feet longer. Early maps of the city show the hotel extending into space presently occupied by two stores. The dimensions of rooms and supporting pillar placement give credence to the theory.

porting pillar placement give credence to the theory.

The Claytons have opened a restaurant and bar in two rooms off the lobby. The fare is good and reasonably priced. Homemade soups are an unexpected treat on the menu. The bar features a local beer of more than mean qualities.

GALENA is made for a walking tour and the hotel's central locale lends itself to starting and terminal point. A stroll up Main Street is a tour of antique shops and fine examples of period architecture. The sale of antiques and "collectibles" is a major commercial activity of the town.

Long, steep stairs lead to the residential streets to the west of Main Street. Prospect and High streets give a sweeping view of the town and the surrounding wooded hills. The old homes give the visitor a capsule economic history of the town. Some houses and buildings, such as the Feehan Hall, show the prolonged economic depression of the area. Other homes and structures reflect extreme care shown by owners in maintaining or restoring their ornate beauty.

The terrain influenced the design of the buildings. The steep bluffs forced buildings to have their front and rear entrances several stories apart. Gangways lead to the top floor in the rear, while the lower stories exit onto stairways leading to ravines. The ravines lead to alleys which come out at street level in the front.

RESTORATION is extensive throughout the town. Any work in the older sections must comply with a historic preservation ordinance.

Showplace and curio that it is, Galena is still very much a living town. "We have an awareness of history here. You don't have to drive 1,000 miles to find it. It's similar to Williamsburg but more real because people actually live here," Jim said.

The population reached a peak of 15,000 about 1880. It declined to 3,900 in 1970,

Galena only 150 miles

Galena is about 150 miles from the Northwest suburbs by way of I-90 and U.S. Rte. 20 west.

Although there are three Rte. 20 exits, one should leave the tollroad at the first exit, near Union, Ill. The drive through Ridott, Stockton and Elizabeth prepares one for Galena. The passage is through a territory of round stone silos and small cemeteries outside such settlements as Coral and Garden Prairie.

The road winds among the hills and then descends toward Galena. It crosses Small Fox Creek and heads toward the Fever River, renamed to the Galena River almost 150 years ago to improve the town's image.

The road drops into Galena, past the signs for the post war home of President Grant. Cross the bridge and turn right onto Main Street. Go through the high earthen levee and massive steel flood gates and you are there.

Main Street is called the "Wall." It weaves a miniature canyon of brick stores flush to each other and the bluffs behind them. Faded and peeling wall advertisements hawk Bull Durham tobacco by the pouch and long forgotten cigars.

You are in Galena, a living monument to the instant wealth torn from the earth 100 years ago.

but the Claytons believe it is starting to climb again. They point to a growing colony of artists and craftsmen as proof of the new spirit.

Galena is a showcase, but it is still a living small town. The circus came to town last weekend. The citizens turned out to watch the show from the elephant hoisting the big top to final striking of the canvas.

Galena is milieu: a total setting and environment. People still turn out to see a four-ton, blood sweating hippo. They work and care for the town as a living being, not just a collection of structures.

It's a town where two people, a handyman and boy who lied about his age, will go with the circus when it leaves town.

Blue Cross could back out

Plans for hospitals stalled?

by STEVE BROWN

A major roadblock may be thrown into plans for several new area hospitals because if a new hardline stand taken by Blue Cross Plan yesterday on health insurance payments.

In action aimed at containing health care costs, Blue Cross stated it would cancel or modify contracts with existing hospitals that expand facilities without approval of a comprehensive health-planning agency.

In the case of a new hospital, Blue Cross may refuse to enter into a contract if a comprehensive health planning agency does not approve it.

WITHOUT A contract from the Blue Cross Plan, patients would not be able to recover medical costs if treated at an unapproved hospital. The policy is sim-

Stereo, scuba gear stolen from pool

About $450 in stereo and scuba diving equipment was discovered missing Monday from the pool house at Willow Stream pool on Farrington Drive.

Police said the burglars entered the building by forcing a window and screen on the south side of the building. Several smeared foot prints were discovered by police on a picnic table which the burglars apparently climbed on to reach the window.

The stereo equipment was taken from the office in the building. The scuba equipment was taken from a personal locker belonging to Jim Harrington, the pool manager, police said.

They added no one apparently saw the burglars enter or leave the building.

ilar to federal regulations covering Medicare and Medicaid subsidies.

"Few hospitals would be able to survive in this case," one Blue Cross official said.

The Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center has tentatively received approval from the planning agency. But a spokesman for Comprehensive Health Planning Inc. of Chicago (CHP) said that plans for all new hospitals in the area, including Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Glenview will undergo a stringent review.

Created under state and federal laws, the comprehensive health planning agencies now review plans for new medical facilities and make recommendations, but they have no power to stop construction or force redesign of plans.

There are now nine regional health planning agencies in the state. There is also a state health planning agency to coordinate all activities.

PRESENT STATE laws do not require a hospital developer to show a need for their facilities as a criterion for obtaining a license from the state.

Legislation that will require developers to show a need for the facilities was introduced in a committee of the Illinois Senate last session. The bill has already passed the House.

Leo Hickman of CHP said the plans developed by American Mediacorp Inc. for a 300 bed hospital in Hoffman Estates are now under review.

He said the review should be completed in 60 to 90 days. Plans for the Evanston Hospital branch in Glenview are also being studied, he said.

"Basically we are in agreement with Blue Cross in their effort to control increasing hospital costs," Hickman said.

He added that state legislation in this area would also help.

BLUE CROSS officials argue that uncontrolled growth of hospitals will result in constantly increasing costs to patients. They said the average hospital bed costs more than $80 a day to maintain whether or not it is being used.

Without guidelines for expansion and development of health facilities many more hospital beds will be built than needed, raising health care costs for everyone.

"The Chicago based Blue Cross Plan and its more than 3 million members in Illinois should not and must not be expected to help pay the cost of health care facilities that are not needed to meet the health care needs of their community," said Robert S. Petersen, senior vice president of Blue Cross.

Another Blue Cross official said the new guidelines will go into effect immediately.

Apparently the only health facility in the state that may feel immediate pressure from the new plan is a hospital being constructed in Springfield.

Comprehensive health planning officials have determined that the two existing hospitals in the city are sufficient and the new facility would not be necessary.

Vandalism prompts parks to discuss added security

by JILL BETTNER

A rash of recent vandalism incidents has prompted the Buffalo Grove Park District to begin discussing ways to increase security at local recreation facilities.

Park Board Pres. Gene Muryn said yesterday he plans to call a special meeting of the commissioners to talk about the damage that has been done in the last few weeks to park property. He will seek measures that could be taken to prevent future vandalism.

"We've really had a lot of problems lately and it's getting to be pretty serious," Muryn said. "We're just going to have to sit down and talk about how we can stop this kind of thing."

THE LATEST vandalism incident occurred last weekend at Willow Stream outdoor pool on Farrington Drive.

About $450 in stereo and scuba diving equipment was discovered missing Monday from the pool bathhouse. Police said the burglars entered the building by forcing a window and screen on the south side of the building.

The stereo equipment was taken from the office in the building. The scuba equipment was taken from a personal locker belonging to Jalm Harrington, the pool manager, police said.

Although no one saw the burglars enter or leave the building, Muryn said he feels the thieves were youngsters because they took a tape player that is useless without the amplifier they left behind.

CHILDREN ALSO are believed responsible for breaking several windows last weekend at the Emmerich Park building on Raupp Blvd. and dumping dye into Willow Stream Pool a few weeks ago.

Muryn said it is still not known what type of dye was put into the pool as what he called a Fourth of July prank. He said the action not only inconvenienced residents, because the pool had to be closed two days, but the cleaning was also expensive.

About a month ago someone broke into the Emmerich Park building, stealing arts and crafts supplies over the floor. Again, the culprits are thought to have been local kids.

One of the possible solutions to the problem of vandalism to buildings, Muryn said, would be to install a burglar alarm system at Emmerich Park and at the Willow Stream bathhouse. The commissioners will also discuss other measures that might be used to curb the incidents.

Although there has always been vandalism to park property, Muryn feels there have been more problems than usual this summer.

"I guess it's because we have more facilities now than ever before," he commented. "I suppose it will only get worse as we grow, but we're going to try to stop it."

Golf clubs, bicycle stolen from garage

A set of golf clubs and a bicycle valued at $600 were taken in a burglary discovered Tuesday at 870 Dornellife Ln.

Police said the resident of the home, Burton Schmarak, 35, and his family were asleep when the burglar entered the garage of the home. The burglar broke the window on the garage door to gain entry, police said.

No one apparently saw the burglar enter or leave police said.

Resident dies of injuries from accident

David Oeming, 33, of 2 Oak Creek Dr., Buffalo Grove, died in the University of Illinois Hospital late Tuesday night of injuries he suffered in an auto accident in Wheeling July 14.

Oeming, a Federal Administration engineer, had been unconscious since the car in which he was riding struck a tree in the Cook County Forest Preserve near Dam No. 1. Originally admitted to Holy Family Hospital, Oeming suffered severe head injuries and a fractured leg in the crash.

Thomas Conley, 30, of 429 Desmond Dr., Schaumburg, was driving the car when it crashed into the tree. He also received head injuries but was released from Holy Family Hospital July 21.

Wheeling Police said the damage to Conley's car was such that Oeming had to be removed from the vehicle with special rescue equipment. No charges have been filed in the accident.

Oeming was transferred to the University of Illinois Hospital by helicopter Saturday when his family agreed to donate his kidneys for transplants.

The death is the first traffic fatality in Wheeling this year.

Village drum corps seeks travel funding

The Buffalo Grove Barons Drum and Twirling Corps is seeking support in their effort to raise $800 in the next week to participate in national competition.

The 42-member corps won the right to take part in the week-long 1973 American Youth on Parade National Corps Championship by taking high honors in recent competition. Only three corps were chosen to participate in the contest to be conducted at the University of Notre Dame, South Bend, Ind.

"A SMASHING Success" was the term used to describe this year's Buffalo Grove Little League season. Read about it on Page 5.

New village stamp—Rescue Squad Seals

by JOE FRANZ

Everyone has heard of Easter and Christmas Seals, but Buffalo Grove residents will soon be introduced to a new stamp—Rescue Squad Seals.

They will be mailed out by the Buffalo Grove Fire Department to help finance its paramedic program. Buffalo Grove Fire Chief Wayne Winter yesterday said the program, which has been in operation for almost eight months, "has been a resounding success."

He said since tax money from the Wheeling Township Rural Fire Protection District can be used for fire fighting equipment only, money for the paramedic program must come from other sources. He said he prefers financing the program with donations rather than creating an ambulance tax as several other towns have done.

Up until now the paramedic program has been financed through dances, bingo games and private donations. The money raised through these activities paid for all the paramedic equipment and supplies, including the paramedic squad truck which cost about $7,200, Winter said. Recently, however, the fire department has discontinued the bingo games because of lack of interest.

UNDER THE NEW PLAN, the department will mail an information sheet to homeowners every six months telling them of the activities of the fire department. Once a year several sheets of Rescue Squad Seals will be mailed along with the information sheet. Residents can, if they wish, mail a donation to the paramedic program, Winter said. The first information sheet will probably be mailed within two months, he added.

Since the program started in Buffalo Grove the fire department has added two more paramedics, bringing the total to 15. One fireman is currently going to school and will be an authorized paramedic by the end of next month, Winter said.

He estimated that paramedics have saved 10 lives since the program went into effect last Dec. 1. In fact, officials at Northwest Community Hospital, which is affiliated with the program, credited the department with saving two lives the first day of the program.

The department answered its first call one minute after the program went into effect, thus becoming the first department to participate. There are eight other communities in the program at Northwest Community Hospital.

"I have yet to see one draw back to the paramedic program," Winter said. "The men like it because they can do something for the patient."

WINTER EXPLAINED that prior to the start of the program, firemen in many cases were unable to do anything but administer minor first aid. "With the paramedic program we can really help the patient. We can save lives instead of just hauling bodies to the hospital," Winter said.

ter said. The paramedics are trained to handle any kind of emergency treatment. They are able to handle virtually any kind of trauma case, especially heart attacks.

THE FIREMEN are equipped with special life-saving devices, including a defibrillator that administers an electrical shock to restore heartbeat.

During an emergency, the firemen immediately send information to the hospital pertaining to heartbeat, pulse and other vital signs. If necessary, a patient can be set up with radio equipment that will keep doctors informed on vital signs.

Meanwhile the doctors can communicate with the paramedics either at the scene or enroute to the hospital concerning the type of treatment to administer to the patient.

"We're the arms and eyes of the doctor before we get to the hospital," Winter said. "We can give the patient immediate treatment and the urgency of rushing to the hospital is eliminated."

Buffalo Grove Recreation Association leaving boys with many memories, trophies

by JEANNETTE DEWYZE

The season's over for Buffalo Grove Summer Boys' Baseball, with only the good memories and the trophy presentations remaining.

A total of 739 boys participated this year in the program, which has been organized by the Buffalo Grove Recreation Association for the past 10 years.

It is designed for boys between the ages of seven and 15, who play in five different leagues.

The farm league this year consisted of 224 7- and 8-year-old boys playing on 18 teams. The boys were also divided into an east and a west division and played at Alcott and Kilmer schools during the season.

The Minor League, consisting of nine- and 10-year-old boys, played at Emmelh Park and Longfellow School. The Minor League also consisted of 224 boys playing in 18 teams in two divisions.

One hundred ninety six boys played in the Major League, which played games at St. Mary's and Kilmer School during the season. The major league is for 11 and 12-year-old boys and is composed of 12 teams and two divisions.

The Pony League consisted of seventy 13- and 14-year-old-boys, playing on 5 teams. The Ponies had no divisions but instead Pony teams played among themselves. They played at Cooper Junior High School during the season.

FINALLY, THE Colt League consisted of around 14 boys who formed only one team. This team traveled around playing other area towns.

Each boy played around 13 games during the season, which lasted from early May until the middle of July. Association officials explained that the season ends before the end of the summer to allow for family vacations, since each boy is required to play at least three innings in every game.

The BGRA held registration for the program in early February. Boys paid registration fees of $8 to $10 depending on how many boys from one family are in the program.

Sponsorships are sold to local organizations and businesses by the BGRA and cost $150 for the first year and $100 for every year after that. The sponsorships pay for uniform and equipment costs.

PARENTS OF THE boys volunteer to be managers and coaches for the teams and leagues.

One of the BGRA officials said the program was not expanded this year to include more teams because the BGRA was not certain whether facilities would be available for additional teams. In fact, the BGRA built a new playing field at St. Mary's Church to insure that they would have enough playing areas for the summer.

In addition, the Twin Grove Baptist Church also allowed the teams to use their property for practices.

Although games usually are exciting, they can put some people to sleep, as this catcher and umpire will admit.

"Just let me at that ball!"

Plotting strategy, players gather with their coach during a break in the action.

All leagues held playoffs at the end of the season, and some of the playoffs are still in progress.

THE FARM LEAGUE one-game playoffs established the Rhinos in first place, the Bulls in second, the Gators in third and the Hawks finished last.

Minor league playoffs are still in progress, with the Sabres and Jets battling for first and second place and the Saints and Twins playing for third and fourth place. At this point, the Jets and the Twins have both won one game out of the three game series.

In the Major League, the Flyers took first place, the Rangers took second, the Indians took third and the Blues finished in fourth place, at the end of the one-game playoffs.

In the Pony League, which awards prizes for first and second place, the Brewer's took top honors and the Padres finished in the second place slot.

The Colt League finished in second place in the Northwest Suburban Colt League. They will go on to compete in the playoff tournament.

Trophies for the award winning teams will be presented at banquets which the individual leagues will hold in early fall. Other awards will also be presented at the banquets including all star patches to the original all star team members from each league and trophies to the all-star traveling team from each league.

Local all-stars busy, too

Besides the regular league competition, all-star traveling teams from the Buffalo Grove Recreation Association boy's summer baseball program also competed in a number of area tournaments this summer.

Earlier in season, the traveling teams from the farm, minor, and major leagues played the Mount Prospect traveling all-stars at Thillens Stadium in Chicago. All three Buffalo Grove teams won their games.

The major league traveling all-stars also have entered the Thillens Stadium tournament, competing against 31 other teams from the Chicago area. The majors will play a doubleheader tonight to decide their standing as one of the top four teams.

They also participated in a Deerfield tournament earlier in the season, but were knocked out of the competition after two games.

In an Edison Park tournament, the minor league traveling team finished fourth out of four teams competing.

The farm league traveling all-stars will compete in a tournament at St. Mary's this weekend. The tournament will be a double elimination competition, and teams from Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect, Park Ridge and Arlington Heights will compete.

$9,744 radio expenditure OK'd

Paramedic program may be ready by September: chief

by LINDA PUNCH

The Elk Grove Village paramedic program should be in operation by September, according to a new report presented to the Elk Grove Village Board Tuesday night.

Paramedics are firemen who provided emergency medical treatment on the scene while in radio contact with a hospital.

The board eliminated a problem that could have postponed the paramedic program indefinitely by authorizing the purchase of $9,744 in paramedic radio and telemetering equipment from Metronik Sales Inc., Elmhurst.

The Metronik radio equipment was approved despite a recommendation from Village Mgr. Charles A. Willis that purchase of the equipment be postponed. Willis said the Northwest Hospital Council Committee was studying the effectiveness of different radio systems and the Metronik equipment might be obsolete within two years.

VILLAGE TRUSTEE Ed Kenna objected to purchase of the equipment, noting that Motorola Inc. has submitted a $7,513 bid for the same type of equipment. In an earlier report, fire department officials said the Motorola equipment was better suited to the village needs.

Elk Grove Fire Chief Allen Hulett said he changed his recommendation because officials of the Northwest Mobile Intensive Care System said Elk Grove would not be allowed to participate in the paramedic program unless "identical and compatible" equipment was used.

Most of the trustees said they would rather pay the extra money for the Metronik equipment than be left out of the program.

"Try to explain to the patient we lose that we didn't want to spend $10,000 because in upcoming years the equipment might be obsolete," Village Board Pres. Charles Zettek said.

Although Alexian Brothers Medical Center is considering participation in a similar paramedic program, Hulett said it would be at least 12 months before the program would be operative.

In his report, Hulett told trustees the ambulance at the Landmeier Road Fire Station would be ready to enter the program as soon as the radio equipment is installed, probably in September. A second ambulance, which will be stationed at the Blesterfield Road station, should be ready for operation by October, he said.

IN OTHER ACTION, the board approved a resolution stating the village's willingness to participate in the Illinois Fire Protection and Training Act program. Under the program, village firefighters must be certified by the Illinois Fire Protection Personnel Standard and Education Commission.

Program requirements include at least 12 months basic training in a school certified by the IFPTA.

The board also approved the purchase of a 1973 police solo motorcycle from Midwest Motorcycle Imports, Chicago, for $2,420, and the purchase of a new mosquito sprayer for $14,000 from Permalawn Inc., Evanston. The sprayer will be the second for the village.

AN INTERN'S WORK is never done. As administrative intern for Elk Grove Village this summer, Gary Parrin, standing, is acquiring much knowledge and experience through his work with administrative assistant Bob Franz. As it was for Franz when he was an administrative intern for the village in 1970, the amount of exposure the student gets to the local government process is unsurpassed by classroom work.

Sewage plant detrimental to environment: report

and MIKE ZAREMBA

The proposed Metropolitan Sanitary District sewage treatment plant does not utilize the best available technology, can be environmentally detrimental to the southwest part of Des Plaines and may bring about a net environmental and economic loss to the whole city, according to a 104-page research report compiled by Clark, Dietz and Associates-Engineers Inc.

The $5,000 report, aimed at updating and strengthening the city's waste water treatment plant building codes, was authorized by the city council in April. The Champaign-Urbana engineering firm was retained to prepare a written report as a building code criteria for the construction and operation of waste water treatment plants.

For eight years the city has fought an unsuccessful battle with MSD trying to persuade them to change the site for the plant. Although aldermen are unanimous in the opinion that the plant is needed in the area they don't want it on the 103-acre site located at the northeast corner of Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway — blocks from residential neighborhoods.

THE REPORT states that the suggested ordinance appears valid. "However, no legal opinion has been secured on the authority of a home rule municipality to regulate the governmental land uses by such as MSD."

Although MSD officials see the proposed plant as being small in comparison to their largest plants, the plant will be "8 to 10 times larger than necessary to serve the needs of the city of Des Plaines. Few plants in (Illinois) are larger," it states.

... It can be safely said that the larger the plant, the larger the area it potentially will affect detrimentally and the greater is the exposure to health hazard and nuisance."

THE REPORT lists some of the scientific operating hazards and nuisances of the plant as:

- Odor, a problem common to all sewage treatment plant processes. It states that normal characteristic odors from well run plants can be detected most of the time a quarter to one-half mile downwind from the plant. When the plant malfunctions, the malodors are detectable five or more miles away. There is no way of knowing how much or how bad odors would be or whether it would disturb property value.

- Noise, in this location, will be relatively minor in comparison to the noise from planes that use O'Hare Field. The report does not anticipate a noise problem.

- Contamination of water. "We are

'Rewarding for the student and Elk Grove'

Intern program helps grad study government

by DIANE STEFANOS

When a college graduate is suddenly thrust into the workings of a village government, the result can be exciting and rewarding for both the student and the village.

Gary Parrin of Oakbrook is a summer intern for Elk Grove Village as an assistant to Bob Franz, assistant village manager.

The last thing it means to Parrin is six credit hours toward his graduate work in the fall. The first thing is means to him is a chance to "really get into the workings of local government, understanding them and observe them," Parrin said.

"It's amazing the amount of detail that has to be done in government work. From the outside it seems that all government consists of is going to meetings and negotiating bills and ordinances. But it's much more than that," Parrin said.

THE SIXTH intern the village has accommodated since September, 1969, Parrin is the first summer intern. The other five interns worked during the school year.

Parrin applied for a municipal internship with the state department of local government affairs. His resume and those of other college students were sent to Elk Grove Village and other municipalities interested in hiring an intern. The interns were considered for scholastic achievement and interest in local government, and were screened during interviews.

"Not all municipalities know about or care to involve themselves with interns, so I really appreciate the chance to get experience here during the summer," Parrin said.

Gary is one of three recent Elk Grove interns for whom the village received $500 from the state to help pay for their work. Prior to this arrangement, administrative interns were paid solely by the village.

"They've had me working mainly on weed control and the property owners' compliance with the village ordinance since I got here a month ago," Parrin said.

THE INTERN'S other duties have included assisting in the preparation of the agenda for village board meetings, preparing a weekly newsletter distributed to village board and department heads, and receiving and answering residents' complaints.

Besides keeping journals and periodicals received by the village up to date, Parrin is more specifically involved with researching and laying the groundwork for a community calendar for 1974. The four male and one female administrative interns for the village prior to Parrin had similar responsibilities.

One of those interns in 1970 was Bob Franz, who returned in 1972 to accept the newly created position of administrative assistant.

"Since I was an intern, the village has had the chance to see how the intern process works, appreciating the interns' capability and assistance and giving them experience," Franz said.

"INTERNS LEAVE here with the feeling that they have gotten more out of the experience than they have given. Nothing a professor or text book can offer you can be as beneficial as the on-the-spot experience an intern receives here," Franz said.

Franz and Parrin agreed on what had impressed them about the village during their internships. That was the dedication of the village officials.

"I've only been here a month and I've seen the village trustees work hard to serve the community and get the things done that people want to see," Parrin said.

"Observing and getting involved with the governmental system here has increased my enthusiasm in getting into local government after I finish school."

PARRIN WILL continue his studies at Ohio State University where he will earn a master's degree in public administration. He recently graduated with a political science degree from the University of Illinois in Champaign.

Parrin says, "My ambition is to become a village manager of a young and developing community like Elk Grove. It's more challenging and enjoyable when the community is young, and lots can be done with it."

The selling of the Army, 1973, is a tough business

by BETSY LEE

The girl who walked up to the Army display stand was probably 16 years old. She had long brown hair pulled back over her ears, monogrammed earrings and was dressed impeccably.

She stopped, picked up a handful of brochures and began looking through them. But before she could read the first few lines, the Army recruiter was at her side. And for the next half hour she was learning everything from soup to nuts about the military and why she should join. This girl, perhaps, had no more intention of joining the Army than dropping out of high school, but she had stopped and she was a prospect.

That's the way it is these days in military recruiting. The new fiscal year began July 1 and quotas have to be met just like those of a salesman.

So the Army and other branches of service are pulling out all the stops in an effort to enlist men and women. The display stand at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg is an example.

THERE WERE two recruiters, a man and a woman, who stood alongside a portable movie screen and piles of brochures. This was their ammunition and men and women between the age of 18 and 21 were their targets. They were hustling just as if their jobs depended upon it and this may be the case.

The passive recruiters are no longer. They now are heading to schools, shopping centers, ball games or "wherever the people are" according to Lt. Col. Peter Clifford of the U.S. Army. "We have to make it convenient for the people and go where they go," he said.

With the beginning of a new recruiting year for all volunteer forces, the officers are scrambling with new methods to entice young men and women into their offices. Because there is no draft, the role of the recruiter has changed.

"It is a selling game," said Sgt. William Thomsen of the Marine Corps. "Five years ago a man might walk into the office and say, 'I want to join the Marines.' The recruiter would probably say, 'So what? So does everyone else.' But now, the recruiter will say, 'Sit right down and I'll tell you the whole story.'"

During the last fiscal year, the Army alone poured more than $26.7 million in advertising for active army inductees, according to Col. Gerald Childress, director of advertising and information for the U.S. Army at Ft. Sheridan.

CHILDRESS INDICATED that in 1973 $138 was spent in advertising per soldier, as compared to the $35 spent in 1970. More ads, posters, commercials and recruiters are used today in hope of bringing the potential inductees to meet quotas set for active armed forces.

"Vietnam had a terrible effect on the Army," said Clifford, also stationed at Ft. Sheridan. "The Army had to act in an unnatural atmosphere, mostly political."

He said the reserves should have been utilized so drafting would be minimized. "It brought in undesirables and things like My Lai happened," he said. "But as Vietnam diminishes, people will remember the favorable and social importance. We've got to re-educate the people... we're not ogres... we don't thrive on killing."

"The Vietnam war was an unpopular war," said Thomsen. "A lot of people didn't want to go and they don't connect the service as a way to get ahead in education. The immediate connection is to go out and shoot people."

IN TALKING WITH potential inductees, the recruiters emphasize the opportunity and education, rather than service.

Combat and other regimented duties are still very much a part of the military, and the recruiter does not disguise or hide the less attractive aspects of duty, according to Clifford.

"But we're discovering, although no men like to say so, that there's need to serve the country," he said. "I think they're beginning to enlist for the right reasons."

A handful of new incentives have been added to bolster the attractiveness of enlisting. For example, in January, there was an increase in base pay, thus more than doubling the amount to $307 a month.

"But we have to work harder and longer hours for the same amount of people," said Roger Johnson, a Navy recruiter working in Palatine. Johnson said they have enlisted five persons this month, the normal number. "The numbers are slowly (increasing) but surely," he said.

IN CHICAGO, the Army met 72 per cent of its recruiting objective, the Army met 95 per cent nationwide, according to Clifford. "It's too early to say how we're doing this year, since the fiscal year just started," he said. "But it'll work... it'll just take some time."

Air Force Recruiter Sgt. Robert Hill reported that quotas were met in his office at 800 Lee St. in Des Plaines.

"We never drafted, so the numbers won't change much," he said. "This area is harder, so it depends on the geographical location. Texas is a good state because it's a military-minded state. People are waiting at the doors there."

MANNED BY Sgt. James P. Gregory, center yesterday is one tactic to entice man to enlist in the Army.

Friday night at Soldier Field Village girl chosen 1973 All-Star football queen

A former Elk Grove Village girl is the queen for the 1973 All-Star football game Friday night at Soldier Field in Chicago.

Three years ago, Pam Metcalf appeared on the same football field on a 30-degree night for a halftime performance by the Elk Grove High School marching band during a Chicago Bears football game.

A senior music education major at Illinois Wesleyan University at Bloomington, Pam was chosen in final competition from 10 other college contestants. Her reign will come to a close on Saturday.

During her one-month reign, Pam has made continual public appearances, promoting the game. Between meetings the All-Star players at Dwyer Stadium and addressing more than 1,000 inner-city children, Chicago businessmen and Jaycees at an all-star luncheon, Pam has had quieter times to think about her recent experiences and title.

"I'VE MET AND talked to so many different people from so many different facets of life. Being All-Star queen has given me the chance to travel and meet people, something I have always wanted to do," Pam said.

The All-Star queen pageant is sponsored by the Jaycees of Chicago, who distribute applications to colleges throughout the Midwest and conduct the preliminary screening of contestants. College girls between the ages of 18 and 23 are judged on neatness, appearance, poise and personal interview.

"It's not really a beauty contest. Jaycees and celebrities who judge are only interested in the girl's philosophies, views, and personality because she must represent the All-Star game, activities and what they stand for," Pam said.

ALL PROCEEDS FROM the game go to charities. The Jaycees sponsor the All-Star luncheon and the Tribune charities sponsor the game. The game between the collegians and the professional champions, the Miami Dolphins, will be at Soldier's Stadium at 8:30 p.m. Friday.

"Being the 33rd annual All-Star queen has made me realize now, more than ever, that a person should always strive to accomplish whatever he can in life," she said.

An 11-year resident of Elk Grove Village, she graduated from Elk Grove High in 1970.

PAM WILL RETURN to her summer job and friends on the Bloomington campus after the All-Star activities have ended. She will complete one more year of her education and go on to teaching. She presently lives in West Chicago.

"I think a woman's role can be anything she makes it. If she wants to be a housewife or a career woman she shouldn't be put down for it. In this day and age, a woman can be anything she wants to be," Pam said.

Her court consists of Karen Gribbin of Berwyn, a senior at Eastern Illinois University, and Sandle Stavropoulos of Mount Prospect, sophomore at Northwestern.

Sewage plant detrimental to environment: report

confident that the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency will check the final plans thoroughly for such possibility."

THE REPORT details three instances where available technology was not utilized in the MSD plant design: covering the processing tanks to eliminate odor, the use of pure oxygen as an aeration process which would be more efficient and necessitate smaller tanks; and treating odorous air by bubbling it through sewage aeration tanks to control odor.

The engineers suggested that the city:

- Amend the zoning ordinance to make it applicable to all uses whether governmental or privately owned.
- Make a governmental use a special use in any zoning district.
- Make the performance standards applicable only to special zoning uses.
- Upgrade the zoning performance standards to utilize the latest available recognized performance measurement methods.
- Amend performance standards to make them achievable rather than idealized.
- Recognize those conditions, such as airplane noises which are beyond the power of city government to control, in amending noise and odor standards by having several levels of performance.

Eighth Ward Alderman Richard Ward and Alan Abrams will meet with the U.

S. EPA July 31 in Chicago to show a slide presentation comparing various water treatment facilities. Abrams told the Herald yesterday they will also use the report.

THE EPA MUST approve plans for the MSD project before federal matching funds are granted.

"The main thrust of the presentation will be that the proposed project will require additional health, safety and the plant would have to be dramatically smaller," said Abrams. "The present specifications are wrong from an engineering standpoint. It should not be built of that magnitude."

Abrams said the EPA president "really can't see sanctioning the present project unless substantial revision of the design are made."

"We will very definitely use the (engineer's) report in our presentation," he said. "The report is a modern analysis of similar problems concerned with health considerations, giving some of the history of sewage treatment problems."

Plans for hospitals stalled?

by STEVE BROWN

A major roadblock may be thrown into plans for several new area hospitals because of a new hardline stand taken by Blue Cross Plan yesterday on health insurance payments.

In action aimed at containing health care costs, Blue Cross stated it would cancel or modify contracts with existing hospitals that expand facilities without approval of a comprehensive health-planning agency.

In the case of a new hospital, Blue Cross may refuse to enter into a contract if a comprehensive health planning agency does not approve it.

WITHOUT A contract from the Blue Cross Plan, patients would not be able to recover medical costs if treated at an unapproved hospital. The policy is similar to federal regulations covering Medicare and Medicaid subsidies.

"Few hospitals would be able to survive in this case," one Blue Cross official said.

The Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center has tentatively received approval from the planning agency. But a spokesman for Comprehensive Health Planning Inc. of Chicago (CHP) said that plans for all new hospitals in the area, including Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Glenview will undergo a stringent review.

Created under state and federal laws, the comprehensive health planning agencies now review plans for new medical facilities and make recommendations, but they have no power to stop construction or force redesign of plans.

There are now nine regional health planning agencies in the state. There is also a state health planning agency to coordinate all activities.

PRESENT STATE laws do not require a hospital developer to show a need for their facilities as a criterion for obtaining a license from the state.

Legislation that will require developers to show a need for the facilities was sidetracked in a committee of the Illinois Senate last session. The bill has already passed the House.

Leo Hickman of CHP said the plans developed by American Mediacorp Inc. for a 300 bed hospital in Hoffman Estates are now under review.

He said the review should be completed in 60 to 90 days. Plans for the Evanston Hospital branch in Glenview are also being studied, he said.

"Basically we are in agreement with Blue Cross in their effort to control increasing hospital costs," Hickman said. He added that state legislation in this area would also help.

BLUE CROSS officials argue that uncontrolled growth of hospitals will result in constantly increasing costs to patients. They said the average hospital bed costs more than $60 a day to maintain whether or not it is being used.

Without guidelines for expansion and development of health facilities many more hospital beds will be built than needed, raising health care costs for everyone.

"The Chicago based Blue Cross Plan and its more than 3 million members in Illinois should not and must not be expected to help pay the cost of health care facilities that are not needed to meet the health care needs of their community," said Robert S. Petersen, senior vice president of Blue Cross.

Another Blue Cross official said the new guidelines will go into effect immediately.

Apparently the only health facility in the state that may feel immediate pressure from the new plan is a hospital being constructed in Springfield.

The selling of the Army: tough work

by BETTY LEE

The girl who walked up to the Army display stand was probably 16 years old. She had long brown hair pulled back over her ears, monogrammed earrings and was dressed impeccably.

She stopped, picked up a handful of brochures and began looking through them. But before she could read the first few lines, the Army recruiter was at her side. And for the next half hour she was learning everything from soup to nuts about the military and why she should join. This girl, perhaps, had no more intention of joining the Army than dropping out of high school, but she had stopped and she was a prospect.

MANNED BY Sgt. James P. Gregory, the display in Woodfield shopping center yesterday is one tactic to entice men to enlist in the Army.

That's the way it is these days in military recruiting. The new fiscal year began July 1 and quotas have to be met just like those of a salesman.

So the Army and other branches of service are pulling out all the stops in an effort to enlist men and women. The display stand at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg is an example.

THERE WERE two recruiters, a man and a woman, who stood alongside a portable movie screen and piles of brochures. This was their ammunition and men and women between the age of 18 and 21 were their targets. They were hustling just as if their jobs depended upon it and this may be the case.

The passive recruiters are no longer. They now are heading to schools, shopping centers, ball games or "wherever the people are" according to Lt. Col. Peter Clifford of the U.S. Army. "We have to make it convenient for the people and go where they go," he said.

With the beginning of a new recruiting year for all volunteer forces, the officers are scrambling with new methods to entice young men and women into their offices. Because there is no draft, the role of the recruiter has changed.

"It is a selling game," said Sgt. William Thomsen of the Marine Corps. "Five years ago a man might walk into the office and say, 'I want to join the Marines.' The recruiter would probably say, 'So what? So does everyone else.' But now, the recruiter will say, 'Sit right down and I'll tell you the whole story.'"

During the last fiscal year, the Army alone poured more than $26.7 million in advertising for active army inductees, according to Col. Gerald Childress, director of advertising and information for the U.S. Army at Ft. Sheridan.

CHILDRESS INDICATED that in 1973 $138 was spent in advertising per soldier, as compared to the $35 spent in 1970. More ads, posters, commercials and recruiters are used today in hope of bringing the potential inductees to meet quotas set for active armed forces.

"Vietnam had a terrible effect on the Army," said Clifford, also stationed at Ft. Sheridan. "The Army had to act in an unnatural atmosphere, mostly pitiful."

He said the reserves should have been utilized so drafting would be minimized. "It brought in undesirables and things like My Lai happened," he said. "But as Vietnam diminishes, people will remember the favorable and social importance. We've got to re-educate the people... we're not ogres... we don't thrive on killing."

"The Vietnam war was an unpopular war," said Thomsen. "A lot of people didn't want to go and they don't connect the service as a way to get ahead in education. The immediate connection is to

Petition demands referendum to end rural park district

Unincorporated residents battling over plans for parks

by JULIA BAUER

Residents of unincorporated Palatine Township are bitterly embroiled in a battle over plans for parks in the unincorporated subdivisions.

The latest development is a petition demanding a referendum to dissolve the rural park district, which was submitted to the board this week after two months of fiery board meetings between newly elected board members and residents who oppose the expansion plans of the board.

Until the April elections, the rural park district had served as a protection from high taxes in other park districts which might annex landowners in unincorporated areas. But with increasing subdivision development in the township, new residents have started seeking park facilities for their children.

RESIDENTS OF the northern subdivisions of Heatheries, English Valley and Pepper Tree Farms elected three men from their area to the rural park board in a write-in campaign last April.

Those men, now president Thomas Patten, vice-president Eugene Dorsch, and John Pinter, form a majority of the five-man board and have passed an appropriation ordinance of $117,000 for next year.

Residents of Plum Grove Estates and other western subdivisions complained bitterly about the proposed budget, saying they may not benefit from the park plans and already have enough facilities for their needs.

If the referendum to dissolve the district fails, Plum Grove Estates residents will still try to withdraw from the park district. Petitions to disconnect the subdivision from the district were submitted this week, because Plum Grove residents feel they have a better chance to get board approval now.

OTHER PETITIONS to disconnect property from the district include the regions where the two old-time board members, Vern Donner and Edwin Bartz, live. If those areas are let out, their board member spots will be vacant. New members are appointed by the rest of the board.

"This leaves us in a dilemma," Christenson explained.

Now park board members want to hire a planner to set up a master plan for parks in the rural district. And they want to start buying land for parks, probably near their subdivisions initially.

The new budget will increase the average homeowner's taxes from about 40 cents per $10,000 assessed valuation to $47 per $10,000. The former boards had levied only enough taxes to retain an attorney and hold elections since the district was formed in 1950.

Additional taxing powers of the park board include a 7 1/2 cent levy for a recreation fund and the sale of revenue-producing bonds equal to one per cent of the district's assessed valuation.

Board members will act on the dissolution petition at their August 22 meeting at Prince of Peace Lutheran Church. The petition was spearheaded by Carl Christenson, president of the Plum Grove Estates Homeowners Association, who said the referendum should help inform residents in the park district about the board's tax levying powers.

"This referendum, in one way or another, should clear the air and settle the thing down. I think there are a lot of people who really don't understand that they are in the rural park district," Christenson said.

PINTER, ONE of the new majority, said he believes the residents of the three subdivisions can beat the referendum to dissolve the park district, since it takes a two-thirds majority of the vote to abolish the district.

If the move to dissolve the district is successful, residents of the three subdivisions may try to form another district involving people who want the park program. But according to park attorney Roger Bjorvik, the three subdivisions combined may have less than half the required assessed valuation to qualify as a new park district.

End secret trusts: official

An ordinance barring secret land trusts on property with which the Village of Palatine is involved was proposed this week by a village trustee.

Trustee Richard W. Fonte said the ordinance would force holders of secret land trusts to reveal their identities if the village is involved in the sale, rental or condemnation of the property.

Illinois is one of the few states that allows secret land trusts, hiding true ownership of property.

Fonte said his proposal was not intended to reflect on any past negotiations between the village and property owners, saying he is not aware of any impropriety.

"I just think it's a good policy," he said, "and I think Palatine ought to take the lead and not wait for the House or Senate."

Both branches of the Illinois General Assembly passed bills during the last session which would eliminate secret land trusts in dealing with the state or any local units of government.

The bills were passed in different forms and are being reconciled in a House-Senate conference committee.

Fonte's suggestion was referred to Village Atty. Bradley M. Glass to be drafted into ordinance form. Glass, a state senator from the 2nd District, is the Senate sponsor of the secret land trust bill.

Recruiters aim at quotas

The selling of the Army: tough work

go out and shoot people."

IN TALKING WITH potential inductees, the recruiters emphasize the opportunity and education, rather than service.

Combat and other regimented duties are still very much a part of the military, and the recruiter does not disguise or hide the less attractive aspects of duty, according to Clifford.

A handful of new incentives have been added to bolster the attractiveness of enlisting. For example, in January, there was an increase in base pay, thus more than doubling the amount to $307 a month.

"But we have to work harder and longer hours for the same amount of people," said Roger Johnson, a Navy recruiter working in Palatine. Johnson said they have enlisted five persons this month, the normal number. "The numbers are slowly (increasing) but surely," he said.

IN CHICAGO, the Army met 72 per cent of its recruiting objective, the Army met 95 per cent nationwide, according to Clifford. "It's too early to say how we're doing this year, since the fiscal year just started," he said. "But it'll work... it'll just take some time."

Air Force Recruiter Sgt. Robert Hill reported that quotas were met in his office at 800 Lee St. in Des Plaines.

"We never drafted, so the numbers won't change much," he said. "This area is harder, so it depends on the geographical location. Texas is a good state because it's a military-minded state. People are waiting at the doors there."

There are less incentives provided in the Air Force and Marines than in the Army or Navy, because both were volunteer forces and never drafted men.

"We never had to resort to this kind of thing," said Hill.

"There are no short cuts, no compromises or relaxing our standards," said Thomson of the Marines. "We don't have longer hair or beer machines in barracks as the Army do. We are training them as we have always trained them."

The future? The recruiters interviewed said they were not worried about men and women enlisting. "I cannot see any changes in the immediate future," said Johnson. "But I think we can do better."

Blue Cross could back out

Plans for hospitals stalled?

by STEVE BROWN

A major roadblock may be thrown into plans for several new area hospitals because of a new hardline stand taken by Blue Cross Plan yesterday on health insurance payments.

In action aimed at containing health care costs, Blue Cross stated it would cancel or modify contracts with existing hospitals that expand facilities without approval of a comprehensive health-planning agency.

In the case of a new hospital, Blue Cross may refuse to enter into a contract if a comprehensive health planning agency does not approve it.

WITHOUT A contract from the Blue Cross Plan, patients would not be able to recover medical costs if treated at an unapproved hospital. The policy is similar to federal regulations covering Medicare and Medicaid subsidies.

"Few hospitals would be able to survive in this case," one Blue Cross official said.

The Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center has tentatively received approval from the planning agency. But a spokesman for Comprehensive Health Planning Inc. of Chicago (CHP) said that plans for all new hospitals in the area, including Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Glenview will undergo a stringent review.

Created under state and federal laws, the comprehensive health planning agencies now review plans for new medical facilities and make recommendations, but they have no power to stop construction or force redesign of plans.

There are now nine regional health planning agencies in the state. There is also a state health planning agency to coordinate all activities.

PRESENT STATE laws do not require a hospital developer to show a need for their facilities as a criterion for obtaining a license from the state.

Village gives payroll account to new bank

The Village of Palatine's payroll account has been transferred from the Palatine National Bank to the Suburban National Bank.

Village trustees this week agreed to switch banks in order to give each banking and savings and loan facility in town a portion of the village funds. The village payroll is about $45,000 every two weeks.

The Suburban National Bank, 800 E. Northwest Hwy., previously had been excluded from holding village accounts because a former village trustee, John E. Hughes, was president of the bank. Hughes resigned from the village board in 1971.

Both the Palatine and Suburban National Banks are owned by Suburban Bank Group.

Two honored for work with Girl Scouts

Two Palatine residents recently were honored at MacMurray College, Jacksonville, for their volunteer work with Girl Scouts.

Katherine M. Kuecker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Kuecker, 21 N. Linden Ave., and Barbara Kienker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth L. Kienker, 1311 Norman Dr., were cited in an honors and awards ceremony.

Both are 1971 graduates of Palatine High School and are majoring in deaf education at MacMurray.

In 4-H conference

Phyllis Frey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Frey of Palatine, is participating in an annual state 4-H leadership conference in Monticello.

Miss Frey, a member of the Scratches & Burns 4-H Club, is also secretary of the North Cook County 4-H Federation. She has been in 4-H for nine years, five as a junior leader.

David Baker, 1119 Hunting Dr., and Sandra Conrad, 817 Sutherland Ct., both of Palatine, recently were named to the dean's list at Illinois Wesleyan University, Bloomington.

Bike safety course

Palatine kids have a chance to test their bicycle safety skills on a Cook County obstacle course today, starting at 10 a.m. at Jane Addams School, 1020 Sayles Ave., and at 1:30 p.m. at Hunting Ridge School, 1105 W. Illinois Ave.

Members of the Cook County Bicycle Traffic Commission will show films and discuss bicycle safety rules. Children who pass the obstacle course and safety requirements will receive a safety sticker.

Bicyclists who ride at night must have lights on their bikes, but bicyclists who do not ride after dark will receive the safety sticker if they bring a note from their parents stating that the child doesn't ride the bike at night.

Palatine youth, 5, injured in accident

A five-year-old bicycle rider sustained minor injuries last night when he was struck by a car near his Palatine home.

Wayne Selk, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Selk, 533 W. Glencoe Rd., was taken to Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights with minor cuts when he was hit by a car driven by Donald Jern, 26, of 155 Glisson Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Palatine patrolman Jack Byrnes said the Selk boy apparently pulled out of a driveway onto Glencoe Road near Elm Street, into the path of the car. The accident occurred around 6 p.m.

As of last night, no tickets have been issued.

Three injured when auto rams into liquor store

Three persons were injured by flying glass Tuesday night when an Arlington Heights woman was unable to stop her car while parking at a Palatine liquor store and drove through the store window.

Two of the injured were listed in good condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. Debbie Goble, 18, of Maple Hills was cut in the back, and William McCabe, 21, of 1 N. Hickory Ave., Arlington Heights, received cuts on the left arm and groin.

A third victim, John Boyer of Long Grove, 20, was treated and released from the hospital.

The accident occurred at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, when Terry Ann Jehduk, of 1007 E. Palatine Rd., Arlington Heights, pulled into a parking space after letting Miss Goble and McCabe get out to go inside the Palatine Liquors at the corner of Palatine and Quentin roads. Miss Jehduk's brakes failed and the car ran through the storefront window.

When the woman shifted her auto into reverse, the car swerved out of the parking space and backed into a ditch, police said.

All three injured were inside the liquor store when the accident occurred.

Palatine police said the brake line had broken on the Jehduk car, causing the brake failure. Miss Jehduk was not ticketed for the accident.

Property owner calls South Side 'first-class dump'

Calling the south side of Rolling Meadows "a first-class city dump," one of 10 property owners of land along Golf Road criticized the city council Tuesday for failing to rezone the land from residential to commercial use.

W. H. Grismer, one of 10 persons who owns one-acre parcels along Golf Road near the J. C. Penney Treasury Store, told the council it "passed up a million dollar opportunity on the south side of Golf Road" by refusing to rezone the land two weeks ago.

The property is presently a single-family area surrounded by commercial and industrial interests. The property owners are seeking rezoning of the land so they can sell their parcels to developers.

A SPECIAL zoning commission formed at the request of the city council rather than the land owners recommended approval of the zoning, but the council backed down on the move, saying blanket zoning of the 10 individual parcels would leave the city with no control over the kinds of businesses that might be built there.

Grismer said the city has failed to move forward on plans to improve the area along Golf Road and has interfered with the property owners' plans to sell the land.

"Right now I believe the south side of Rolling Meadows is a first class city dump," Grismer charged. He said trash is being dumped on empty lots there, an abandoned house burned there this month, and weeds are overgrown in the area.

He said the city "did an injustice to the property owners" by refusing to grant the rezoning on grounds that the land might be developed in 10 separate parcels. He said no objections were raised to the plan during a special zoning commission hearing and that the owners were led to believe the land would be rezoned with no problems.

"We just got pigeonholed and it died," he told the council. He said because the land was not zoned, a Kansas City developer who had expressed interest in buying some of the land later backed down on his offer because of the delays in zoning.

MAYOR ROLAND MEYER countered Grismer's accusations, saying the city is not opposed to zoning the land for commercial use but is opposed to granting the zoning without some idea of the kind of development that will be built on the land.

"I think to a man this council agrees that land should be zoned for commercial use," Meyer said. But he added it would be poor planning on the part of the city to zone 10 separate parcels without having some idea of what will be going in there.

Meyer said the land is surrounded by planned developments — developments which must be approved step by step by the council. Other developments need only meet city building and zoning codes to be built, leaving no means of control to the council, Meyer said.

"We put the interest of the city over the interest of 10 land speculators who want to sell some property," Ald. Thomas Scanlan (1st) told Grismer. Scanlan chided the property owners for criticizing the city and told them if they want to sell their land, they could do so regardless of the city's actions.

Grismer countered Scanlan's remark by saying developers are not interested in the land unless it is zoned for commercial development.

Meyer said the city does not want to "speculatively zone" the land, and suggested that if the property owners have plans that can be presented on how the land will be used, the zoning change might be taken up again by the council.

FROG DIVE MIGHT be a good name for this swimmer's strange way of plunging into a pool. It doesn't matter on hot, muggy days how one gets in water or where, but just that he finds that well-come relief.

Safe walk sought for Frontage Road

Students walking to Central Road School along East Frontage Road now have to compete with buses and cars for walking room, but the hazardous situation may be changed soon.

The Rolling Meadows City Council is considering a proposal to spend $10,000 in motor fuel tax funds to pave the shoulder of East Frontage Road from Bobwhite Court to Central Road. The paving is intended to give the students a safer place to walk.

However, the matter was tabled by the council Tuesday after Ald. Stephen Eberhard (3rd) expressed opposition to the proposal. The matter has been sent to the newly appointed public works committee for further study and a recommendation. The previous public works committee had authorized the shoulder paving.

Eberhard said he was against the shoulder paving for a number of reasons, one of which is that "it would be just too close to the road." The proposal "is not really putting in anything that will save lives," said Eberhard.

CITY ENGINEER James Muldowney

said the shoulder-paving proposal was being presented instead of putting in curbs and gutters and sidewalks because of difficulty with the grade level of the land there. The other City Eng. Edward Fletcher added "sidewalks are out of the question. There is no room for them."

No timetable was established for further council consideration of the shoulder paving.

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 officials said yesterday they were unaware of the proposal but felt it was an excellent idea.

ROBERT ANDERSON, principal of Central Road School, said he had contacted an alderman several years ago to see if anything could be done to alleviate the hazardous situation but had never made a formal request to the city.

Anderson estimated between 30 and 40 students walk along East Frontage Road to get to and from school now but said the number of students walking along the road could increase if the shoulder was paved. Some of the students now walk along Owl Drive instead of East Frontage Road.

Blue Cross stand may stall hospital expansion

by STEVE BROWN

A major roadblock may be thrown into plans for several new area hospitals because of a new headline stand taken by Blue Cross Plan yesterday on health insurance payments.

PRESENT STATE laws do not require a hospital developer to show a need for their facilities as a criterion for obtaining a license from the state.

Legislation that will require developers to show a need for the facilities was sidetracked in a committee of the Illinois Senate last session. The bill has already passed the House.

Leo Hickman of CHP said the plans developed by American Mediacorp Inc. for a 300 bed hospital in Hoffman Estates are now under review.

He said the review should be completed in 60 to 90 days. Plans for the Evanston Hospital branch in Glenview are also being studied, he said.

"Basically we are in agreement with Blue Cross in their effort to control increasing hospital costs," Hickman said. He added that state legislation in this area would also help.

BLUE CROSS officials argue that uncontrolled growth of hospitals will result in constantly increasing costs to patients. They said the average hospital bed costs more than $60 a day to maintain whether or not it is being used.

ILLINOIS TRAFFIC SAFETY ALERT

Drive Alert In Illinois

It's a Great Place to LIVE.

Without guidelines for expansion and development of health facilities many more hospital beds will be built than needed, raising health care costs for everyone.

"The Chicago based Blue Cross Plan and its more than 3 million members in Illinois should not and must not be expected to help pay the cost of health care facilities that are not needed to meet the health care needs of their community," said Robert S. Petersen, senior vice president of Blue Cross.

Another Blue Cross official said the new guidelines will go into effect immediately.

Apparently the only health facility in the state that may feel immediate pressure from the new plan is a hospital being constructed in Springfield.

Comprehensive health planning officials have determined that the two existing hospitals in the city are sufficient and the new facility would not be necessary.

Recruiters aim at quotas

IN TALKING WITH potential inductees, the recruiters emphasize the opportunity and education, rather than service.

Combat and other regimented duties are still very much a part of the military, and the recruiter does not disguise or hide the less attractive aspects of duty, according to Clifford.

listing. For example, in January, there was an increase in base pay, thus more than doubling the amount to $307 a month.

"But we have to work harder and longer hours for the same amount of people," said Roger Johnson, a Navy recruiter working in Palatine. Johnson said they have enlisted five persons this month, the normal number. "The numbers are slowly (increasing) but surely," he said.

IN CHICAGO, the Army met 72 per cent of its recruiting objective, the Army met 95 per cent nationwide, according to Clifford. "It's too early to say how we're doing this year, since the fiscal year just started," he said. "But it'll work... it'll just take some time."

Air Force Recruiter Sgt. Robert Hill reported that quotas were met in his office at 800 Lee St. in Des Plaines.

"We never drafted, so the numbers won't change much," he said. "This area is harder, so it depends on the geographical location. Texas is a good state because it's a military-minded state. People are waiting at the doors there."

There are less incentives provided in the Air Force and Marines than in the Army or Navy, because both were volunteer forces and never drafted men.

"We never had to resort to this kind of thing," said Hill.

"There are no short cuts, no compromises or relaxing our standards," said Thomson of the Marines. "We don't have longer hair or beer machines in barracks as the Army do. We are training them as we have always trained them."

The future? The recruiters interviewed said they were not worried about men and women enlisting. "I cannot see any changes in the immediate future," said Johnson. "But I think we can do better."

Sewage plant detrimental to environment, report says

by DOROTHY OLIVER and MIKE ZAREMBA

The proposed Metropolitan Sanitary District sewage treatment plant does not utilize the best available technology, can be environmentally detrimental of the southwest part of Des Plaines and may bring about a net environmental and economic loss to the whole city, according to a 104-page research report compiled by Clark, Dietz and Associates-Engineers Inc.

The $5,000 report, aimed at updating and strengthening the city's waste water treatment plant building codes, was authorized by the city council in April. The Champaign-Urbana engineering firm was retained to prepare a written report as a building code criteria for the construction and operation of waste water treatment plants.

For eight years the city has fought an unsuccessful battle with MSD trying to persuade them to change the site for the plant. Although aldermen are unanimous in the opinion that the plant is needed in the area they don't want it on the 103-acre site located at the northeast corner of Elmhurst Road and the Northwest Tollway — blocks from residential neighborhoods.

THE REPORT states that the suggested ordinance appears valid. "However, no legal opinion has been secured on the authority of a home rule municipality to regulate the governmental land uses by such as MSD."

Although MSD officials see the proposed plant as being small in comparison to their largest plants, the plant will be

"8 to 10 times larger than necessary to serve the needs of the city of Des Plaines. Few plants in (Illinois) are larger," it states.

"... It can be safely said that the larger the plant, the larger the area it potentially will affect detrimentally and the greater is the exposure to health hazard and nuisance."

THE REPORT lists some of the scientific operating hazards and nuisances of the plant as:

- Odor, a problem common to all sewage treatment plant processes. It states that normal characteristic odors from well run plants can be detected most of the time a quarter to one-half mile downwind from the plant. When the plant malfunctions, the malodors are detectable five or more miles away. There is no way of knowing how much or how bad odors would be or whether it would disturb property value.

- Noise, in this location, will be relatively minor in comparison to the noise from planes that use O'Hare Field. The report does not anticipate a noise problem.

- Contamination of water. "We are confident that the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency will check the final plans thoroughly for such possibility."

THE REPORT details three instances where available technology was not utilized in the MSD plant design: covering the processing tanks to eliminate odor, the use of pure oxygen as an aeration process which would be more efficient and necessitate smaller tanks; and treating odorous air by bubbling it through sewage aeration tanks to control odor. The engineers suggested that the city:

- Amend the zoning ordinance to make it applicable to all uses whether governmental or privately owned.
- Make a governmental use a special use in any zoning district.
- Make the performance standards applicable only to special zoning uses.
- Upgrade the zoning performance standards to utilize the latest available recognized performance measurement methods.
- Amend performance standards to make them achievable rather than idealized.

- Recognize those conditions, such as airplane noises which are beyond the power of city government to control, in amending noise and odor standards by having several levels of performance.

Eighth Ward Alderman Richard Ward and Alan Abrams will meet with the U. S. EPA July 31 in Chicago to show a slide presentation comparing various water treatment facilities. Abrams told the Herald yesterday they will also use the report.

THE EPA MUST approve plans for the MSD project before federal matching funds are granted.

"The main thrust of the presentation will be that the proposed project will require additional health, safety and the plant would have to be dramatically smaller," said Abrams. "The present specifications are wrong from an engineering standpoint. It should not be built of that magnitude."

Abrams said the EPA president "really can't see sanctioning the present project unless substantial revision of the design are made."

"We will very definitely use the (engineer's) report in our presentation," he said. "The report is a modern analysis of similar problems concerned with health considerations, giving some of the history of sewage treatment problems."

Palatine youth, 5, injured in accident

A five-year-old bicycle rider sustained minor injuries last night when he was struck by a car near his Palatine home.

Wayne Selk, son of Mr. and Mrs. William L. Selk, 533 W. Glencoe Rd., was taken to Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights with minor cuts when he was hit by a car driven by Donald Jernt, 26, of 155 Grissom Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Palatine patrolman Jack Byrnes said the Selk boy apparently pulled out of a driveway onto Glencoe Road near Elm Street, into the path of the car. The accident occurred around 6 p.m.

As of last night, no tickets have been issued.

Three injured when auto rams into liquor store

Three persons were injured by flying glass Tuesday night when an Arlington Heights woman was unable to stop her car while parking at a Palatine liquor store and drove through the store window.

Two of the injured were listed in good condition yesterday at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights. Debbie Goble, 18, of Maple Hills was cut in the back, and William McCabe, 21, of 1 N. Hickory Ave., Arlington Heights, received cuts on the left arm and groin.

A third victim, John Boyer of Long Grove, 20, was treated and released from the hospital.

The accident occurred at 10:30 p.m. Tuesday, when Terry Ann Jehduk, of 1007 E. Palatine Rd., Arlington Heights, pulled into a parking space after leaving Miss Goble and McCabe get out to go inside the Palatine Liquors at the corner of Palatine and Quentin roads. Miss Jehduk's brakes failed and the car ran through the storefront window.

When the woman shifted her auto into reverse, the car swerved out of the parking space and backed into a ditch, police said.

All three injured were inside the liquor store when the accident occurred.

Palatine police said the brake line had broken on the Jehduk car, causing the brake failure. Miss Jehduk was not ticketed for the accident.

ROLLING MEADOWS

Carnival at Topps Plaza

A carnival begins today and runs through Sunday in the Topps plaza in Rolling Meadows. The carnival is being sponsored by the Rolling Meadows Jaycees.

Rides, game booths, and food booths will be included in the event. A special "queen of hearts" contest will also be held. A winner will be chosen Sunday night on the basis of which contestant has the most votes in the form of pennies cast in ballot cans. The pennies collected will go to the Rolling Meadows paramedics.

Proceeds from the carnival will go toward funding Jaycees events in the city. City receives $19,501.77.

Rolling Meadows received $19,501.77 in motor fuel tax funds from the state in June, figures show.

The figures were read during a city council meeting Tuesday.

Park swim team boosters to meet

The Rolling Meadows Park District swim team boosters club will meet today at 8 p.m. in the sports complex meeting room, 3900 Owl Dr.

Next year's officers will be elected at the meeting and plans will also be discussed for the Northern Illinois Swimming Conference on Aug. 7.

Higgins, Roselle roads

Fatality triggers board action to fix intersection

A fatal accident at the intersection of Higgins and Roselle roads has prompted the Hoffman Estates Village Board to renew efforts to change the traffic pattern on Higgins Road.

Michael J. McNally, 16, of 265 Pleasant Dr., died Saturday of injuries received in an accident Friday that fits the pattern of most collisions at the intersection.

Michael was a passenger in a car driven by his mother, Virginia McNally, westbound on Higgins and turning left onto Roselle. Police reported their auto was struck by one driven by Randolph Linquist, 30, Streamwood. Mrs. McNally is in good condition at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights.

PATROLMAN RAYMOND COX, head of the Hoffman Estates Police Department traffic division, yesterday cited what he believes is the reason for the intersection's poor accident record.

Cox said "88 to 99 per cent of the accidents there are caused by failing to yield while turning left from Higgins." The design of the highway itself contributes to the failure by drivers to yield, he said.

Vision of drivers turning left off Higgins is obstructed by cars in the left turn bays on the opposite side of the intersection, he said. The bays are not opposite each other as they should be.

WHEN CARS STACK up in the turning bays, drivers are unable to see oncoming traffic until they turn into the through traffic lanes, said Cox. By the time they have clear vision, they are in the path of oncoming autos, he said.

If the road were redesigned, with each turning bay moved far enough in line for drivers to see around traffic turning from the opposite side of the intersection, the accident rate there would drop 75 per cent, Cox said.

Cox was directed to conduct a study of the intersection and report to Chief John O'Connell before the next board meeting. He said he expected to have his report on the chief's desk tomorrow.

The village paid part of the cost of installing signal lights at the intersection. When accident statistics showed the junction to still be hazardous, the village paid $325 to add left turn arrows for eastbound Higgins traffic. Until the village approved the cost of adding the arrows in November 1972, the eastbound lanes were the only ones that did not have them.

PADDOCK OLYMPICS participant Nina Ingurgio of Schaumburg helped land her village in the third place position after Tuesday's opening round.

Subdivision residents rip supergrowth

Residents who live near Highpoint Park in Hoffman Estates are planning to voice their concern over the extensive development proposed for the area.

Several persons plan to meet with Hoffman Estates Mayor Virginia Hayter this week, while others will attend the next park district board of commissioners meeting Aug. 7.

In addition to an extensive land fill project there to prevent flooding, plans for the park include four lighted tennis courts, four baseball diamonds, a parking lot and playground apparatus.

Funds for the project were approved last year by voters as part of a $675,000 park development referendum.

"We are not against improving the area, but we do not want so many things crowding the park," said Bob Kosrow.

PARK OFFICIALS have designated High Point Park, which is near Glen Lake and Hassell roads, as a community park and are planning to hold many events there. The 22-acre land tract and 14-acre lake make up the largest park in the district.

Kosrow said plans call for a parking lot and several baseball diamonds to be placed close to homes that border the park.

Park district director Al Binder said no final plans for the park will be approved until price estimates for the tennis courts and parking lot are received next month.

Some residents who live around the park insist the district has made major changes in the plans submitted to voters before the 1972 referendum.

However, brochures circulated by the park district before the referendum state High Point Park would receive the recreational fields, tennis courts and a parking lot.

NEIGHBORS ARGUE that crowds drawn by four Little Leagues being played at one time in the park would cause a great deal of congestion in the area.

"We want at least a portion of the park available for neighborhood activities and not just organized activities," Kosrow said.

Persons interested in obtaining more information about the residents' plan can contact Kosrow at 885-8622.

Blue Cross stand may stall hospital expansion

by STEVE BROWN

A major roadblock may be thrown into plans for several new area hospitals because of a new hardline stand taken by Blue Cross Plan yesterday on health insurance payments.

In action aimed at containing health care costs, Blue Cross stated it would cancel or modify contracts with existing hospitals that expand facilities without approval of a comprehensive health-planning agency.

In the case of a new hospital, Blue Cross may refuse to enter into a contract if a comprehensive health planning agency does not approve it.

WITHOUT A contract from the Blue Cross Plan, patients would not be able to recover medical costs if treated at an unapproved hospital. The policy is similar to federal regulations covering Medicare and Medicaid subsidies.

"Few hospitals would be able to survive in this case," one Blue Cross official said.

The Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center has tentatively received approval from the planning agency. But a spokesman for Comprehensive Health Planning Inc. of Chicago (CHP) said that plans for all new hospitals in the area, including Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Glenview will undergo a stringent review.

Created under state and federal laws, the comprehensive health planning agencies now review plans for new medical facilities and make recommendations, but they have no power to stop construction or force redesign of plans.

There are now nine regional health planning agencies in the state. There is also a state health planning agency to coordinate all activities.

PRESENT STATE laws do not require a hospital developer to show a need for their facilities as a criterion for obtaining a license from the state.

Legislation that will require developers to show a need for the facilities was introduced in a committee of the Illinois

State approves village hospital

Officials of American Medicorp Inc. (AMI) announced yesterday that the firm has received approval from the state to build a 300-bed hospital in Hoffman Estates.

The go-ahead for the facility was given by Dr. Joyce Lashof, director of the Illinois Department of Public Health. Earlier this month the Illinois Hospital Licensing Board recommended the facility, to be called Hoffman Estates Community Hospital, be granted a preliminary operating permit.

The Pennsylvania-based company now owns or manages 40 hospitals. The Hoffman Estates facility will be a for-profit hospital.

AMI spokesman Sidney Kleinman said with the state approval "the full planning process for the facility will now be thrown into high gear."

The hospital is scheduled to open in late 1975.

Police arrest two shoplifters

Two Chicago women were arrested by Schaumburg police Tuesday and charged with grand theft in connection with a shoplifting incident at Woodfield Mall.

Police said Anna Fils, 26, of 8041 S. Drexel, and Sharon Hunter, 22, of 7751 S. Phillips, were charged with grand theft and possession of stolen property.

The pair was reportedly observed stuffing women's clothing under their own garments by security agents at the Marshall Field and Co. store. Police and the store detectives chased the women across the shopping center parking lot before making the arrest.

Police said they confiscated merchandise valued at nearly $500 from the two. More merchandise reportedly stolen from a Skokie clothing store was found in a car believed to be owned by one of the women.

Miss Fils was released after posting a $5,000 bond, while Miss Hunter posted a bond of $2,500. They are both scheduled to appear in Schaumburg Court on Aug. 8.

Senate last session. The bill has already passed the House.

Leo Hickman of CHP said the plans developed by American Medicorp Inc. for a 300-bed hospital in Hoffman Estates are now under review.

He said the review should be completed in 60 to 90 days. Plans for the Evanston Hospital branch in Glenview are also being studied, he said.

"Basically we are in agreement with Blue Cross in their effort to control increasing hospital costs," Hickman said. He added that state legislation in this

Zoners vote 'no' on Levitt development

Members of Schaumburg's Zoning Board of Appeals voted unanimously last night to recommend denial of a zoning variation that would have allowed Levitt and Sons to build Strathmore Schaumburg.

Their recommendations will be presented to the village board Aug. 14.

The petition requested a variance allowing reduction in cluster zoning lot sizes from 8,750 feet to 6,500 feet.

The development, proposed for a 183-acre parcel formerly known as the Grey farm, called for construction of 542 single-family homes.

Information presented by Ken Campbell, a regional engineer with Levitt and Sons, indicated that plans call for 2.95 dwelling units per acre.

HOMES WERE designed to sell in the $50,000 range and were considered a viable alternative to multiple housing, Campbell said. A $100-per-unit donation to Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 was pledged. No mention was made of a school site donation.

Campbell refused to go back to his corporation to request preparation of another single-family plan.

Objections to the proposal were voiced by Doug McLemore, a spokesman for the 428-member Sheffield Park Homeowner's Association.

Density, potential drainage problems and maintenance of common areas by a homeowner's association were listed among residents' concerns.

Russell Parker, zoning board chairman, said he feared repercussions from setting a precedent allowing cluster zoning on reduced lots at the present time.

Parker said he was dismayed that Levitt had not come up with an innovative development plan for the parcel.

Area villages play 'a road for a road'

In the history of both Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates, 1973 could go down as the year of the big road trade.

Schaumburg's proposed exchange of ownership of the western half of Jones Road (between Higgins and Hassell roads) with Hoffman Estates in return for the quarter-mile Hillcrest Road was revealed by Mayor Robert O. Atcher Tuesday.

Presently ownership and maintenance of the involved portion of Jones Road is literally split down the middle by the two municipalities. The eastern half completely adjoins Hoffman Estates; the other side provides access to the Churchill and Knightsbridge subdivisions of Schaumburg and to the northeastern edge of Hoffman Estates High Point.

HILLCREST ROAD is totally owned and maintained by Hoffman Estates but surrounded on both sides by Schaumburg. It extends west from Roselle Road to a point where Hillcrest Blvd. begins.

Terms of the proposed trade would call for Schaumburg putting Jones Road "in top condition" and Hoffman Estates making similar repairs on Hillcrest Road, Atcher said.

"I feel that an agreement has been reached," he commented. For the past two years, Jones Road has been a subject for discussion at the administrative and engineering levels in both villages.

However, village administrator John Coste cautioned that the situation "calls for a policy level" before ex-tates at the policy level" before expenditures can be authorized for repair or upgrading.

Concerning Hillcrest Road, Atcher said right-of-way was given to Hoffman Estates many years ago to permit the expenditure of motor fuel tax funds for maintenance and repair.

AT THAT TIME the road bisected 80 acres which was vacant and being farmed. Presently Hillcrest Towers, a Schaumburg Development Co. project, is under construction on the south side of the road and property at the north adjoining the Illinois Tollroad has been zoned for industry.

"Very soon we are going to have many Schaumburg people using that quarter-mile road," the mayor observed.

He said the transfer involves passage of a disconnection and annexation ordinance in each village.

At the request of Village Engineer Joe Zgonina, trustees authorized an expenditure for soil borings needed to complete preparation of plans and specifications for Jones Road reconstruction.

BORINGS WILL BE taken by Testing Service Corp., Wheaton, and costs will come from $74,000 in MFT funds budgeted for soil testing and material construction of Jones Road.

According to Zgonina, the Jones Road project contract will be administered by Schaumburg with Hoffman Estates paying for the portion owned by that village.

Plans will be filed with the state by mid-August with a proposed Sept. 1 bid date Zgonina said. He indicated that completion of the work "could be squeezed in" by the end of the year if weather permits.

GETTING INSTRUCTIONS for Saturday's annual Schaumburg Fire Department Shindig, "Butch," the department's mascot listens to Lt. Raleigh Kick. "Butch," who joined the department several weeks ago, will ride in one of the lead vehicles for the day's kick-off parade. The yearly event is a fund raiser for the department's benevolent fund.

'Butch,' new fire dog, to make first appearance

One of the newest members of the Schaumburg Fire Department will be making his first public appearance Saturday in the Kick-off parade for the annual Firemen's Shindig.

"Butch" the fire dog will ride in a position of honor aboard the department's 100-foot ladder truck in the parade which begins at 11 a.m. from Wise and Springinguth Road in Schaumburg.

The dog, a traditional dalmation, has been with the department for several weeks. He has been trained to ride on the fire equipment. The dog was obtained from the Chicago Fire Department. It is Schaumburg's third mascot.

In addition to the parade, a full day of entertainment is being planned for this year's Shindig.

A carnival with rides, food and dancing will begin immediately following the parade. The parade will follow a route along Springinguth Road north to the Schaumburg Plaza Shopping Center. The center will be the site of the carnival.

The annual event is held in an effort to raise funds for the fire department's benevolent fund.

An Army band and a Naval drill team will be a part of this year's parade. A number of other bands, drum and bugle corps and local community organizations will take part in the parade.

Besides the carnival, an outdoor evening dance will be held this year for the first time.

"We hope everyone will come out and join us for the day," said Firefighter Art Stolke, one of the Shindig's organizers.

"It should be a great day of fun for the whole community," he added.

May block hospital expansion

BLUE CROSS officials argue that un-controlled growth of hospitals will result in constantly increasing costs to patients. They said the average hospital bed costs more than $60 a day to maintain whether or not it is being used.

Without guidelines for expansion and development of health facilities many more hospital beds will be built than needed, raising health care costs for everyone.

"The Chicago based Blue Cross Plan and its more than 3 million members in Illinois should not and must not be expected to help pay the cost of health care facilities that are not needed to meet the health care needs of their community," said Robert S. Petersen, senior vice president of Blue Cross.

Another Blue Cross official said the new guidelines will go into effect immediately.

Apparently the only health facility in the state that may feel immediate pressure from the new plan is a hospital being constructed in Springfield.

Comprehensive health planning officials have determined that the two existing hospitals in the city are sufficient and the new facility would not be necessary.

The selling of the Army: a tough business in '73

by BETTY LEE

The girl who walked up to the Army display stand was probably 16 years old. She had long brown hair pulled back over her ears, monogrammed earrings and was dressed impeccably.

She stopped, picked up a handful of brochures and began looking through them. But before she could read the first few lines, the Army recruiter was at her side. And for the next half hour she was learning everything from soup to nuts about the military and why she should join. This girl, perhaps, had no more intention of joining the Army than dropping out of high school, but she had stopped and she was a prospect.

That's the way it is these days in military recruiting. The new fiscal year began July 1 and quotas have to be met just like those of a salesman.

So the Army and other branches of service are pulling out all the stops in an effort to enlist men and women. The display stand at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg is an example.

THERE WERE two recruiters, a man and a woman, who stood alongside a portable movie screen and piles of brochures. This was their ammunition and men and women between the age of 18 and 21 were their targets. They were hustling just as if their jobs depended upon it and this may be the case.

The passive recruiters are no longer. They now are heading to schools, shopping centers, ball games or "wherever the people are" according to Lt. Col. Peter Clifford of the U.S. Army. "We have to make it convenient for the people and go where they go," he said.

With the beginning of a new recruiting year for all volunteer forces, the officers are scrambling with new methods to entice young men and women into their offices. Because there is no draft, the role of the recruiter has changed.

"It is a selling game," said Sgt. William Thomson of the Marine Corps. "Five years ago a man might walk into the office and say, 'I want to join the Marines.' The recruiter would probably say, 'So what? So does everyone else.' But now, the recruiter will say, 'Sit right down and I'll tell you the whole story.'"

During the last fiscal year, the Army alone poured more than $26.7 million in advertising for active army inductees, according to Col. Gerald Childress, director of advertising and information for the U.S. Army at Ft. Sheridan.

CHILDRESS INDICATED that in 1973 $138 was spent in advertising per soldier, as compared to the $35 spent in 1970.

More ads, posters, commercials and recruiters are used today in hope of bringing the potential inductees to meet quotas set for active armed forces.

"Vietnam had a terrible affect on the Army," said Clifford, also stationed at Ft. Sheridan. "The Army had to act in an unusual atmosphere, mostly political."

He said the reserves should have been utilized so drafting would be minimized. "It brought in undesirables and things like My Lai happened," he said. "But as Vietnam diminishes, people will remember the favorable and social importance. We've got to re-educate the people... we're not ogres... we don't thrive on killing."

"The Vietnam war was an unpopular war," said Thomson. "A lot of people didn't want to go and they don't connect the service as a way to get ahead in education. The immediate connection is to go out and shoot people."

IN TALKING WITH potential inductees, the recruiters emphasize the opportunity and education, rather than service.

Combat and other regimented duties are still very much a part of the military, and the recruiter does not disguise or hide the less attractive aspects of duty, according to Clifford.

A handful of new incentives have been added to bolster the attractiveness of enlisting. For example, in January, there was an increase in base pay, thus more than doubling the amount to $307 a month.

"But we have to work harder and longer hours for the same amount of people," said Roger Johnson, a Navy recruiter working in Palatine. Johnson said they have enlisted five persons this month, the normal number. "The numbers are slowly (increasing) but surely," he said.

IN CHICAGO, the Army met 72 per cent of its recruiting objective, the Army met 95 per cent nationwide, according to Clifford. "It's too early to say how we're doing this year, since the fiscal year just started," he said. "But it'll work... it'll just take some time."

Air Force Recruiter Sgt. Robert Hill reported that quotas were met in his office at 800 Lee St. in Des Plaines.

"We never drafted, so the numbers won't change much," he said. "This area is harder, so it depends on the geographical location. Texas is a good state because it's a military-minded state. People are waiting at the doors there."

There are less incentives provided in the Air Force and Marines than in the Army or Navy, because both were volunteer forces and never drafted men.

"We never had to resort to this kind of thing," said Hill.

"There are no short cuts, no compromises or relaxing our standards," said Thomson of the Marines. "We don't have longer hair or beer machines in barracks as the Army do. We are training them as we have always trained them."

The future? The recruiters interviewed said they were not worried about men and women enlisting. "I cannot see any changes in the immediate future," said Johnson. "But I think we can do better."

A black cat from Schaumburg may be out of luck if he's not found and returned to his owner soon.

The cat, named Bourbon, will become seriously ill and eventually die if he doesn't receive medication needed for a kidney ailment.

Bourbon, who wears a black collar with rhinestones, disappeared Tuesday evening from the back yard of his owner, Mrs. Ronald Welser, 837 Mansfield Ct., in the Sheffield Town townhouse development. Persons with information about Bourbon are asked to call Mrs. Welser at 802-1417.

Trustees again reject Brickman plans for condo

by TOM VON MALDER

For the second time, the Mount Prospect Village Board has rejected plans for an 80-unit condominium apartment building along River Road, just north of Camp McDonald Road.

Tuesday night's rejection may have been somewhat bitter for developer J. M. Brickman, who was present. Both times the project has been turned down, it has been despite an majority of the board voting for the project. There was even an additional "aye" vote this time.

The 4-2 vote to reject the property was insufficient because a written protest had been filed by at least 20 per cent of the adjacent property owners. By ordinance, a protest requires a rezoning to be approved by at least four of the village trustees. In Tuesday's vote, three trustees and Mayor Robert D. Teichert voted for the project.

AREA RESIDENTS, several who spoke to the board again Tuesday, have criticized the project mainly because of its height, which they say is out of place with the single-family characteristics of the area. It would be a 5-story, Y-shaped building.

The project was first turned down Nov. 21, 1972, when it only got a 3-2 favorable vote.

Trustee Richard N. Hendricks said he voted against the proposal Tuesday because it would have been spot zoning. Prior to annexation to Mount Prospect in 1971, the property had been zoned for up to 113 apartments, plus commercial use, by the Cook County Zoning Board. The county zoned the property in 1960.

"Sometimes it's easier to make a popular decision than an unpopular one," Trustee Donald B. Furst said in giving his reason for voting against the project. He also said he felt the building's height, 43 feet plus six feet for an elevator in the center, would be detrimental to the area.

AS HE HAS BEFORE, Trustee Patrick J. Link passed on the vote. Before he became a trustee he represented two local homeowner groups in hearings on the project. He did say that if he were to vote, he would vote against it.

Link invited Brickman to meet with area residents to discuss other possible developments for the property. Brickman could not be reached yesterday for comment.

The possibility of a lawsuit does exist, as indicated by some of the comments made by Brickman last night to the board.

Teichert said the possibility of such a lawsuit, which he sees the village almost certainly losing, influenced his vote for the rezoning.

"The accident of annexation to me does not change the merits of the case," he said, adding that he felt it wasn't right to keep pouring tax dollars into numerous zoning lawsuits.

BRICKMAN'S original request was for a 6-story building with 85 apartments and a commercial first floor. In the 17 months of discussion with the village on the project, he made numerous changes and concessions in the plan.

The plan rejected this week by the village board called for only 60 apartments in a 5-story building with no commercial space. Brickman also agreed to have a stand-by pump at the Park Drive sanitary sewer lift station and to install an alarm at the station that would signal electric failure. Another agreement was that the water main would be increased in size by a third.

Officially, Teichert said the board would wait for Village Atty. John J. Zimmermann to return from vacation next week before declaring the rezoning request turned down. He said he wanted to be sure of the ordinance interpretation. As written, the ordinance clearly states two-thirds of the trustees must approve the rezoning.

Annex linked to 'Citizens' feud

by TOM VON MALDER

A News Analysis

Mount Prospect officials couldn't stop Richard Fanslow from building his Algonquin Road apartment complex, but now that it's almost completed, they want to annex it — despite its high density.

This action, though it may appear inconsistent on the surface, is really part of a continuing "battle" between the village and Citizens Utility Co.

The Zoning Board of Appeals meets at 8 p.m. today in the Municipal Building, 112 E. Northwest Hwy., to consider Fanslow's application for rezoning subject to annexation. The 96 apartments are being built at 524 E. Algonquin Rd.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert strongly believes Mount Prospect should control water and sewer lines in the area south of the village. The village board agrees with him.

"WE ARE GOING into competition with them (Citizens) aggressively in their area," Teichert said.

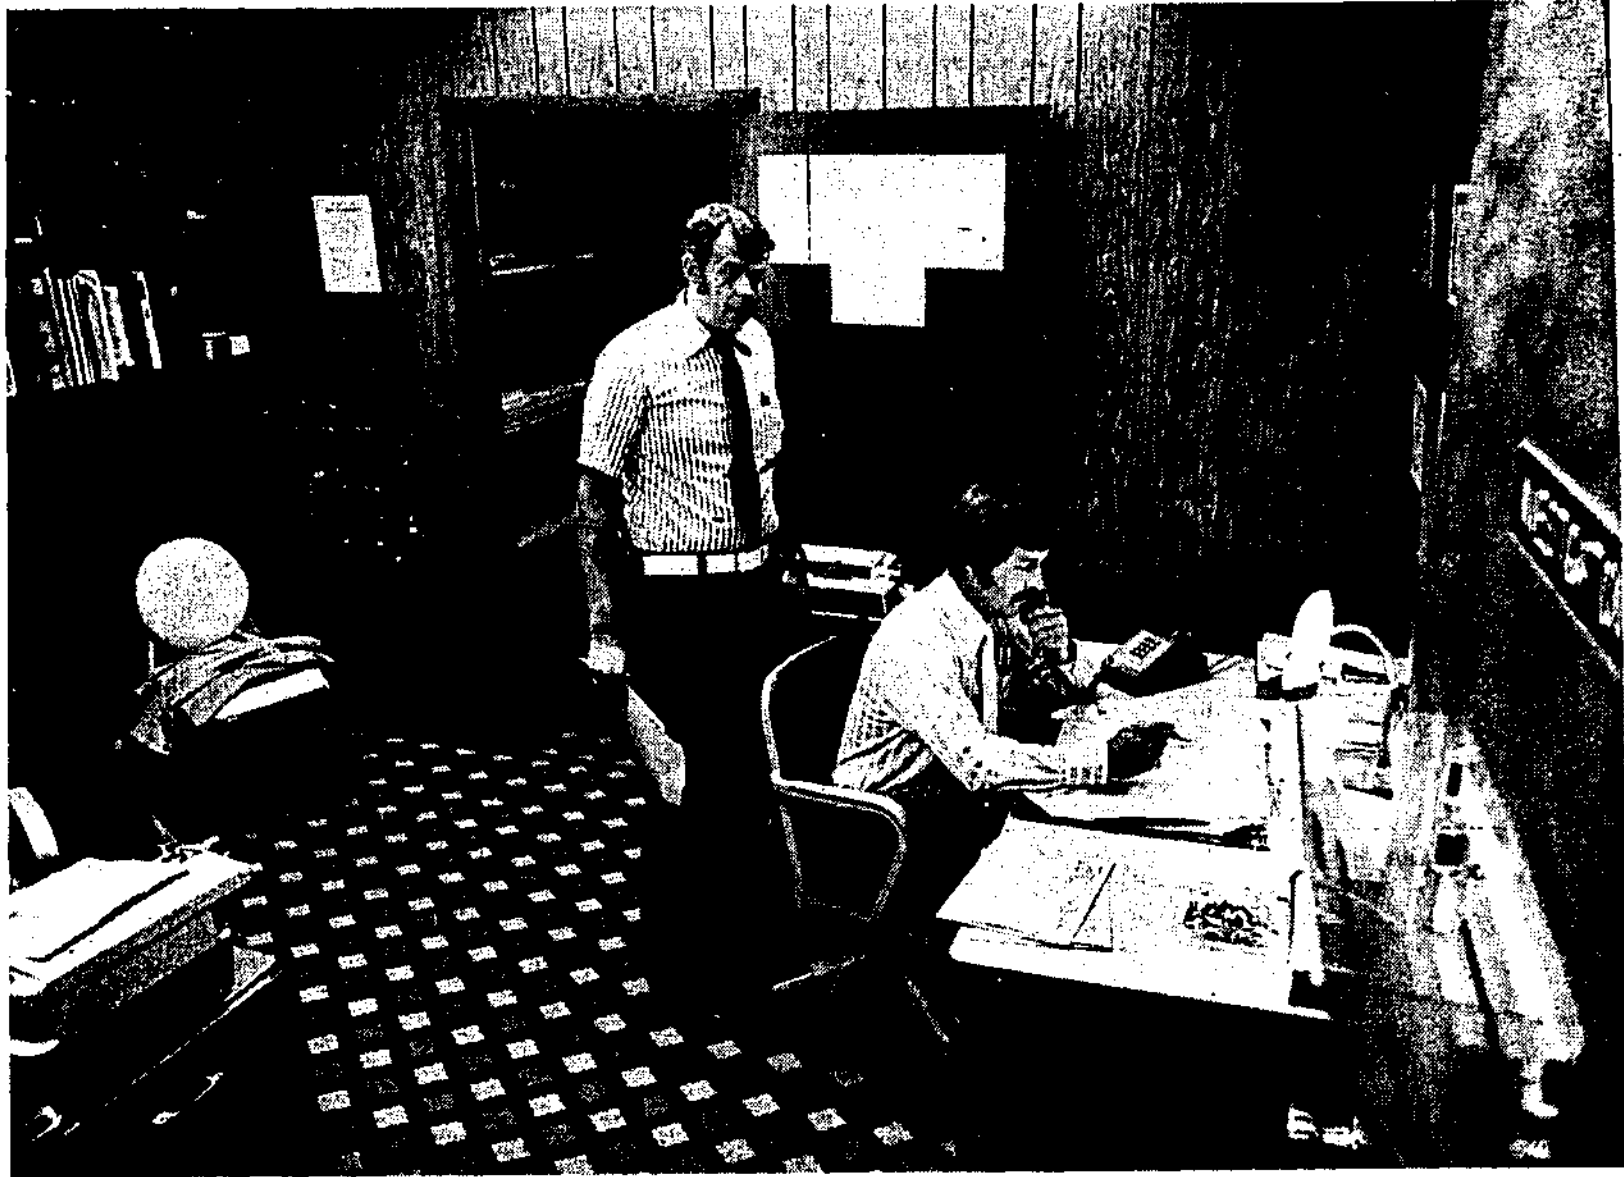

He explained the village has to provide "crisis services" and thus gears to provide maximum service. The private utility company, he said, gears for profit, not maximum service.

"That puts us in the position of underwriting the private utility," Teichert said.

The village has had numerous disagreements with Citizens over the amount of water Citizens has to supply under a current contract between the two. The village bought that contract with the utility company it purchased from Salvatore DiMucci in 1969.

Teichert said Citizens main thrust is to get the contract renegotiated so they can afford to build a new well in the area. The village has refused to renegotiate, while at the same time demanding that Citizens provide more water.

MEANWHILE, the village has built its own well in the area, on the Plywood

16-inch softball a hit with the ladies

by MARY HOULIHAN

It's Tuesday night under the lights at Kopp Park and the bases are loaded.

Up to bat steps a tall, attractive redhead, dressed in the uniform of the Des Plaines Fire Belles.

Crouching down, she lifts the bat gingerly and gets ready for the pitch. There's a swing and a hit, and two of the Belles race around the bases toward home plate.

"Everybody run. Everybody run," screams the Fire Belles' manager.

"Duck down, baby! Duck down," yells one of the women to her teammate as she makes the turn into home plate.

AS THE TWO women career home to score the double, a cheer goes up behind the backstop and smiles fill the faces of proud husbands and children.

The Mount Prospect Women's 16-inch softball league is in full swing.

This is the first year the park district has had a woman's softball league.

"It started about two years ago," said Lois Lindberg, recreation supervisor for the park district.

"I enjoy playing and so I went out to Friendship Park to play with some other people," said Miss Lindberg. "It was just a come-as-you-are type of thing. Then, last year, it got to be so big, with 70 or 80 women, it got tough to handle and we had to ask the husbands to umpire. To get more organized I decided to start a league. It was just an idea and I decided to try it. From the last couple of years, there were women who had really been gung ho about this," she said.

ALTHOUGH Miss Lindberg said some of the women were a little afraid of the competition in a league, there were many others who were excited.

"We drafted managers and they got their teams together. They each got their own sponsor."

The league now includes four teams: the Ms. Fits, who sponsor themselves; the Women of Waycinden (WOW) sponsored by the Waycinden Boys' Little League; the Workshop, sponsored by the Workshop Employment Agency, and the Des Plaines Fire Belles, who are sponsored by the men of the Des Plaines Fire Department.

While a women's softball league may sound a little like the women are just trying to imitate the men, it's not true.

The women on the league look very much like women, all with their hair and makeup fixed perfectly for the big game ahead. It would be hard not to recognize the Women of Waycinden as women. Wearing red shirts with the white letters WOW emblazoned across the front, they come across as very feminine.

THEIR PLAYING ability is not bad either.

Most of the women, who heard about the league either through friends or from the park district flyer, are out there playing strictly for recreation, but they also love the sense of competition.

"We all have that competitive spirit," explained Mrs. McDermott, a member of the WOW team.

Asked whether they would like to play on a mixed men's and women's league, most of the women answered no, however.

"Oh, good heavens, no," Mrs. McDermott said.

"It's not fair to either the men or the women," said another. "I feel the men and the women are different in their abilities," she said.

There was one lady who said she thinks she might enjoy a mixed league, however. "I like sports and I like to win. It would probably be too much competition, but I would like it," she said.

THOUGH THE majority of the women have played softball before, some of them haven't. Many had to take a good look at the rules this year.

"This year, we got the rule book thrown at us," said Mrs. McDermott. "And now we've got to stop and say 'aha! there's a rule.' Now we object."

According to Miss Lindberg, the women are really picking things up. "They get better as they go on," she said.

So far, the Ms. Fits are in the lead with five wins. The Fire Belles haven't won any yet. But, with a red-headed slugger, who's to say what could happen next Tuesday night?

We want our booze: Mount Shire Club

Closing of the Mount Shire Club has brought tenants of the apartment complex and the landlord together in an effort to obtain a liquor license for the club.

The landlord, Salvatore DiMucci Jr., closed the club last week after two employees were arrested by Cook County Sheriff's police and village police for the sale of liquor without state and local liquor licenses.

Now DiMucci has written the village asking for clarification of the club's status as a bottle club, or for a hearing to obtain a liquor license. The club, 1841 W. Golf Rd., is primarily operated for the benefit of tenants of the Mount Shire Apartments.

DAVID SAMBER, 1811 W. Golf Rd., Tuesday presented petitions with 230 names to the Mount Prospect Village Board. The petitions ask the board to grant DiMucci's 3-D Realty Co. a liquor license for the Mount Shire Club.

Samber represented the newly formed Mount Shire Complex Association, a tenant action group. A meeting Monday night was the group's first.

Mayor Robert D. Telchert, acting for the board, set up a discussion of such a license for the next regular village board meeting, Aug. 7. That was done because Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten said his finance committee would not be able to meet until Aug. 20 to discuss the license application.

Samber said the tenants wanted action as quickly as possible. "It's antagonistic to the residents," he said of the club's closing.

MOUNT PROSPECT police said the arrests at the club were made after a waitress allegedly sold beer to two Sheriff's police detectives and two Mount Prospect police detectives. The Sheriff's detectives were acting on a tip, they said.

DiMucci, who said he was unsure how long the club would remain closed, confirmed he closed it after the arrests.

"We need a clarification from the village as to what we can or cannot do,"

DiMucci said. "We thought we were doing right last week but then the county came in." The arrests were made July 17.

As a bottle club, DiMucci said residents bring their own liquor to the club or a club employee is sent over to the liquor store to purchase liquor for members.

Mayor Robert D. Telchert, who is the village liquor commissioner, said he will investigate the matter. "We'll have to explore and see what the restrictions are, if any," he said.

Telchert also said he will look into why the county got involved. "I want to find out if Cook County is singling out Mount Prospect," he said.

Last August, when the village board was considering a restaurant permit for the club, there was discussion by the village board on whether a liquor license should be required. At that time, the board, in a split decision, decided that no license was needed.

Donald Driver new principal at Lincoln Junior High

Donald R. Driver, 43, has been named principal of Lincoln Junior High School.

Driver, who was hired by Mount Prospect Dist. 57 in June, had not been assigned to a school before.

Driver replaces Francis Thomas, who announced his resignation in January. Thomas resigned because he said he was more oriented to rural education and desired a closer relationship with students. He had formerly been superintendent of Spring Grove District, Spring Grove, Ill.

An assistant professor of education at Chicago State University for seven years, Driver was recommended for the principal's post by Supt. Earl Sutter.

Besides his seven-year term at Chicago

State, Driver served from 1963 to 1966 as the principal of Goodrich Elementary School of Woodridge. Prior to that, he was an elementary school teacher in San Leandro, Calif., and Berwyn, Ill.

Driver has a Ph.D. in education from Northwestern University. He attended Goshen College (Ind.) at the same time Sutter attended there.

Sutter is still considering candidates for principal at Sunset Park School. Sunset's principal, Roger Pederson, resigned in May for personal reasons.

Teenage boy charged with joyriding

Mount Prospect police arrested a 15-year-old village youth after an alleged joyride in a stolen automobile Tuesday night.

Police said the boy was seen driving the car, stolen from Schaumburg recently, in the area of Greenwood Drive and Wolf Road about 11:30 p.m.

The juvenile was charged with driving a vehicle without a driver's license, possession of a stolen automobile and possession of marijuana.

Police said they are searching for a Des Plaines youth who may have been involved in the car's theft.

But program can start

Decision on how to finance flood control is deferred

The Mount Prospect Village Board has deferred until Sept. 11 any decision on financing for the village's $4.8 million flood-control program.

However, the board Tuesday night did decide the first priority group of the program can be started immediately, utilizing funds from the village's Motor Fuel Tax allotment. The village administration was given the go-ahead to solicit engineering proposals for this first series of projects.

There are eight projects listed in phase one, including a 2.1 million-gallon storm water basin south of Lawrence Lane. Mayor Robert D. Telchert said the village has been given approval by the pastor of St. Cecilia Church to build the basin on the church property. The church is in Arlington Heights.

ALSO INCLUDED in phase one is a new sanitary sewer lift station at Lincoln Street and Weiler Creek, a storm sewer quist Boulevard and another along Canalong CanDota Avenue.

Another project calls for Crumley Basin at Lincoln Street and Busse Road to be expanded. Telchert asked the board to consider whether it wanted the basin deepened or whether it wanted the village to buy vacant land adjacent to the basin for expansion.

Expansion of the storm water facility at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights is another recommended project in phase one, and a storm sewer along Grove Street would be included. Other storm water detention areas are suggested for Prospect High School property and along the property line of Holmes Junior High School.

The last of the eight projects would be an outfall sewer at Rand Road and Isabella Street to give some relief to the overloaded Rand Road storm sewer line.

A REPORT by Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley gave estimates on the amount of yearly revenue the village could raise for the flood control program through general obligation bonds. The bonds could be paid off through real estate taxes or through a new 5 per cent utility tax.

Eppley said in his report that $9,974,768 could be raised through an increased real estate tax levy. The utility tax would bring in an estimated $592,400 a year, Eppley wrote.

The board also settled on the questions to be included in a questionnaire that will be distributed to residents in mid-

August with a summary of the flood control program.

The questionnaire will give residents an opportunity to show their preference for financing the flood control program and to make any general comments on the program. It will also give residents a chance to have the village convert any illegal downspout connections with the sanitary system at no cost to the homeowner.

A question on whether residents prefer plastic bags or garbage cans for garbage collection will also be included.

All questionnaires will have to be returned to the village by Sept. 5, so the results can be tabulated before the Sept. 11 special board meeting.

Barnhart named principal at Parkview School

Tomkins E. Barnhart, 42, has been appointed as principal at Parkview School. Barnhart, of 360 May Ave., Glen Ellyn, was informally appointed to the principal's post at a closed meeting of the River Trails Dist. 26 Board last Thursday. His appointment must be approved at the board's next meeting on Aug. 7.

In appointing Barnhart to the principal's post, Board Pres. Lloyd Demel said, "We're pleased with the recommendation (of the administration) and we think the parents at Parkview will be pleased, too."

Demel said the board was satisfied that Barnhart had a definite "commitment to stay" at Parkview for more than one year.

WHEN ROBERT Hale, the former principal at Parkview, informed the board of his resignation last month, he was criticized for leaving after only one year. Parkview has had five different principals in the last six years.

Barnhart has spent 14 years teaching, with six years in Illinois. A graduate of Ball State Teachers College, he holds a master's degree in administration and supervision from Indiana University.

Barnhart's most recent assignment was as acting superintendent and prior to that, assistant superintendent in School Dist. 87, Berkeley, Ill. From 1962 to 1964 he served as principal of an elementary school in Glen Ellyn Dist. 89.

He has also served as an assistant professor and supervisor of the laboratory school at Eastern Michigan University.

Meeting Aug. 6 to consider candidates for school post

The River Trails Dist. 26 school board will meet with representatives from the Illinois Association of School Boards (IASB) Aug. 6 to discuss candidates for the vacant superintendent's post here.

Supt. Thomas Warden submitted his resignation to the Dist. 26 board in June. At the time, he gave no reason for his resignation. However, since the board agreed to pay Warden a bonus of $14,000 in addition to the remainder of his salary for the school year, the board, in effect, bought out his contract.

According to Board Pres. Lloyd Demel, Steve Doty of the IASB plans to present five or six candidates to the board for consideration. Following the presentation, the board will set up interview dates for each, in an attempt to narrow the candidates down to one or two.

Demel said the board is hoping to appoint a new superintendent "as early in August as we can."

3 sets of golf clubs stolen from car trunk

Three sets of golf clubs, valued at $440, were stolen Tuesday from the trunk of a car.

The theft may have occurred in the Mount Prospect Plaza parking lot, according to the owner, Mrs. Merle Clark of Wauconda. The golf clubs were taken between 11 a.m. and 1:30 p.m., she told Mount Prospect police.

Youths on bike trail shot with pellets

Two youths were shot with pellets from a compressed gas pistol Monday along a minibike trail in Mount Prospect.

One of the youths, Albert A. Baca, 16, of 29 Poplar St., Arlington Heights, had to have a pellet removed from his head at Northwest Community Hospital. He was treated in the emergency room and released.

Baca and the second youth, Mike Baldwin, 15, of 650 Murray, Des Plaines, who was not brought to the hospital, were shot shortly before 2 p.m. in a field at Elmhurst and Algonquin roads. Baldwin was hit in the leg.

Witnesses told police they saw two youths, 14 or 15 years old, fire the pellet gun from about 50 feet away. Police are seeking the youths and may charge them with aggravated battery if they are caught.

Galena: historic Illinois mining town making a comeback

by JOE SWICKARD

GALENA, ILL. — Tucked in the extreme northwest corner of the state, this small community owes its history and attraction to it being by-passed by the forces of nature and history.

When the last glaciers planned North America, Jo Daviess County was left untouched. While Illinois was being plowed into the prairie state, the area surrounding Galena was left with nobtop hills, bluffs and cliffs rich in lead sulphide (galena).

White settlers came to mine the lead. A boom town with a difference grew along the hill sides and banks of the Fever River. This was not a shanty mining town typical of the frontier. Substantial brick and stone homes in classical styling were built to attest to Galena's prosperity and importance as the lead capital of the mid-19th century world.

The mines played out and the hills that nurtured Galena now cut it off from change.

THE DE SOTO House Hotel, built in 1835, is representative of the changes in the town since its boom days. Once called the "largest and grandest hotel in the West," its long neglected grandeur is making a comeback through the sweat and imagination of Judy and Jim Clayton.

The Claytons, formerly of Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect, accepted the challenge of restoring the hotel and made the task something personal.

Two years ago, they tired of the congestion of the urban sprawl and the resulting conflicts with the crowds.

"It seemed there was always some one else wanting to do the same thing you were," said Jim, a former advertising salesman. "I would travel to New York frequently and if you wanted a cab or something like that it seemed you had to fight somebody for it. Chicago wasn't that bad, but since we've come here the contrast between the two lives stands right out."

Judy said the first longings came about after visiting a restored hotel in Colorado. "Jim saw an ad for this hotel in the Wall Street Journal. No, we'd never seen it. Oh, I had been here once before as a child but it wasn't really within my memory. Jim had never been here. But, we thought it was the time to move."

THE CLAYTONS packed up their three children and headed for an entirely new life. Not only were they lacking in experience of hotel, restaurant and bar management, they faced a restoration task of the first magnitude.

Previous owners of the hotel had let the furnishings and decorations deteriorate. A fine example of 19th century embossed metal ceiling was covered with layers of house paint. Chandeliers were removed and replaced with fluorescent tubes.

The Claytons made up for the lack of experience with enthusiasm and energy. The ceiling once again represents the past wealth of the hotel. Jim and Judy found period fixtures where they could. The lobby now beckons visitors to stay with history.

THE WALL OF GALENA. Businesses on Main Street stand shoulder to shoulder with their backs flush to the bluffs. The street winds and follows natural ravines. The Claytons' DeSoto House Hotel is to the right. Lincoln once spoke from the second floor balcony, since removed.

"The wallpaper is hand blocked right here in Galena. The pattern is authentic. I couldn't find anyone who would hang it, so I had to do it myself. The longest drop is 22 feet," said Jim.

Gen. Grant used the De Soto House as headquarters for his 1868 presidential campaign. The rooms used by the General and his cronies have been long since divided into smaller units. However, some of the furnishings remain.

"He had some rooms here where he could sleep it off after a night of conferring with aides," Jim said.

LINCOLN once spoke from the hotel balcony. The balcony and the two original top floors of the hotel have been removed.

"As things around here declined, the hotel was changed. The roof was raised and the top stories were taken down. The balcony is long gone. We heard once it was on a farm near Freeport, but we couldn't find it," he said.

The Claytons also suspect the hotel may have been 37 feet longer. Early maps of the city show the hotel extending into space presently occupied by two stores. The dimensions of rooms and supporting pillar placement give credence to the theory.

The Claytons have opened a restaurant and bar in two rooms off the lobby. The fare is good and reasonably priced. Homemade soups are an unexpected treat on the menu. The bar features a local beer of more than mean qualities.

GALENA is made for a walking tour and the hotel's central locale lends itself to starting and terminal point. A stroll up Main Street is a tour of antique shops and fine examples of period architecture. The sale of antiques and "collectibles" is a major commercial activity of the town.

Long, steep stairs lead to the residential streets to the west of Main Street. Prospect and High streets give a sweeping view of the town and the surrounding wooded hills. The old homes give the visitor a capsule economic history of the town. Some houses and buildings, such as the Feehan Hall, show the prolonged economic depression of the area. Other homes and structures reflect extreme care shown by owners in maintaining or restoring their ornate beauty.

The terrain influenced the design of the buildings. The steep bluffs forced buildings to have their front and rear entrances several stories apart. Gangways lead to the top floor in the rear, while the lower stories exit onto stairways leading to ravines. The ravines lead to alleys which come out at street level in the front.

RESTORATION is extensive throughout the town. Any work in the older sections must comply with a historic preservation ordinance.

Showplace and curio that it is, Galena is still very much a living town. "We have an awareness of history here. You don't have to drive 1,000 miles to find it. It's similar to Williamsburg but more real because people actually live here," Jim said.

The population reached a peak of 15,000 about 1850. It declined to 3,900 in 1970, but the Claytons believe it is starting to climb again. They point to a growing colony of artists and craftsmen as proof of the new spirit.

Galena is a showense, but it is still a living small town. The circus came to town last weekend. The citizens turned out to watch the show from the elephant holding the big top to final striking of the canvas.

Galena is milieu: a total setting and environment. People still turn out to see a four-ton, blood sweating hippo. They work and care for the town as a living being, not just a collection of structures.

It's a town where two people, a handyman and boy who lied about his age, will go with the circus when it leaves town.

Galena only 150 miles

Galena is about 150 miles from the Northwest suburbs by way of I-90 and U.S. Rte. 20 west.

Although there are three Rte. 20 exits, one should leave the tollroad at the first exit, near Union, Ill. The drive through Ridott, Stockton and Elizabeth prepares one for Galena. The passage is through a territory of round stone silos and small cemeteries outside such settlements as Coral and Garden Prairie.

The road winds among the hills and then descends toward Galena. It crosses Small Fox Creek and heads toward the Fever River, renamed to the Galena River almost 150 years ago to improve the town's image.

The road drops into Galena, past the signs for the post war home of President Grant. Cross the bridge and turn right onto Main Street. Go through the high earthen levee and massive steel flood gates and you are there.

Main Street is called the "Wall." It weaves a miniature canyon of brick stores flush to each other and the bluffs behind them. Faded and peeling wall advertisements hawk Bull Durham tobacco by the pouch and long forgotten cigars.

You are in Galena, a living monument to the instant wealth torn from the earth 100 years ago.

Minnesota Inc. site, 1031 E. Algonquin Rd. Recent annexation of the proposed Colony project at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road is another act by the village to insure its control of the utility service on the south side. Water lines will be extended to serve the Colony and provide access to property west of the Colony site.

"It is our intent that we service them (the area to the south) and not Citizens," Teichert said. "We (the village board) believe that any utility we're involved in, we should control."

"In effect, we're competitors of that private utility. We know we can provide better service at less cost."

He said with the village controlling all water and sewer lines in the village, all residents will be able to get the same quality of service and be able to come to the village with their complaints.

Citizens also operates in the northeast section of the village, and ultimately, residents of that area are expected to buy their system from Citizens.

TEICHERT would like the village to buy out Citizens in the south some day and feels it is "silly" to let the utility company expand and thereby increase its ultimate purchase price.

Fanslow had received state permission to set up his own utility company and was about to contract with Citizens for its services when Mount Prospect stepped in and asked Fanslow to petition for annexation to Mount Prospect again. The project was rejected last fall because of its high density.

Teichert summed up the village's policy by stating, "Basically, there is a policy in Mount Prospect that we are adverse to private utilities operating within the village, if we are in that business. We desire to compete to the point of eradicating private utilities in the water and sewer field within the boundaries of Mount Prospect."

In the southside area, Citizens' biggest customer is United Air Lines, a customer that has repeatedly spurned village efforts to annex any part of its property.

The selling of the Army: tough work

by BETTY LEE

The girl who walked up to the Army display stand was probably 18 years old. She had long brown hair pulled back over her ears, monogrammed earrings and was dressed impeccably.

She stopped, picked up a handful of brochures and began looking through them. But before she could read the first few lines, the Army recruiter was at her side. And for the next half hour she was learning everything from soup to nuts about the military and why she should join. This girl, perhaps, had no more intention of joining the Army than dropping out of high school, but she had stopped and she was a prospect.

MANNED BY Sgt. James P. Gregory, the display in Woodfield shopping center yesterday is one tactic to entice men to enlist in the Army.

That's the way it is these days in military recruiting. The new fiscal year began July 1 and quotas have to be met just like those of a salesman.

So the Army and other branches of service are pulling out all the stops in an effort to enlist men and women. The display stand at Woodfield Shopping Center in Schaumburg is an example.

THERE WERE two recruiters, a man and a woman, who stood alongside a portable movie screen and piles of brochures. This was their ammunition and men and women between the age of 18 and 21 were their targets. They were hustling just as if their jobs depended upon it and this may be the case.

The passive recruiters are no longer. They now are heading to schools, shopping centers, ball games or "wherever the people are" according to Lt. Col. Peter Clifford of the U.S. Army. "We have to make it convenient for the people and go where they go," he said.

With the beginning of a new recruiting year for all volunteer forces, the officers are scrambling with new methods to entice young men and women into their offices. Because there is no draft, the role of the recruiter has changed.

"It is a selling game," said Sgt. William Thomsen of the Marine Corps. "Five years ago a man might walk into the office and say, 'I want to join the Marines.' The recruiter would probably say, 'So what? So does everyone else.' But now, the recruiter will say, 'Sit right down and I'll tell you the whole story.'"

During the last fiscal year, the Army alone poured more than $26.7 million in advertising for active army inductees, according to Col. Gerald Childress, director of advertising and information for the U.S. Army at Ft. Sheridan.

CHILDRESS INDICATED that in 1973 $138 was spent in advertising per soldier, as compared to the $35 spent in 1970. More ads, posters, commercials and recruiters are used today in hope of bringing the potential inductees to meet quotas set for active armed forces.

"Vietnam had a terrible effect on the Army," said Clifford, also stationed at Ft. Sheridan. "The Army had to act in an unnatural atmosphere, mostly pitiful."

He said the reserves should have been utilized so drafting would be minimized. "It brought in undesirables and things like My Lai happened," he said. "But as Vietnam diminishes, people will remember the favorable and social importance. We've got to re-educate the people... we're not ogres... we don't thrive on killing."

"The Vietnam war was an unpopular war," said Thomson. "A lot of people didn't want to go and they don't connect the service as a way to get ahead in education. The immediate connection is to

Service to begin by Aug. 13

Bus entrepreneur Luisada: chances of success good

by KURT BAER

With financial ills nearly epidemic among suburban bus lines, the man who will begin commuter bus service in Arlington Heights next month says he has better than a 50-50 chance of success.

What some would see as simply splitting into the wind, Claude Luisada, president of Metron Systems Inc., sees as a tough problem, a serious challenge and a good opportunity to make some money.

The Village of Arlington Heights has backed Luisada in his gamble with the purchase of two new GMC Truck & Coach Corp. buses at a cost of $57,000. The new buses are not expected to arrive until later this fall.

But Luisada said he is preparing to begin operation in three village subdivisions with rented buses by Aug. 13.

HIS THREE-PART formula, which he hopes will bring success, is to take the buses to the people, then take the people where they want to go, and promote the system like crazy while you're doing it.

Luisada says he is tailoring Metron's bus service to the Arlington Heights market, which, he says, is actually a number of different markets.

He will start by taking commuters from their homes to the train station. Later, he will add bus service for residents who live and also work in the village. Still later are plans for "Dial-a-Bus," or door-to-door bus service.

Beyond this, Luisada talks of the potential of bus service for the so-called reverse commuter, buses to regional shopping centers and even between villages.

"We're planning a total system of individual services, with each service specifically designed to meet the need of a given part of the market," Luisada says.

He admits there are markets his bus company will never be able to service. "We're not going to do everything a car does." But he also thinks there are markets where bus operation is vastly superior to that of the automobile.

MOST OTHER suburban bus operations have developed as an extension of the city service — big, frequently old buses running on fixed routes which are usually laid out along the major streets, Luisada says.

The result of this style of bus service is well known.

"Everyone has looked at the buses as they go by on a suburban line and seen two or three people riding in a 60-passenger bus. They're hardly carrying anybody."

"But we know people are moving back and forth, the potential for buses is there. The drops in ridership indicate to me that the other companies are not trying too hard."

By "trying hard," Luisada says he means running buses where the people want to go, not where the bus company thinks they ought to go. To accomplish this, he is planning a detailed survey which will ask each potential rider where he has to go and what time he has to be there.

It is essential that the buses be kept clean, Luisada says. He admits taking a hint from the Chicago and North Western Rwy.

"I have a personal theory that people are turned off to public transportation when they have to climb into a dirty vehicle every day," he says.

CITY STYLE, fixed-route bus service has not and will not in the suburbs for four reasons, according to Luisada.

• The suburbs do not have the population density of the city.

• The distance most suburbanites have to travel is greater than the city resident.

• Suburban residents tend to be more affluent and therefore can afford a higher level of service.

• The distance between main streets in the suburbs is generally much greater than the average half-mile separation in the city.

Metron buses will begin running in the Berkley Square, Windsor Woods and Surrey Ridge areas. A rider should have to walk little more than 1 to 1½ blocks from his home to meet the bus. The routes will be determined on the basis of where the riders are. The fare will be $15 for a monthly pass.

ASSISTANT Village Mgr. Darryl Kenning, who has been representing Arlington Heights in the agreement between the village and Metron, says the company's biggest advantage is its newness.

"They're starting from scratch and not burdened with fixed terminals, old equipment and routes that don't work. They can start small and learn what the needs are as they go along," he says.

Metron has a one-year agreement with Arlington Heights to operate the new bus service. The village-paid-for buses will be rented to Metron under a lease-purchase arrangement.

If the transit gamble pays off, there is option in the contract for a five-year extension of Metron's franchise.

Kenning calls the planned bus operation a "pure and classic experiment."

"If we can't make it work here, there may be something wrong with the assumption that there's a need for bus service. Maybe we've just been paying lip service to an ideal nobody really believes in."

Blue Cross stand may stall hospital expansion

by STEVE BROWN

A major roadblock may be thrown into plans for several new area hospitals because of a new hardline stand taken by Blue Cross Plan yesterday on health insurance payments.

In action aimed at containing health care costs, Blue Cross stated it would cancel or modify contracts with existing hospitals that expand facilities without approval of a comprehensive health-planning agency.

In the case of a new hospital, Blue Cross may refuse to enter into a contract if a comprehensive health planning agency does not approve it.

WITHOUT A contract from the Blue Cross Plan, patients would not be able to recover medical costs if treated at an unapproved hospital. The policy is similar to federal regulations covering Medicare and Medicaid subsidies.

"Few hospitals would be able to survive in this case," one Blue Cross official said.

The Schaumburg branch of Rush Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center has tentatively received approval from the planning agency. But a spokesman for Comprehensive Health Planning Inc. of Chicago (CHP) said that plans for all new hospitals in the area, including Schaumburg, Hoffman Estates and Glenview will undergo a stringent review.

Created under state and federal laws, the comprehensive health planning agencies now review plans for new medical facilities and make recommendations, but they have no power to stop construction or force redesign of plans.

There are now nine regional health planning agencies in the state. There is also a state health planning agency to coordinate all activities.

PRESENT STATE laws do not require a hospital developer to show a need for their facilities as a criterion for obtaining a license from the state.

Legislation that will require developers to show a need for the facilities was sidetracked in a committee of the Illinois Senate last session. The bill has already passed the House.

Leo Hickman of CHP said the plans developed by American Medicorp Inc. for a 300 bed hospital in Hoffman Estates are now under review.

He said the review should be completed in 60 to 90 days. Plans for the Evanston Hospital branch in Glenview are also being studied, he said.

"Basically we are in agreement with Blue Cross in their effort to control increasing hospital costs," Hickman said. He added that state legislation in this area would also help.

BLUE CROSS officials argue that uncontrolled growth of hospitals will result in constantly increasing costs to patients. They said the average hospital bed costs more than $60 a day to maintain whether or not it is being used.

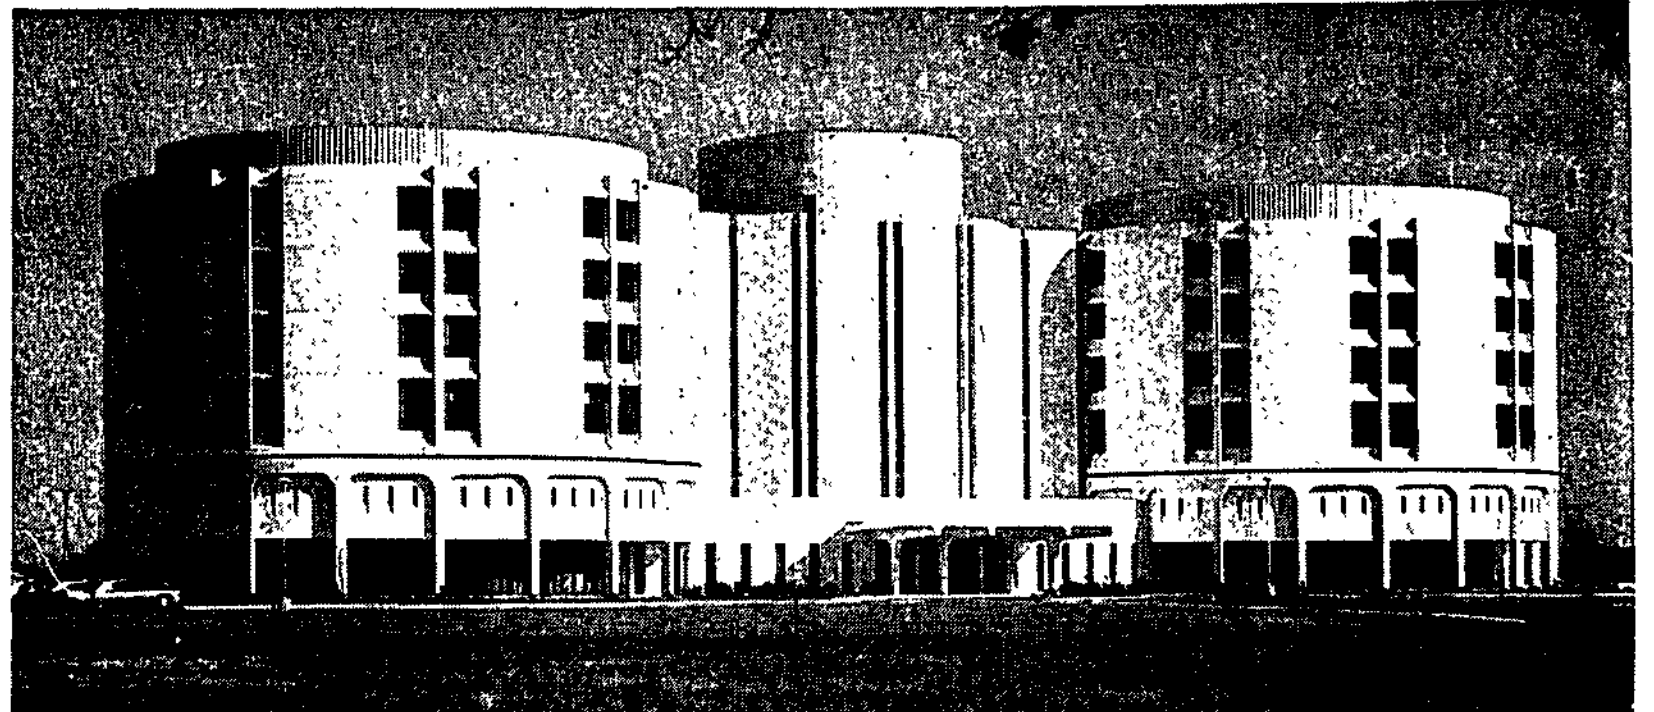

Without guidelines for expansion and development of health facilities many more hospital beds will be built than needed, raising health care costs for everyone.

"The Chicago based Blue Cross Plan and its more than 3 million members in Illinois should not and must not be expected to help pay the cost of health care facilities that are not needed to meet the health care needs of their community," said Robert S. Petersen, senior vice president of Blue Cross.

Another Blue Cross official said the new guidelines will go into effect immediately.

Apparently the only health facility in the state that may feel immediate pressure from the new plan is a hospital being constructed in Springfield.

Comprehensive health planning officials have determined that the two existing hospitals in the city are sufficient and the new facility would not be necessary.

PRELIMINARY PLANS for the proposed Hoffman Community Hospital indicate facility will closely resemble this hospital which is located in Pompano Beach, Fla. The local hospital, like the Florida facility will be constructed by American Medicorp Inc. Both hospitals have a capacity of 300 beds.

The Hoffman Estates facility will open late in 1975.

Recruiters aim at quotas

go out and shoot people."

IN TALKING WITH potential inductees, the recruiters emphasize the opportunity and education, rather than service.

Combat and other regimented duties are still very much a part of the military, and the recruiter does not disguise or hide the less attractive aspects of duty, according to Clifford.

A handful of new incentives have been added to bolster the attractiveness of enlisting. For example, in January, there was an increase in base pay, thus more than doubling the amount to $307 a month.

"But we have to work harder and longer hours for the same amount of people," said Roger Johnson, a Navy recruiter working in Palatine. Johnson said they have enlisted five persons this month, the normal number. "The numbers are slowly (increasing) but surely," he said.

IN CHICAGO, the Army met 72 per cent of its recruiting objective, the Army met 95 per cent nationwide, according to Clifford. "It's too early to say how we're doing this year, since the fiscal year just started," he said. "But it'll work... it'll just take some time."

Air Force Recruiter Sgt. Robert Hill reported that quotas were met in his office at 800 Lee St. in Des Plaines.

"We never drafted, so the numbers won't change much," he said. "This area is harder, so it depends on the geographical location. Texas is a good state because it's a military-minded state. People are waiting at the doors there." There are less incentives provided in the Air Force and Marines than in the Army or Navy, because both were volunteer forces and never drafted men.

"We never had to resort to this kind of thing," said Hill.

"There are no short cuts, no compromises or relaxing our standards," said Thomson of the Marines. "We don't have longer hair or beer machines in barracks as the Army do. We are training them as we have always trained them."

The future? The recruiters interviewed said they were not worried about men and women enlisting. "I cannot see any changes in the immediate future," said Johnson. "But I think we can do better."

Village fights for seniors housing cash

A federal court order that would have released $47,000 in planning money for low-cost senior citizens housing in Arlington Heights will be appealed.

An official of the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) said yesterday in Chicago the ruling Monday by Judge Charles R. Richey that declared the current moratorium on subsidized housing unconstitutional, will not free the $47,000 which has been frozen since January.

The money had been allocated for a site search, preliminary planning and engineering for 119 units of low-cost housing for the elderly.

But the money was held up in January when President Nixon ordered a halt to all federally-subsidized housing programs.

"Everything is still where it was before the judge's ruling," said HUD official Edward Busch. If the appeals fail, then the money probably would be forthcoming, he said.

Arlington Heights first applied for 250 units of senior citizens housing in May, 1970.

3 seized by police in assault case here

Three men were arrested behind an Arlington Heights tavern early yesterday after they allegedly attempted to assault a Rolling Meadows man with tire irons.

Police said they responded to a call from Bill's Inn, 21 W. Campbell St., Arlington Heights, and found the trio in the alley menacing Emile D. Bouchez, 23, with tire irons. The men reportedly fled when they saw police.

One was captured after a brief struggle and another was taken into custody when he fell, police said. The third was apprehended a short distance from the scene, police said.

Legislative Intern

Kim McWhorter, a teacher at Windsor School in Arlington Heights, is a legislative intern during June and July for the Illinois Education Assn., Springfield.

Mrs. McWhorter is among five selected for the program, sponsored by the Illinois Political Action Committee. She was assigned to work with state Rep. J. Glenn Schneider, D-Naperville, for the past general assembly session.

The purpose of the program is to help interns gain a better understanding of the importance of the legislative process for education.

Backyard carnival

A backyard carnival to aid the fight against muscular dystrophy will begin at 1 p.m. Monday at the home of Rick, Mark and Kurt Peterson, 910 W. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

A variety of games and contests and refreshments will be featured.

Safety Town program still has openings

The Arlington Heights Park District still has openings for the next session of Safety Town, a program that teaches preschoolers lessons in traffic, pedestrian and bicycle safety.

The program, starting Aug. 6, is open to children between the ages of 4 and 5 who will be entering kindergarten in the fall. Instruction is provided by certified elementary school teachers.

Classes meet for two weeks, Monday through Thursday, from 8:45 until 10:15; or 10:30 until noon. There is a $5 fee for the program. For further information, contact the Park District at 253-0620.

School board to hire new primary director for kids

The Dist. 21 school board tonight will consider hiring a primary coordinator to help kindergarten youngsters make a smooth transition to the first grade.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8:15 at the administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The function of primary coordinator will be to coordinate kindergarten readiness material with first grade subject matter to allow children to progress at their own rate, particularly in reading and math.

Another major responsibility of the primary coordinator will be to work with the district's motor facilitation program which is designed to help children develop coordination.

CURRENTLY, only kindergarten children participate in the motor facilitation program, but school officials plan to expand the program to include first and second grade students who have coordination problems.

According to Steve Stavrakas, administrative assistant in charge of public and staff relations, three parent and kindergarten teacher workshops will be conducted in each building before school opens to discuss the motor facilitation program.

Several persons, all of whom have not previously taught in Dist. 21 have expressed interest in the primary coordinator position. Their applications will be reviewed tonight by the school board.

OTHER TOPICS of discussion slated for the meeting include a request from Commonwealth Edison for an easement for underground utility lines along the south border of Tarkington School.

Supt. Kenneth Gill said in a memo to board members that the electric company has agreed to restore the swale in the area to its original condition and grade. He said there is a critical drainage problem there that would require the work.

Several resignations will be considered along with a resolution for tax anticipation warrants. The board also plans to review a section of the policy manual that outlines official procedures to be followed in school matters. For the past several months, the board has been updating the manual.

Environment group to study recycling

The Arlington Heights Environmental Control Commission (ECC) has undertaken a study of refuse recycling programs and needs in the village.

Target date for completion of the study in November.

Arlington Heights' glass recycling stations are now open from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Saturdays. Recycling bins are located behind the south fire station at 2000 S. Arlington Heights Rd. and at the north station, 3100 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

Attendants are on duty from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. to accept and sort glass jars and bottles.

Vans for newspaper recycling are open 24 hours a day, seven days a week at both stations. Metal cans are no longer accepted.
